OBJECTS IN SEA SPUR HOPES FOR RESCUE OF M-2

Divers Battle Swirling Tides Hoping to Save 60 on Craft.

HURRY CALL IS SENT FOR VESSEL TO HELP

British Submarine's Supply of Air Nearly Gone; Lack of Signals Puzzles.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Portland, England, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Divers working in darkness and swirling tides made desperate efforts tonight to reach two objects lying on the floor of Dead Man's Bay in the hope that one or the other might be the British submarine M-2.

The minesweeper Tedworth, equipped with special decompression chambers and the latest appliances for deep-sea diving, was suddenly ordered to come from Devonport with extra divers. This gave rise to a suggestion that the M-2, missing since yesterday morning, had been found, but there was no confirmation from the searching ships.

(The Tedworth possibly was ordered to join the rescue flotilla to assist in the search of the divers, its special decompression chambers permitting the divers to be gradually relieved of the effects of working under air pressure at the bottom of the sea.)

The cables of minesweepers, searching for the missing submarine with its 60 men—or their bodies—inside, located the two objects, the admiralty reported.

Divers Risk Lives.

Divers imperiled their lives in repeated descents, but thus far had been unable to reach bottom. Diving was to be continued throughout the night.

Despite the intensive search, scarcely with a parallel in British naval history, no trace had been found on the surface water of oil bubbles or anything that normally indicates a submarine is lying in the depths below.

The rescue flotilla was concentrated to the west of Portland Bill, famous headland, around which sweep some of the most treacherous tides and currents in the seven seas. The flotilla was commanded by Admiral C. J. C. Little, the admiral in charge of British submarines.

On the surface 30 trawlers and seagoing tugs swept the deep channel with drags, but their hooks struck nothing but rocks and the timbers of old wrecks.

Air Supply Nearly Gone.

At 5:30 this evening one of the salvage officers said he had just about given up hope that any of the men would be brought up alive, but he added that much depended on whether the M-2 had been damaged and filled with water. If her hull is whole, he said, there might be enough air to keep the men alive for a few hours more.

In France an admiralty office man was waiting for the captain of a coasting steamer to come in. It was reported that the captain had seen the M-2 go down stern first while she was exercising alone in the Channel.

Here in Portland the wives of the crew just about gave up hope when they got telegrams from the skipper of the Dolphin, mother ship of the M-2, saying that he was afraid the submarine crew was lost.

They had waited for hours in the fog and rain, crowding the water front to watch the salvage vessels, but when night fell they went back to their homes. One of them, the

Wilhelm Observes His 73d Birthday

Anniversary Is Quiet for Former Kaiser; Few of Kin With Him.

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The woodchopper of Doorn, whose military moustaches were familiar to all the world when he was Kaiser Wilhelm II, celebrated his seventy-third birthday today with his wife her her 13-year-old daughter.

None of his sons came from Germany, not even the former crown prince, but that was because the exile's "court" is in mourning for the kaiser's sister, former Queen Sophie of Greece, who died last week.

The kaiser himself was feeling fairly well, having about recovered from the attack of bronchitis which gave him some trouble recently, and in the morning was abe to take an automobile ride among his Dutch neighbors who know him not as tne old war lord but as a rather kindly country gentleman.

Telegrams and letters of congratulation received will take his staff several days to go through.

Roosevelt Is Indorsed By Vermont Democrats

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York was indorsed almost unanimously by the Vermont Democratic State committee in caucus here today.

The committee also decided to hold a State convention in Burlington on May 18 for election of delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Akron's Doom Forewarned In House Quiz

(Associated Press).

An opinion that the Navy's flying fortress—the Akron—may be doomed to a repetition of the Shenandoah disaster because of hidden faulty materials yesterday was placed before the House naval committee.

Continuing its investigations of the airship, the committee also heard the chief of the Navy's Aeronautics Bureau, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, reiterate his belief that the Akron is the best lighter-than-air vessel ever built.

He told how he thought she could defend herself from attacks on all sides, her five fast airplanes darting into the fray and her sixteen machine guns pouring explosive shells at enemy aircraft.

HOUSE UNIT AGREED ON TROLLEY MERGER

Will Report Bill Favorably if No Objections Arise Within Week.

With the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission aligned with heads of two local traction companies in favor of a street car merger here, the stage was set for a favorable report on the latest consolidation bill at hearings last night before the public utilities committee of the House District committee.

No opposition developed at the hearings, which lasted only half an hour. Afterward Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, subcommittee chairman, announced he would wait a week and, lacking further request for hearings, recommend favorable action by his subcommittee.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, outlined history of merger legislation in the District, and indorsed the new measure. President John H. Hanna of the Capital Traction Co. and President William F. Ham of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., declined to take the stand. They stated briefly they favored the bill.

Following hearings, William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, intimated there may yet be opposition from civic associations. He told newspapermen he is not entirely satisfied with the provisions of the bill. He said he particularly wants to clear up whether free interline transfers would be granted by the merged company.

Two possible objections to the legislation were raised by Chairman Black, who said he wanted to know first whether stock issued by the merged transit company would be backed up with sufficient assets, and just how the consolidation would affect employment.

Gen. Patrick replied provision was made that stock and bond liability of the merged company shall not exceed that of the companies merged.

He said he was informed there would be no reduction in the number of employes—that additional persons would be given jobs in the District by reason of track rerouting necessary under the bill.

He said final determination of fares to be charged must await valuation

FEDERAL CREDIT COMPANY GIVEN MONEY TO OPEN

President Signs Bill for $500,000,000 to Be Lent.

HEADS' CONFIRMING BLOCKED BY BLAINE

Forces Day's Delay in Action by Senate Upon Nominations of Officers.

(Associated Press).

The huge Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday received the money with which it will begin its work of resuscitating business, but was told it must wait until today for formal Senate approval of the men who will guide its activities.

President Hoover signed an appropriation bill giving the agency $500,000,000 to lend to railroads, agriculture and financial institutions. Meanwhile, Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, forced a day's postponement of Senate action confirming the appointments of Charles G. Dawes as president, and of Harvey C. Couch and Jesse H. Jones as directors of the corporation.

At the same time, Senate leaders were at work on the next problem arising from the economic situation, that of extending help to the depositors of closed banks. A bill proposed by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, to accomplish this and bring about widespread changes in the banking laws was returned to a subcommittee for overhauling. The administration wants it extensively revised. Features which some felt would counteract the present drive to end deflation were the especial subject of the new study.

Glass Confident of Speed.

Senator Glass agreed to some of the technical modifications urged and expressed confidence last night that the measure would soon be before the Senate.

Moves have been made to put ahead for emergency action that provision of the Glass bill creating a liquidating corporation for relief of those with money in closed banks and this is sought as the next point in the legislative program.

The Reconstruction Corporation nominees were approved early in the day by the Senate banking committee. To obtain full confirmation in the afternoon it was necessary that there be unanimous consent to suspend a rule requiring that questions of this sort wait one day before receiving action on the floor. Blaine, an opponent of the corporation, objected, and a vote on confirmation was postponed until today. The Wisconsin independent previously had similarly forced a day's delay in consideration of another angle of the reconstruction organization.

Currency Increase Opposed.

While determined to counteract deflation, the administration yesterday through Secretary Mellon said it would oppose an increase in the currency. He gave this word in commenting to Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, upon the lat-

Pennsylvania G. O. P. To Back Hoover Men

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The Republican State committee, it was announced today, will sponsor candidates for election as delegates to the national convention who favor the renomination of President Hoover.

Gene Edward Martin, State treasurer and chairman of the Republican State committee, said the Pennsylvania delegation would be an uninstructed unit comprising persons who favor the reelection of President Hoover.

MELLON DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF BARCO OIL DEAL

Criticizes Attempts to Link Transaction With Granting of Loan.

SENATE CONTINUES QUIZ ON PAYMENTS

U. S. Supervision Demanded by Johnson, Who Charges "Shameful Practices."

(Associated Press.)

A sharp denial that he had any knowledge of negotiations which led to the granting of the now celebrated Barco oil concession in Colombia to the Gulf Oil Co., of which he is a stockholder, was issued last night by Secretary Mellon.

The concession has figured prominently in the recent inquiry of the Senate finance committee into loans made abroad by American Bankers.

Only yesterday Senator Johnson (Republican), California, introduced two bills to bring such loans under Federal supervision and restriction, asserting the Senate hearings had revealed "shameful practices."

Denies Knowledge of Deal.

Secretary Mellon said "a persistent effort has been made to connect the granting of the Barco oil concession by the Government of Colombia with the granting of a loan by American bankers to that government and to imply that improper influence was exercised in order to bring about the granting of the concession."

"I had no knowledge of the granting of the Barco concession, which it is said was coincident with the fulfillment of a credit obligation," the Secretary said. "I had no knowledge at any time of any contract by bankers to grant a credit to the Colombian government. I never knew that such a credit had been granted or fulfilled until the Senate hearings."

Mellon asserted these indirect charges and innuendoes had recently been broadcast by a United States senator, and since "I am a stockholder in one of the companies interested in the concession and I have been definitely drawn into this matter, more particularly in the radio speech, I deem it proper to state the facts." He added:

Refers To Copper.

"The suggestion that I participated in or in any way concerned myself, directly or indirectly, with these transactions is entirely without foundation in fact."

The Senator referred to was Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, who Tuesday morning, in a radio review of Congressional events said:

"The country has been shocked at some of the facts brought out by investigations now in progress before Senate committees. Some people in high places in this Government appear to have betrayed their trust by trading loans to Latin-American governments in return for valuable concessions to American business houses.

"It is unfortunate, to say the least, that department of the Government has seen fit to veil in secrecy the details of the transaction by which Colombia received a $4,000,000 loan of money coincident with the restoration of valuable oil concessions to American interests, in which a member of the Cabinet appears to have had an interest."

Asks U. S. Supervision.

The two bills of Senator Johnson, at whose behest the finance committee undertook its investigation of foreign securities marketed here, would establish a board with control over the loans and require public reports on all such credits.

The "Foreign Loan Board," as it would be called, would supervise all negotiations between American bankers and foreign governments seeking advances. The reports on the loans would be made to the Secretary of Commerce.

The finance committee's investigation was concluded yesterday with

Hitler Enemies Stage Protest Rally in Berlin

Berlin, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—German Socialists showed their teeth to Hitlerism tonight at an anti-Fascist rally in the Sports Palace, where they cheered promises that a newly formed "iron front" would smash the Fascists.

It was estimated that 15,000 attended the meeting, among them several prominent international Socialists. Paul Loebe, president of the Reichstag, said French and German workers would unite against any attempt to provoke a new war between the nations.

Bishop Cannon Resented As Dry Repeal Witness

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The Daily News-Miner said Alaskans here were expressing resentment today because Bishop James Cannon, jr., was granted permission to appear before the House territories committee in Washington, D. C., to oppose repeal of Alaska's bone dry law.

Alaska's territorial Legislature has asked Congress to repeal the law because it permits liquor searches in homes without warrants which courts hold illegal under the eighteenth amendment.

U. S. AND BRITAIN MAY JOIN TO BOYCOTT JAPANESE LOANS; 'ZERO HOUR' DAWNS IN CHINA

Stimson Sends to Senate Manchurian Notes It Had Asked.

ABOUT 35,000 WORDS CONTAINED IN RECORD

Cooling Off of America's Attitude Toward League Also Revealed.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Secretary Stimson invoked "open diplomacy" yesterday when he forwarded to the Senate the complete record of all diplomatic correspondence exchanged between the United States and the League of Nations as well as China and Japan in the adjustment of the Manchusian difficulties of these two powers.

The documents revealed what went on behind the scenes in Washington, Geneva, Tokyo and Nanking while the peacemakers of the world tried to effect a reconciliation. The Stimson documents also contained a scenario of events prepared largely by Allen T. Klotz, special assistant to the Secretary, which traced the continuity of incidents and threaded the background against which the diplomatic exchanges were made.

Two dominent features stand out from the mass of documentation which amounts to about 35,000 words:

Note of Insistence.

First, a rising note of insistence in the Secretary's instructions that Japan honor her engagements;

Second, the cooling-off of American enthusiasm toward the league council after Gen. Charles G. Dawes, then Ambassador to London, was ordered to attend the meetings of the council in Paris.

This change of attitude of the State Department was believed due to the unequivocal sentiments of Congress with regard to any American participation in the activities of the league or the league council.

On October 16 the Secretary of State thus cabled his instructions to Prentiss Bailey Gilbert, American consul general at Geneva:

"You are authorized to participate in the discussions of the council when they relate to the possible application of the Kellogg-Briand pact, to which treaty the United States is a party."

Change in Tone Evidenced.

An interesting change of tone toward the league is evidenced from the cable of instructions which went to Ambassador Dawes after he had been appointed to sit in at the special extraordinary meeting of the council in Paris when the Manchurian affair was at its darkest moment. This cable is dated November 10, less than a month after the Gilbert instructions:

"Confirming telephone conversation, you are requested to be present in Paris during next few days so that you may be available for conference with M. Briand and perhaps the representatives of other nations who are gathering there for the adjourned meeting of the Council of the League of Nations on November 16 in connection with the situation which has arisen in Manchuria. It is not expected that you will find it necessary to attend the council meetings, but since the developments in Manchuria and the discussions which will take place in Paris presumably will involve matters affecting treaty rights and general interests of the United States, it is considered desirable that you be available for conference on matters bearing thereon."

Surprise and Alarm.

The interest of Secretary Stimson in the preservation of peace in Manchuria was continued, impartial and as the correspondence is followed chronologically, insistent. In his memorandum handed the Japanese Ambassador on September 22, the Secretary views the Manchurian situation "with surprise and alarm."

From that beginning the attitude of the American State Department assumes a more positive and definite nature until the note of December 24, when the word "goo faith" is in-

Kidnaped Magnate Returns Unharmed

52-Year-Old Manufacturer, Held for $50,000 for One Day, Safe.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Howard A. Woolverton, 52, wealthy industrialist, returned to his home unharmed shortly before midnight tonight just 24 hours after he had been kidnaped and held for $50,000 ransom.

Woolverton apparently had suffered no ill effects from his abduction, one of the most sensational of a series that has brought $1,000,000 in ransom to a Midwest kidnap band.

The industrialist immediately went into conference with his family and attorneys. It was impossible to learn at once whether a ransom had been paid or promised.

Japan Plans for War With U. S., Chen Says

Her Ultimate Aim Is Mastery of Pacific Ocean Including Conquest of Australia, Recently Resigned Chinese Foreign Minister Declares.

Shanghai, China, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The ultimate aim of Japan's policy toward China is mastery of the Pacific Ocean, Eugene Chen, who recently resigned as the Chinese foreign minister, said tonight, and that, he said, means war with the United States.

First, he said, Japan looks to unconditional annexation of Manchuria, from which she can dominate the entire Asiatic mainland, and then to the conquest of Australia.

"To accomplish these things," said he, "Japan knows that she is destined to fight the United States. As a preparation for this inevitable struggle, the occupation of Manchuria is in an effort to obtain raw materials as the sinews of war.

"Her present pressure against Shanghai and the Yangtze Valley, which contemplates the occupation not only of Shanghai but also of Nanking, is sufficient to paralyze the Chinese government and to force its acceptance of Japan's formal annexation of Manchuria."

These are the first steps, "being carried out by the medieval minded military shogunate in the form of a general staff which is the real Government of Japan."

"Men of this type planned the Sino-Japanese and Russo-Japanese wars," said Dr. Chen, "now they see Japan dominating all Asia, including Australia.

"Between her and this goal stands the United States. Therefore she plans for war. While other nations disarm she arms. Manchuria is but a preparatory step for her greatest conflict in which she hopes to banish forever the influence of western nations in the Pacific ocean."

Dr. Chen said he had been studying Manchuria and Japanese policies regarding it for twenty years, adding that, "my statements may seem fantastic to people thousands of miles away, but the coming generation will live to see that I speak the truth."

DAVIS TO QUIT DRYS, WIDE REPORT HOLDS

Senator Said to Be Ready to Aid Wets to Keep Seat in Chamber.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

In an attempt to hang on to his seat, Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, is about to proclaim himself a wet, according to seemingly authoritative reports here and in Philadelphia.

But even a shift from the dry side to the wet side will not be enough to save him in the April primary election, in the opinion of some political experts in the Keystone State.

As an author—he wrote "The Iron Puddler," an autobiography—Senator Davis praised real beer, and told of the beneficial effects it had on his fellow puddlers away back in the days when he worked in a foundry.

As a politician, however, Davis has been a dry. This is his first elective office, the last one—that of Secretary of Labor—having been an appointive office. When, in 1930, he ran for the remainder of the Senate term which had been denied William S. Vare, Philadelphia political boss, Davis told the voters that he stood on the dry Republican platform adopted in Kansas City in 1928.

Some of those who were working for his election, however, spread the word that he was "satisfactory" on the prohibition question. The result was that he garnered votes from both the drys and the wets.

Meantime there has been a mounting wet sentiment in Pennsylvania. A month or so ago Representative James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, who is close to Boss Vare, aimed an ultimatum at Davis.

He told him that he either had to come out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment or else expect some man who is for repeal to challenge him in the April primary.

The support of the powerful Vare machine is important, if not essen-

RETROACTIVE TAXES SEEM IMPROBABLE

Leaders on Both Sides Hold New Law Will Not Be Ready March 15.

By J. M. McDONNELL.

The revised income taxes, now in process of shaping by the House ways and means committee, will not be made retroactive, it seemed apparent yesterday.

The time element is becoming an increasingly important factor in connection with the sugggested retroactive provision of the new tax bill, and Democratic and Republican leaders of the House agree that the new tax measure will not be law before March 15, the date for the first income tax returns under the present law.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, Republican leader of the House, yesterday expressed the opinion that the revised tax bill could not be enacted into law in time to make effective a retroactive provision without enactment of other measures, the wisdom of which he said he believed both the Democrats and Republicans would question.

"The ways and means committee is going ahead as fast as it can," Mr. Snell said. "It has a very serious job on its hands. I hope that the ques-

Buresch Asked to Form New Cabinet for Austria

Vienna, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—President Niklas accepted the resignation of the cabinet headed by Karl Buresch today and asked Herr Buresch to form a new government.

Financial difficulties presumably were responsible for the resignation and although it was not known how extensive cabinet changes will be in the new line-up, it was expected some shifts might be made, perhaps in the key positions of the foreign ministry and the departments of interior and justice.

37 Nipponese Warships Train Their Guns on Shanghai.

BOMB IS TOSSED At TOKYO OFFICIAL

Americans and British Being Evacuated as State of Terrorism Reigns.

"Zero hour" for modern China dawned at 5 o'clock this morning with the guns of 37 Japanese warships trained on the City of Shanghai, a state of siege proclaimed in the international settlement, Americans and British inhabitants being evacuated from the hinterland to the European compound and a comprehensive Japanese military advance in Manchuria which threatens to embroil Soviet Russia.

Secretary Stimson, on behalf of the United States, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, were meanwhile preparing the basis of a joint Anglo-American financial embargo against all Japanese borrowings to forestall any further expansion of Japanese military activity by foreign purchases of war material, ammunition or airplanes.

In Throes of Terrorism.

The opulent City of Shanghai was in the throes of terrorism following the hurling of a bomb at the Japanese consulate general. This was interpreted as a deliberate flaunting of Chinese defiance in the face of the Japanese ultimatum. Backed up by the Japanese imperial navy, which is thoroughly prepared to take over the entire Yangtze Valley, and a formidable Japanese military force, the consular representatives of the Tokyo government had announced their intention of taking over the city at 5 o'clock this morning (E.S.T.) unless their demands were complied with.

What is believed to have been a Chinese bomb, hurled through the Japanese consulate windows, was the reply.

Orders Move on Harbin.

The inexorable march of Japanese military is to be extended in a particularly menacing direction against the Russian-Chinese City of Harbin as Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander in chief of the Japanese Manchurian army, ordered an important Japanese contingent to move on that city. The Harbin detachment will be under command of Gen. Hasebe. The possibilities of clashes between Soviet and Japanese forces is greatly to be feared as a result of this action, since Harbin is the easternmost sphere of Soviet influence.

The eventuality of a joint action on the part of the United States and Great Britain toward a credit restriction of all Japanese financial arrangements, either in Wall street or in London, was believed here last night as the sole hope of bringing the Japanese general staff to terms. Secretary Stimson remained in seclusion in his home at Woodley yesterday studying the Japanese problem. The British Ambassador is expected at the office of the Secretary today to discuss the conditions of some such joint financial maneuver.

Precariousness Advanced.

The precariousness of the Japanese money mart, due to the preparation for important military moves, was further enhanced when Japan abandoned the gold standard. Large shipments of gold had preceded the sudden action of the new Japanese government, which came into office after the resignation of Premier Wakatsuki. The new government promptly jettisoned the gold standard.

New and important credits are in prospect if the ambitious moves of the Japanese general staff are to be carried out. Associated Press dis-

D. A. R. Leader Commends Washington Essay Contest

Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln, Noted Fiction Writer and Editor of Patriotic Society's Magazine, Lauds Post Competition as Aid to Children.

"The Post Washington Essay Contest will do much to refresh the historical memories of the boys and girls of the public, private and parochial schools of Washington, and nearby territory in Maryland and Virginia," Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln, noted fiction writer and editor of the National Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine, predicted yesterday in expressing her approval of the contest.

Miss Lincoln as editor of the D. A. R. Magazine has done much to revive interest in the history of the United States especially of colonial and revolutionary times. As a specialist in American history Miss Lincoln is well fitted to judge the merits of such a competition as The Post Washington Essay contest.

"The Washington Post deserves commendation," continued Miss Lincoln, "for giving such a broad field for the essays. It is much better to permit the young contestants to select the particular period in the history of Washington which claims their special attention than to limit them to an arbitrary topic. The $1,000 in cash prizes to be distributed among the 108 winners should keep the interest keen until the very end of the competition. As a suggestion may I remind the contestants that in the long run originality of treatment will probably have a major part in the selection of the winners. The driest historical facts can be embellished and "humanized," so to speak, in a way that will make history the most fascinating of reading. The life of George Washington had much of adventure, romance and change in it and certain chapters of it were most thrilling, indeed."

The Post essay editor heartily echoes Miss Lincoln's words. The contestants are not aware, perhaps, of the thrill which comes to those in charge of the essay contest when they discovered in a pile of just ordinary essays one which stands out from the rest because it is "different," tells the story of Washington in a

Jurors Find Dealer Guilty Of Selling Shady Magazine

Rover Wins First Victory in City-Wide Drive; "Test Case" Expected to Result in Guilty Pleas by Many of Other 132 Accused.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday won the first victory in the campaign to rid the city's newsstands of salacious reading matter.

The victory came through the verdict of a Police Court jury, which found James J. Carley, 40 years old, of 1809 Nichols avenue southeast, guilty of having for sale a salacious magazine. Three magazines are involved in the drive.

The test case was expected by Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, who is in actual charge of the prosecutions, to result in guilty pleas by many of the other 132 arrested dealers. There are no more scheduled trials for the dealers until next week. Sentence in the Carley case was deferred when the defense filed a motion for a new trial.

An impassioned plea by Mr. Keogh to the jury featured the presentation of the Government's case. After exhibiting copies of the magazine that had been marked so that the more daring portions were readily observable, Mr. Keogh implored the jury of eleven men and one woman to "see that such literature was barred so that children and others who might be swayed by its sex stuff" could not obtain it.

A reading of the magazine, Mr. Keogh said, would make a child of 15 equally conversant with 70-year-old parents in matters that are usually not discussed at family circles. "I ask you to protect the youth of this country from the insidious stuff that is contained in such matter," he said.

Because the case was the first of its kind in several years, Judge Ralph Given allowed the defense unusual leeway in presenting its side of the story. His action last week in sustaining the informations the Government had filed was the first important step in the prosecution.

At the last minute Mr. Keogh changed the papers to read that ignorance of the contents of the magazines was not sufficient to clear dealers of having salacious matter for sale.

HOME LOAN BILL EXPECTED TO BE VOTED ON SOON

Advocates Gather Forces in Attempt to Get Early Action.

WOULD AID REALTY MARKET, BEST SAYS

Building Leader Points Out Decline in Mortgage Funds of 1930.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Advocates of the home loan bank system, fifth project in the national reconstruction program, consolidated their forces yesterday in an attempt to conclude committee action on the measure this week. Sponsors of the measure on Capitol Hill hope to have their bill ready for consideration as soon as the emergency bank liquidation corporation has been established.

"The home owners of America will not permit selfish interests to delay the creation of this part of the recovery program," William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, president of the United States Building and Loan League, told a subcommittee of the Senate banking committee, which has been holding hearings on the bill for two weeks. He said that less than 100,000 new individual dwellings had been built in the United States last year, against an average of approximately 600,000 in normal years. Total mortgage loans made during 1930 aggregated but $1,300,000,000, against a normal average of $2,000,000,000.

Millions Have Been Lost.

In addition to this shrinkage in new loans, millions have been lost through forced foreclosures, due principally to the fact that existing banking machinery provides no rediscount facilities for mortgage holders.

"The credit support provided by this bill," Mr. Best continued, "will check the precipitous decline in real estate values, stabilize them and revive the real estate market from the demoralizing effects of foreclosure and forced sales.

"The recently created credit agencies have responsibilities too diverse and too large to deal adequately with the specific problems of mortgage financing."

Frozen Mortgages.

In earlier testimony before the committee, Lawrence T. Stevenson, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, told of one Middle Western city in which there is now approximately $1,250,000,000 in frozen real estate mortgages on small dwellings.

"If these savings institutions could discount some of their mortgages in the proposed system, thousands of families could get their funds, which are needed for the bare necessities of life."

Stevenson said the proposed new banking system would serve some 30,000 building and loan associations throughout the country. The combined membership of these associations is more than 12,000,000.

"The enactment of this bill will hasten the resumption of normal home building," Mr. Stevenson said. "Six years ago we built more than 400,000 homes. Last year we built less than 100,000. If normal home building can be resumed throughout the country it would restore work and livelihood to nearly 6,000,000 men."

Indorsed by Boards.

Mr. Stevenson said the project had been indorsed by 550 local real estate boards in 43 States.

"Every day that goes by adds to the hundred thousand families who lost their homes last year."

Mr. Best denied that the country is overbuilt in private homes. Nor would the rediscount bank stimulate an unjustified building boom. He cited the growing volume of applications to the building and loan associations throughout the country as evidence that thousands are ready to build as soon as normal financial arrangements are available.

"At the present time there are no funds available to legitimate home builders who may desire to take advantage of the prevailing low prices of labor and materials," he said.

Two Girls in India Draw Life Terms

Are Convicted in Murder of British Magistrate; Seem Unperturbed.

Calcutta, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Sentences of transportation for life were imposed today upon Sanii Ghose and Sunity Chowduri, Indian girl students, following their conviction in a local court of the murder of G. C. B. Stevens, British magistrate, last month.

Wearing bright-color t sarees and with fresh flowers in their hair, the two girls seemed not perturbed by the sentence. "It is better to die than live in a horse's stable," they said.

After passing judgment on the girls, the court requested the local government to take into consideration their youth and sex in connection with the treatment they receive in prison.

The sentence of transportation sends the prisoner to one of the several penal colonies. The destination of the two girls has not been announced.

FIREMEN FIGHTING BLAZE IN BALTIMORE

Flames spread from the Otto Duker & Co. lumber and mill work plant in Baltimore yesterday to these buildings on Fleet street near President street. Firemen, part of those brought out by the eleven alarms, are pictured as they strove to bring the blaze under control. These walls later caved in, as the flames, fanned by a high wind, ate away the interior of the buildings.

FIRE IN BALTIMORE RAZES TWO PLANTS

Nearly Score of Houses Are Damaged; Seven Injured or Burned.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 27.—(A.P.).—Fire, raging through thousands of feet of stacked lumber, today wiped out two lumber manufacturing plants and damaged nearly a score of houses before being brought under control.

For nearly three hours the flames, whipped by a high wind, raged almost unchecked by the threescore pieces of fire-fighting apparatus.

An hour after the first alarm had sounded, ten additional ones were sent in, and special equipment dispatched to the scene, including fireboats to fight the flames from the harbor side.

Forced to Evacuate.

Residents of a dozen houses near the fire were forced to evacuate and 250 pupils of the St. Leo's Parochial School were dismissed and led to safety.

Seven persons, five of them firemen, were injured or burned during the blaze, which generated dense clouds of smoke and forced firemen to retreat several times. No official estimate of the damage was obtained, although an official of one of the lumber companies placed his loss at $130,000.

The fire started in a carpenter shop of the H. P. Duker Lumber Co. and spread so rapidly that when the first fire-fighting apparatus reached the scene it was an inferno and calls were sent for additional equipment, including fireboats to protect the nearby waterfront.

Spreads Almost Immediately.

The blaze spread almost immediately to the adjoining lumber yard of Otto Duker, run in conjunction with that of H. P. Duker, and a few minutes later the first one collapsed and shot flames across the street to the McLea Lumber Co.

Before the fire could be checked, the McLea company was destroyed and firemen concerted efforts on saving adjoining manufacturing plants and the row of houses nearby in which sporadic blazes had started.

The dense smoke generated by the flaming piles of stacked lumber floated over the southeastern section of the city and into the harbor. It was so dense that breathing was difficult as far as a quarter of a mile away.

As soon as the flames were brought under control, Fire Chief August Emrich started an investigation to determine its origin.

HOUSE UNIT AGREED ON TROLLEY MERGER

work now in progress by the commission, which will not be completed until March 1.

The Public Utilities Commission would be given increased powers under the bill, by reason of authorization to issue orders to bring about better operation, he testified. Under this provision the commission could compel abandonment of tracks, or discard of certain equipment.

Although merger legislation has been an issue here for 20 years, it has been paramount since the companies reached an agreement, approved by the Public Utilities Commission, three years ago. Congress blocked the move. Gen. Patrick said there are few changes in the present bill from the measure presented at the last session. Several minor changes in phraseology were suggested by Chairman Black last night.

Brown Asks Parcel Post Rate Power Be Retained

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Brown yesterday opposed before a House committee proposals to take away from the Postoffice Department the ability to fix parcel post rates. He explained to a postoffice subcommittee the increases he has recommended to the interstate commerce committee.

Representative Buckbee (Republican), Illinois, has introduced a bill to repeal the present law permitting the department to change rates when they are approved by the commission. Brown said the rates could best be determined by departmental employes who have spent a lifetime on that work.

UNIONS MAY DECIDE TODAY ON RAIL CUTS

Brotherhood's Votes on 10 Per Cent Reductions in Pay Held Secret.

Chicago, Jan. 27. (A.P.)—Railroad Brotherhoods and unions expected tonight to have ready by tomorrow their answer to the proposal of a 10 per cent wage reduction for one year.

Three days deliberation over concessions granted by the rail presidents and the arguments for and against the wage cut failed to result in agreement of the 21 labor groups, but David B. Robertson, union spokesman, said the labor executives expected all to be in tomorrow.

The vote of the unions was guarded carefully and none was to be announced until after the labor group had met again with the presidents. There were indications, however, that labor would go into the next joint session with something more than a mere "yes" or "no" answer to the wage cut proposal.

Three labor leaders made a surprise visit to the hotel headquarters of the presidents, asking that "closed shop" agreements on certain roads be strengthened and extended. They were Alvaney Johnston of the locomotive engineers, S. N. Berry of the conductors, and A. F. Whitney of the trainmen.

Spokesman Robertson denied any knowledge of such a visit to the president's quarters and asserted that if the three men had gone on such an errand it was in an entirely unofficial capacity.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, leader of the committee of nine rail heads, said the labor leaders called on him in reference to a "minor matter that had nothing to do with the present negotiations."

The presidents have taken no official action since Sunday night when they sent up to the labor leaders their revised replies to the union program, promising earnest efforts to stabilize employment and making other minor concessions to the employes.

U. S. Protests French Quota on Radio Imports

(Associated Press.)

The American Government has protested to France against a recent decree establishing a quota system on importation into France of radios and radio equipment. A statement by the State Department said the United States was "definitely opposed to any system of quotas in international trade."

The protest was based on the contention that the low quota for the United States was discriminatory. The quota was reached on old import figures and not on recent importations.

Escaped Convict Prevents His Burial at Richmond

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27.—The grave had been dug and all was in readiness for the burial today of an elderly man, identified as Robert N. Roberts, who had been found dead in a vacant house Monday evening by police detectives while they were engaged in search for Charles Panella, 24-year-old man from Newcastle, Pa., who made a spectacular escape from the State penitentiary earlier that day, when the real Robert N. Roberts, former inmate of the city home, showed up, informing the undertaker that he was on the point of burying the wrong man. Advised as to this entirely unexpected development, Dr. James M. Whitfield, city coroner, halted the burial arrangements and directed that the body be held for further identification.

Identification of the man as Robert N. Roberts had been made by Miss Georgia Beach, who said that she had befriended him and held two insurance policies which he carried.

It had been arranged for the undertaker to be paid with part of the proceeds from the policies. In a notebook found on the dead man was the name of R. R. Roberts, 1650 Harvard street northwest, Washington, D. C. The Richmonders had never seen or heard of the man, and were at a loss to account for their names being in the book. Police said tonight they would communicate with R. R. Roberts in Washington to see whether he could shed any light on the mystery.

SUSPECT SET FREE IN ILSLEY MURDERS

Claude Furr Is Released After Questioning; Killings Laid to Robbery.

Special to The Washington Post.

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 27.—Claude Furr, who had been under arrest on a charge of aiding and abetting in the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Walter S. Buckner, here on the morning of January 13, was cleared of all connection with the case and released by authorities at Leesburg tonight.

Furr was questioned again before his release, and was unable to throw any light on the case. He was taken in custody after he had sent a shirt stained with blood to be washed. Furr told authorities that he had been under the influence of liquor on the day of the slayings and did not remember where he went. It was brought out, however, that the man's nose bled easily and authorities believed the blood was his own.

The stained clothing was sent before his release, however, to Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, George Washington University pathologist, for examination.

Authorities said robbery as a motive for the killings gained credence when a check-up by Mrs. Buckner's son, Walter F. Buckner, of Bethesda, Md., revealed that some of his mother's possessions, including a gold watch, a ring, some gold beads and an undetermined amount of cash, were missing. Mrs. Ilsley's pocketbook is also believed to be missing.

CHEST STILL SHORT $753,983 OF QUOTA

Field Workers Must Average $150,000 Daily to Keep on Schedule.

More Washingtonians must give more!

This was the keynote of plans made for the remainder of the Community Chest campaign at a meeting of the Chest executive committee held yesterday.

The Community Chest is still $753,983.51 short of its goal of $2,601,000.

Working every day, Sunday included, the Chest "army" now in the field must report an average of more than $150,000 per day if the campaign is to be successfully ended Monday night, as planned.

This means that every worker must get more and larger pledges. While the average pledge is higher than that of last year, the increase is still below the one-third average gain necessary and the number of pledges is far below the number in hand at the same time in last year's campaign.

All these facts were pointed out by Edward F. Colladay, campaign chairman, following the meeting.

Plea by Chairman.

"Washington will have to awake to the seriousness of the situation," Mr. Colladay said. "We must realize that unless we reach this goal our proud boast that 'no person need go hungry in Washington' may become a mere group of idle words. We must awaken to the fact that unemployment has caused an increase of more than 40 per cent in the demands for aid and that every penny of the one-third more than was pledged last year, and which is asked for this year's budget, is needed to relieve acute distress. More Washingtonians must give more. Our average pledge must be increased. The number of pledges must be increased. The eyes of the Nation are upon us and unless we get these increases the Nation will learn that persons are allowed to go hungry and unsheltered in the Nation's Capital.

"We are facing the greatest peacetime emergency in the history of Washington. Our city, while better favored than most, is confronted with the greatest number of jobless breadwinners it has ever known. The time has come when those of us who have an income or a job must share with those who have nothing. I want to appeal to every Washingtonian to rise to this emergency. I want them to remember that these volunteer, unpaid workers who come to give them the privilege of contributing to the Chest are not only volunteer workers but generous givers as well, and then I want to appeal to every loyal resident of our city, the most beautiful in the land, to remember the hungry, the ill, the aged and infirm, and the helpless little children, who are depending on Community Chest funds for help, and then I ask them to 'now, more than ever, give.'"

Only $98,560.23 was reported at yesterday's meeting at the Willard. Clarence A. Aspinwall, chairman of the special gifts unit, reported contributions of $24,440; the schools unit reported a total of $687; the group solicitation unit, under the chairmanship of Lloyd B. Wilson, reported $24,265.68; the metropolitan unit, under the chairmanship of H. L. Rust, jr., reported $49,117.55, and the auction of the autograph of Padewski, presented by Mrs. Cabot Stevens, netted $50, the autograph being auctioned by Vernon G. Owen and bought by E. C. Brashears.

Admiral Butler Speaks.

Following an invocation by Mgr. P. C. Gavan, of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Church; Arthur Hellen, secretary of the Chest, was introduced by Chairman Edward F. Colladay and made a short talk on the work of the Associated Charities, pointing out that the relief work of this organization has increased 40 per cent and that estimates are that the increase will probably go as high as 50 per cent this winter on account of the unemployment situation.

Admiral Henry V. Butler, commandant of the U. S. Navy Yard, brought greetings from his large group of Government workers and told how the department was organized for the Governmental unit's campaign, down to the "key" men who obtained the pledges. He said that it was unnecessary to "sell" the Chest to the Navy Yard because most of the employes drew small salaries and had friends who had been laid off from the Navy Yard and other places and consequently had seen relief given by Chest organizations when needed.

"I am proud of the spirit of my organization," Admiral Butler said, "and I feel, on looking at the 'will to win' so evident in the faces of those here, that the Chest will reach its goal."

W. W. Wheeler, chairman of the group solicitation division of the speakers' unit, praised the work of the speakers and said that results show that larger gifts are received from an organization which listens to a speaker than from one which does not have a speaker.

Talk by Gillilan.

Mrs. Archibald Hopkins made an impassioned plea for the Chest, and Mrs. Luke I. Wilson and Mrs. Whitman Cross were introduced.

Strickland Gillilan gave one of his humorous talks and Elwood Street, director of the Chest, urged the seeking of larger gifts. Mr. Street pointed out that the campaign is lagging behind the same period last year, in proportion to its goal and called attention to the increased suffering in the city due to unemployment, all of which, he said, has to be relieved by Chest organizations. He urged every worker to make special efforts for more and larger pledges.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be honor guest at today's report meeting of the Community Chest at the Willard Hotel. Mrs. Wilson will be escorted to the ballroom, where the meetings are held, by Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of the information unit, and will be introduced to the workers by Campaign Chairman Edward F. Colladay.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, together with Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, wife of Justice Roberts, and Mrs. Harlan Stone, wife of Justice Stone, will be honor guests at tomorrow's meeting.

According to the action, Mrs. Yeandle refused to join the officer when he was ordered to New York and to Georgia. A property settlement is included in the suit.

EFFORT TO CUT U.S. PERSONNEL FAILURE

Simmons Plan Defeated as Agriculture Bill Is Passed by House.

The drive for a 5 per cent cut in Federal personnel was effectively routed yesterday when the House voted overwhelmingly against the Simmons motion to reduce agriculture appropriations by $495,000.

Immediately afterward Representative Robert G. Simmons told The Post he will abandon efforts to curtail Government rosters.

"The fight is over, so far as I am concerned," he said. "I will offer no similar proposal on any of the other appropriation bills."

Action on Pay Increases.

His defeat came after consideration of the bill by the committee of the whole on a motion to recommit the measure to the appropriations committee.

The victory for Federal employes was tempered by failure of Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, in efforts to strike out a section of the bill prohibiting promotions and salary increases within grades. The vote was 62 to 26 against his amendment.

House action in both instances was vital, in that it establishes precedent for all other appropriation bills.

Representative Simmons sought a roll-call vote on his motion to recommit, but only 20 members supported him in his request for the count.

Agriculture Bill Passed.

The House then passed the closely clipped agriculture bill, carrying $175,000,000 in appropriations, and sent it to the Senate.

Representative Simmons tried to amend the bill on two other scores, but met with failure on each. He asked the House to ban appropriations for salaries of dependent wives whose husbands make $2,500 in the Government service, and urged that the budget director rather than President Hoover be required to pass on the need for filling vacancies in the Government service.

The first proposal was vigorously opposed by Representative James P. Buchanan (Democrat), of Texas, who declared it would "upset the Government service" and lead to untold confusion.

Cites President's Burdens.

Chairman Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, of the appropriations committee, took the floor in opposition to the proposal to relieve the President of the necessity of passing on the essential nature of vacancies filled.

The provision might just as well be left out altogether as to substitute the budget director, he said. He insisted departmental heads would be careful not to fill nonessential jobs if they thought the President would pass on their recommendations.

It was Mr. Simmons' contention that the President already is hopelessly overburdened, and this would provide a needless addition to his task. He was supported by Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), Michigan, and Representative Charles L. Gifford (Republican), Massachusetts, but the amendment failed. Representative Scott Leavitt was defeated in efforts to empower the President to delegate the authority.

Earlier, Representative LaGuardia, in opposing the second section of the bill, said it amounted to a breach of faith with the Federal employes, who have been solemnly promised raises by Congress in contracts enacted into law.

Attack on Slash Advocates.

"The savings under this section wouldn't amount to a decimal point," he said. "So far, every attempt to balance the budget seems to be aimed at the Federal employes."

An attack on Government pay reductionists was launched by Representative Loring M. Black, jr., (Democrat), New York, in an antiprohibition speech, just before adjournment.

"American Federal employes must suffer a wage cut so that they can still tinker with the noble experiment with an ignoble experience," he said.

"American citizens must see their taxes reach a new high so that the drys can whine to the deaf skies, 'Hallelujah.'"

During the debate on the Simmons proposal to reduce Federal forces 5 per cent, Representative Byrns told the House the agriculture bill's restriction against filling of vacancies will result in savings of "millions of dollars," and not work any hardship on the employes themselves. He said he intended to incorporate the same provision in every appropriation bill. He denounced the Simmons 5 per cent cut plan as "without rhyme or reason."

SENATORS CONFIRM HUMPHREY'S NAMING

23 Oppose Nomination to Place on Federal Trade Commission.

(Associated Press.)

After brisk debate the Senate yesterday confirmed William E. Humphrey, of Washington State, for reappointment to the Federal Trade Commission.

The vote was 53 to 28. Senators Wheeler, Montana; Connally, Texas, and Long, Louisiana, Democrats, and Norris, Republican, Nebraska, spoke against confirmation. Senators Couzens, Michigan, and Jones, Washington, Republicans, defended the nominee.

Mr. Connally argued Mr. Humphrey was not in sympathy with the law creating the commission, while Mr. Norris said he was unfit to deal with questions arising from "competition between the big corporations and the small fry." Mr. Couzens said, as far as he knew, the objections were not against Mr. Humphrey personaly, but to policies of the commission. Mr. Jones said there was no question as to his honesty.

In his first speech in the Senate, Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, yesterday protested against "the administration reaching into the backyards of corporations" to pick men for Government commissions and the Supreme Court.

The new Democratic senator arose during the consideration of the Humphrey nomination.

He said he had seen the Power, Trade and Tariff Commissions "nullified" by such appointments and on one occasion when the Supreme Court was tied on a public utility question the ninth member named was against the public interest in the matter.

"I don't expect this will do any good," said Long, "but I want to make known that I intend to vote against all reappointments to these commissions."

500 FAULTY RIVETS IN AKRON, IS REPORT

Association of Machinists, presented the criticism.

He said two men who worked on the Akron—W. B. Underwood, of Madisonville, Tenn., and Lieut. Col. E. C. McDonald, a Washington reserve officer—first brought to him the reports of defective materials.

Their complaints, Davidson testified, were turned over to the Navy with a request that the names be kept secret because the men feared being "framed, blacklisted" and possibly made "victims of bodily harm."

After the investigation began, both were discharged, Davidson said, and the Navy found no evidences of faulty work.

In the part of the ship where Underwood and McDonald worked, Davidson said, there were from 500 to 600 defective rivets.

"What would be the effect of this poor riveting after the ship had been in the air a while?" asked Representative McClintinc (Democrat), Oklahoma, sponsor of the investigation.

"She would break up," Davidson answered. "These two gentlemen informed me that in one of the tests an engine room pulled loose and that it was not reported to the Government. I don't know whether that is true or not."

Mr. Davidson suggested that Underwood and McDonald be summoned to testify. Mr. McDonald is in Florida. Chairman Vinson said after he heard the other witnesses—the naval officers who made the investigation of the charges and Goodyear officials—he would decide whether to call the two men.

Mr. Davidson gave to the committee some pieces of duraluminum he said came from the Akron. Representative Woodruff (Republican), Michigan), insisted, however "that these samples were never in the ship," and Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, said:

"They were merely plates put together for tests outside the ship."

Mr. Vinson designated Mr. Woodruff and Representative Barton (Democrat), Missouri, to study the Justice Department's file on its investigation of sabotage charged against Paul F. Kassay, a worker on the Akron, last year.

Eckener Is Surprised.

Berlin, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, told the newspaper Mittag Zeitung today that he could not understand the campaign of criticism in the United States against the airship Akron, unless it was due to anti-aircraft faults.

The aeronautical expert, who has inspected the Akron and gained an excellent impression, admitted it was heavier than the original specifications, but contended this was not a technical fault because it was caused by strengthening parts in accordance with the wishes of the Navy Department.

Franco-American Duty Protest.

Paris, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The board of directors of the American Chamber of Commerce voted today to protest formally to Premier Laval and the ministry of commerce next week regarding the quota regulations on the importation of American-made goods.

CONGRESS PUSHES BILLS TO AID LABOR

Six-Hour Day for Rail Workers and Restriction of Injunctions Weighed.

(Associated Press.)

Two measures of prime importance to labor—one to restrict the use of injunctions and the other to bring about an investigation of the six-hour day for railway employes—moved forward with rapid strides yesterday in Congress.

The Norris anti-injunction bill, evolved after more than two years of study, was reported favorably to the Senate after receiving an 11 to 5 vote in the judiciary committee. Among other things, it outlaws the "yellow dog" contract forbidding employes to join labor unions.

Meanwhile, the House adopted a resolution by Representative Crosser (Democrat), Ohio, calling for an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the feasibility of a six-hour day for railroad labor. A similar resolution by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, passed the Senate.

To reach an agreement, House sponsors of the legislation said they would ask Couzens to substitute the House measure for his. It carried in the House by 191 to 1—Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, voting in opposition on the ground it was legislation for an "already privileged class."

Representative Parker, of New York, ranking Republican on the interstate commerce committee, told the House:

"We're going to be faced with a bill for a six-hour day in the next Congress if not before. Let's get the facts."

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said: "Machinery has made an eight-hour day impossible in this country." He urged a six-hour work day so all can "get the benefits of machinery."

The anti-injunction bill would provide for trial by jury in contempt cases not arising inside the courtroom and would permit those charged with contempt for outside attacks upon the court to demand trial by another judge.

Thus, if a judge cited a person for contempt for a newspaper article, the defendant could obtain trial before someone else.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who is sponsoring the legislation, said he would make an early attempt to get it before the Senate, but the opposition has asked time to file a minority report.

The bill would allow the granting of temporary or permanent injunctions in labor disputes only after hearing of evidence and upon the following stipulations:

"That unlawful acts have been committed and will be continued unless restrained;

"That substantial and irreparable injury to complainant's property will follow;

Copper Tariff Bill Put Before Senate

Douglas, of Arizona, Says Pauperism Confronts Producing States.

(Associated Press.)

A duty of 5 cents a pound on copper imports was asked in a resolution introduced yesterday by Representative Douglas (Democrat), Arizona. The resolution also would place compensatory duties on copper products.

Douglas said "this resolution is not offered to protect an industry, but to prevent the copper-producing States from being reduced to virtual pauperism." Arizona produces 45 per cent of the copper consumed in this country.

Douglas described the situation as an emergency, and said Utah, Nevada, Montana, Michigan, New Mexico, Tennessee and thirteen other States were dependent to some extent on the copper mining industry. Many American mines already have been forced to suspend their operations, and others, he said, are operating at "ruinous financial losses." For national defense purposes, he said, the domestic industry should be preserved.

DISORDER ATTENDS MINE UNION SESSION

One Delegate Ejected After Criticism of Policy of President Lewis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27. (A.P.).—Scenes of disorder occurred in the United Mine Workers convention hall today when John Hindmarsh, delegate from Riverton, Ill., was ejected for refusal to yield the floor during a bitter attack on John L. Lewis, president, and other international officers.

Hindmarsh criticized Lewis and his associates for alleged failure to adopt an aggressive organization policy among nonunion miners in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The Illinois delegate was finally ruled out of order by the presiding officer. He refused to take his seat and his ejection was ordered. Companions came to his aid when the sergeant-at-arms sought to lead him from the hall. Several fist fights started and police were called in to restore order.

Hundreds of resolutions sent in by local unions from all parts of the country, especially those in Illinois, and covering a wide range of subjects were presented.

They were referred to various standing committees. Many of the resolutions urged that the salaries of officers be reduced and the appointive powers of President Lewis be limited or revoked. On a test of strength yesterday, however, the administration forces appeared to have a good majority.

The report of the auditors for the year ending December 1, 1931, gave total expenditures of the international union as $1,065,991.04 and total income $1,018,554.74. The balance on hand was $563,559.07. Total loans to various districts of the union totaled $292,304.76.

Resolutions submitted recommended repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution, recognition of Russia, independence for the Philippines and passage of old-age pension and insurance laws.

ANDREW W. MELLON.

ANDREW W. MELLON, whose home was in Pittsburgh, Pa., but whose word was financial law as far beyond Pittsburgh as may be, flashed into the public consciousness with the suddenness of a brilliant and unexpected meteor.

As Mr. Coolidge succeeded Mr. Harding and Mr. Hoover succeeded Mr. Coolidge, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon assumed the proportions of a legendary figure clothed with the sanctity of an oracle. The depression smote him hip and thigh, and opponents gathered courage to tug at the garments of god-ship with which he had been clothed in the popular mind to show his clay feet. History will write the final stamp on the administration of Mr. Mellon as head of the Treasury—a job he said he wasn't capable of filling adequately when President Harding summoned him to the task.

If a person who knew only Mr. Mellon's reputation were taken without warning into the conferences the secretary holds with newspaper reporters, he probably would leave wondering. He would see a man whose fragility might be likened to the examples of the world's art the Secretary collects; he would see a man sunk down and leaning back in his swivel chair, as if the normal sized chair were an enormous thing in the depths of which refuge might be found; long artistic fingers holding a cheroot, blue-gray eyes which now and then light with humor; and hear a voice so mild that he would wonder if ever it could become commanding and harsh.

One of the richest men in the world, a financial figure of historic importance, Mr. Mellon is the antithesis of the cartoonist's picturization of the rich man. The casual visitor would wonder about the secret of the man's power.

Mr. Mellon was born in Pittsburgh on March 24, 1855. He followed down the path marked by his father and developed the Mellon banking business. As he accumulated wealth he also accumulated a collection of the art treasures of the world. The price which could be had for any one of dozens of his art treasures would be enough to supply the needs of an ordinary family for life.

Despite the suddenness with which he burst on the consciousness of the general public as a political figure when he took over the job of Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon was no tyro in politics. The so-called Mellon political machine was as efficient as was its dictator's business machine.

SALVADOR'S REBELS SLAY CITY OFFICIALS

Five Killed on Death List of Mayors and Others in Captured Towns.

San Salvador Jan. 27 (A.P.).—City officials were the targets in the recent uprising in Salvador, attributed to Communists, it was learned today, and five were slain among eight known to have been killed by rebels.

Communist leaders were said, in private quarters, to have instructed their followers to shoot the same four officials in each town—the mayor, municipal secretary, commandant and local telegraph operator.

All four were killed at Colon, and the mayor of Juayua was assassinated, as well as a former mayor. Two other men were slain at Colon and the wife of one was wounded.

Dwellings were robbed and burned in Juaya. The rebels remained only a few hours in Sonzacate, Izalco, Nuhuizalco, Tabuco and other places before they were chased off by federal troops, who turned machine guns on them. The rebel bands dwindled off into various villages, but finally were beaten and dispersed.

Blue Law Officers Defy Business Men

Miami Leaders Aroused as Two Officials Are Rigid on Closing Edict.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Determination of two Dade County officials to enforce State "blue laws," passed in 1832 and in 1879, by closing all amusements and many business institutions in Miami on Sunday, withstood a barrage of pooh-poohs hurled by business men today.

The officials, Sheriff M. H. Lehman and County Solicitor Fred Pine, stuck firmly to their statement that operators of movies, golf courses, filling stations, street cars, taxicabs, soda fountains, and the like would be arrested if their businesses were conducted between midnight Saturday and midnight Sunday. The officers attributed their action to widespread demand for enforcement of all laws during the winter tourist season.

Pine said "opinionated persons and some daily and weekly newspapers" have forced law enforcement officers to a showdown on the question of a closed county or a liberal government. "And the county will be closed," he added.

On the other hand, a number of motion picture theater operators announced their houses will be open on Sunday in accordance with custom.

JUDGE IN FREDERICK ORDERS BANK'S DATA

Action Held Most Important Step in Reorganization of Central Trust.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 27.—Chief Judge Hammond Urner passed an order in circuit court today requiring George W. Page Maryland State bank examiner and receiver for the closed Central Trust Co., to cooperate and give access to books, records and papers to an appraisal committee, in the reorganization of the bank. The company and its eleven branch banks, with resources of $18,000,000, closed their doors September 3, and Mr. Page was appointed to liquidate the assets.

Several weeks ago about 1,000 depositors, representing more than $4,000,000, at a meeting in the courthouse, adopted a plan prepared by well known corporation attorneys of Baltimore to reorgnaize. A committee of 21 persons, including John McGill, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, and J. A. Eason, Washington, representing large deposits, was appointed to proceed with reorganization. At a recent meeting here the committee appointed appraisers to revalue the assets of the company and take such steps necessary to organize a new bank. The order of the court granting the appraisers access to the books and records is regarded as the most important move toward the reorganization, which provides for a capital of $375,000 and surplus of $125,000, at the start.

Announcement was made today that a committee to obtain the consent of the 26,000 depositors to the reorganization plan will be appointed in a few days.

Minnesota Farmers Claim Prosperity Lead in Nation

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—A Minneapolis farm editor made an Eastern chamber of commerce dinner audience sit up and listen with respectful and envious attention tonight, with his striking story of present prosperity in rural Minnesota.

With facts and figures, Charles F Collisson, farm editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, substantiated his statement that Minnesota farmers are 61 per cent better off than they were in 1911. The rest of the Nation's farmers are 1.03 per cent in the red, he said.

"We are here to report to you a plan, a 10-year plan," he told the Queensborough Chamber of Commerce in the Commodore Hotel, "laid down in 1921, with a decade of proved and accredited success behind it."

The plan had this simple outline, when it was proposed by F. E. Murphy, Minneapolis publisher, in 1921:

Find out how the few successful farmers in every community manage to make their profits.

Give wide publicity to these methods for benefit of all.

Get business men to lend help in organizing for improvement.

Provide money for ambitious farmers to change from wrong to right kind of farming.

Then reap the profits.

GRANT IRKS GRIFFIN BY VIEWS ON ALIENS

Opinion Is Expressed Colonel Was "Humbugged" Into Opposing Bill.

Appearance of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, District Director of Public Buildings and Parks, in opposition to the Griffin bill to prevent debarring aliens from citizenship because of views against bearing arms aroused the ire of the bill's author yesterday.

Representative Anthony J. Griffin (Democrat), of New York, asserted that he thought Col. Grant was "humbugged" into appearing against the measure. The Army officer was reminded by the legislator that his grandfather, President Grant, was one of the first to propose international arbitration of disputes.

Just as Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries was about to read excerpts from a pamphlet, which he declared were the "vilest I have ever read," a motion to adjourn closed the session of the House immigration committee, which was granting hearings on the bill.

The general was giving testimony that the pacifist members of the Civil Liberties Union had influenced the directorate of the Federal Council of Churches to expressions "tainted with Communistic propaganda."

The pamphlet which Fries had in mind and from which he was prepared to read was entitled, "Young Peoples Relationship," prepared by the conference on preparation for marriage and homemaking instituted by the Federal Council of Churches.

He told the representatives that he would "blush with shame" to read it but he was about to quote some sample portions when Representative Millard (Republican), of New York, made an adjournment plea. Among the headings of the booklet was "light petting and heavy petting—where to draw the line."

Fries left the stand when the motion was pressed, but another witness was heard before the recess. He named the Methodist Federation for Social Service as a pacificist organization. He believes that religious views against war should debar aliens from citizenship.

Other opposers of the bill were Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the D. A. R., and Mrs. Newbold N. Potts, of the National Patriotic Council. Further opposition was expressed in the reading of two resolutions in which 76 patriotic groups had concurred.

The first of these opposed any modification of laws to allow an alien to get citizenship "with any qualification to his loyalty and duty to serve in the Nation's armed forces in case of war," and the second urged enactment of legislation to make it impossible to grant citizenship to aliens with "any reservations to the obligation to bear arms."

Politicians Puzzled By Stand of Baker

Desertion of League of Nations Issue Alters Democratic Status.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker's unexpected disavowal of the League of Nations as a Democratic campaign issue bobbed up today in the 1932 presidential puzzle as a subject of speculation comparable to the silence of Alfred E. Smith and the announced candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Baker's statement, which also predicted eventual league membership for the United States, was made the basis and varied and widespread newspaper comment on his availability and relative chances for the Democratic nomination. When he sailed for a Mexican vacation yesterday the former Secretary of War said he was not a candidate.

Mystery surrounding the intentions of Mr. Smith, Democratic standard-bearer in 1928, was intensified by the announcement of his office that he did not intend to visit Albany this month or next. Earlier word had come from the State capitol that Mr. Smith was expected to see Gov. Roosevelt there about February 12. The announcement from the Smith office was received by the governor in silence.

Old Family Doctor Held Vital Need in Speed Age

By JOHN J. DALY

IN the hustle and bustle of modern life, man steps along so fast he can not take care of his own health. This is the finding of an eminent surgeon, who sees the return of the old family physician.

Preventive medicine is the key to an increased span of life. The only way the overtaxed business man, working full speed ahead, can conserve his health resources is to hire somebody to do it for him. This is what the surgeon says.

Not only is the business man busy, but so is his wife, and his sons and his daughter, and his sisters and his couins and his aunts. In their various activities they are all busy as so many bird dogs.

In this country, there is little or no time for anything else but the business of keeping busy, with one thing or another.

The business man is busy making money—for his wife and children to spend. They are so busy spending money that they make nervous wrecks of everybody, including the old man making more money than he needs.

Rounds of movies, the call of the club, the nervous tension of social life, shopping and sashaying, and the women of the Nation are ready for a rest cure.

* * * *

FAST stepping on the gas, running after the morning train and catching the 5:15 back from the office, darting after elevators and snatching at lunches wears the business man down to a frazzle. Even the school children, skipping classes and catching up with the social whirl, are dizzy from their efforts.

So the old family doctor must come back to save America.

The twentieth century strain is too much. A man ages in the wood, attains gray hairs and a State of overripe maturity—not to mention embonpoint—in his prime. Modern man steps out faster than all other men of all other centuries. The American man, in particular, goes so fast he can not keep up with himself. When he comes back, the big problem of the family physician will be to stop his patient long enough to feel his pulse.

In this mad dash down the corridor of time, the business man rushes past all the health warnings. Finally, one day he is jacked up in bed with an ice-pack on his head, the victim of nervous prostration.

This is what the old family doctor must prevent.

* * * *

WHEN the old order returneth the family physician will put on the brakes. He will call around in the morning, before the getaway, put the business man on the scales and tip him off to what's what and why.

In this manner it is hoped to bring about the fulfillment of David's vision in the nineteenth Psalm. It means the addition of twelve years to the span of life, the average now being somewhere around 48 years for the American business man racing against downtown transportation—and two years longer if he is not a golf fiend, and a patron of the nineteenth hole.

When the old family doctor hangs out his sign again, the national query each morning will be, "Doctor, how's my health?"

If everything is jake, as the saying goes, the doctor will say: "Okey, Big Boy, go to work."

And the mad dash will begin, all over again.

Mystery Woman Forces Rockefeller From Links

Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—A woman who persists in trying to interview John D. Rockefeller here, or a cold,—no one seemed to know which—,forced the aged philanthropist today to abandon his heretofore religiously kept daily round of golf.

Not in months has he missed his leisurely, eight-hole round. He did not show up at the Ormond Beach course, however, and one of his personal guards said:

"I don't know what the woman wants. She comes to the house and to the golf course, at different times, and announces she wants an interview. She declines to say just what she wants to see him about. To me she appears unbalanced. The police last night had to bring her to the house where she is boarding."

U. S. HELP FOR IDLE DEMANDED BY GREEN

Says Other Resources Are Inadequate to Relieve 8,000,000 Jobless.

(Associated Press.)

An urgent call for direct Federal aid to the unemployed was sounded last night by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. He estimated the number out of work at 8,300,000.

"Only one agency—the Federal Government—can meet the relief problem now that all other resources have been proved inadequate," he said in a formal statement. "By taxation it can distribute the burden of this year where it can be borne with least injury to our citizenship."

Green said a conservative estimate placed the probable average unemployed throughout 1932 at between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 and that between $3,500,000,000 and $5,700,000,000 will be necessary to feed, clothe and house those out of work "even at bare subsistence levels."

Meanwhile, plans went forward in both branches of Congress for early action on the administration-opposed La Follette-Costigan measure to appropriate $375,000,000 from the Federal Treasury for relief work.

Senator La Follette awaited a chance to bring up the measure for a Senate vote. Democrats have asked, however, that it go over until Monday to give them opportunity to study the bill. There are reports they are contemplating offering a substitute providing for loans to States to meet unemployment needs.

In the House, the labor committee directed a subcommittee headed by Representative Jacobsen (Democrat), Iowa, to begin hearings today on the La Follette-Costigan bill. The Huddleston bill to appropriate $100,000,000 for relief also will be considered.

Green said the number out of work had been rising rapidly since October and that, although January and February are usually peak months of unemployment, "relief needs will continue at unprecedented levels throughout 1932."

JUDD PARENTS TELL OF INSANITY STREAK

Testify "Trunk Slayer" Had Shown Signs of Mental Instability.

Courthouse, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Striving to save their daughter from the gallows, the aged parents of Winnie Ruth Judd, accused trunk slayer, testified in her murder trial today of a strain of insanity in the family and of signs of mental instability in the defendant.

Defense counsel informed the court they purposed to establish that Mrs. Judd was insane on October 16, 1931, the day she is alleged to have killed Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, the women whose bodies were shipped to Los Angeles in trunks.

The trial was interrupted by the illness of a juror during the afternoon. Adjournment was taken until tomorrow afternoon.

As the session ended Mrs. Mary Miller, 60, a spectator, fainted. Sheriff's deputies had to battle through an excited crowd to take her from the courtroom.

Produce Depositions.

Herman Lewkowitz and Paul Schenck, defense counsel, produced depositions from Eastern relatives of Mrs. Judd to corroborate testimony the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, the aged parents, gave.

Mrs. Judd struggled to hold back tears when her father, a retired Indiana minister, told of his knowledge of insanity of his father's mother, his father's brother, his sister's son, of two second cousins of Winnie Ruth, and of "queerness" on the part of another cousin.

His wife told of the mental disorders of the two second cousins of her daughter.

Both parents related idiosyncracies of Winnie Judd's childhood, including a fondness for dolls, and of her disregard of the difference between right and wrong "when she was mad."

Untrue Statements.

Each testified their daughter's statements regarding her possession of a child, as told by previous witnesses, were untrue so far as they knew.

"She has had no child," said Mr. McKinnell, "but when she was crying once when I visited her in the jail here, she said 'they are trying to take my baby away from me!'"

Mrs. Judd at that time was in the county jail awaiting trial for murder.

Aside from this display of what he said was fancied grief, the father expressed himself as "amazed" at his daughter's attitude.

"I can not," he said, "understand her."

As he left the witness stand and passed within arm's reach of Mrs. Judd's chair, he smiled at her.

She was busy contemplating the toe of her shoe, a puckered frown between her eyes, and did not see it. The accused woman appeared unable to meet her father's frequent gentle glances thoughout his testimony. She blinked rapidly several times to force back welling tears.

Statement by Minister.

Depositions presented by the defense, with accompanying cross-interrogatories by the State, included statements from the Rev. A. F. Niswonger, of St. Francisville, Ill., great uncle of Winnie Judd; Dora Peters, of Indianapolis, a second cousin; and Newell Wilson, of Toledo, Ill., great uncle. They told of their knowledge of the death of George Wilson, one of Mrs. Judd's second cousins, in an insane asylum.

Touching upon Winnie Ruth's two-day disappearance in her nightclothes, as testified by her father and mother, Mr. Niswonger said she charged "abductors whipped her, but I observed scratches on her lower limbs, indicating she had been wading through bushes, rather than whipped. It is the opinion of this deponent she was laboring under hallucinations."

DAVIS TO QUIT DRYS, WIDE REPORT SAYS

tial, to any man who aspires to office in Pennsylvania.

According to three of the Philadelphia newspapers, Davis' espousal of the wet cause will be enough to insure him of the support of the Vare machine. Vare, they say, will pass out the word that Davis is his man.

However, influential politicians who have come here from Pennsylvania say that Davis is to be put on the political toboggan regardless of what he does or does not do about prohibition.

Alternative Candidates.

But these politicians may be overlooking one important fact, and that is that Jim Davis has a strong appeal for a large section of the populace.

If Davis is rejected by Boss Vare, the prospect is that the organization candidate will be either Representative Beck or State Senator John J. McClure, who is a power in Delaware County, which adjoins Philadelphia.

The Mellon machine in Pittsburgh has little sympathy for Davis. That particular machine is concerned only about Senator David A. Reed, who comes up for reelection two years next November.

Pinchot May Be Factor.

Both Reed and Davis are from Pittsburgh. The voters in eastern Pennsylvania—which means those in Philadelphia, Chester and thereabouts—do not like the idea of having both senators come from the western side. Hence the concern of the Reed supporters as they look forward to 1934.

Complicating the whole senatorial situation is the figure of Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Right now he is simply lying back, awaiting developments. If he thinks he has any chance at all, he may jump into the senatorial fight himself.

If there is a three-man race, it is concded he would have a good chance to win. In fact, it is conceded he might have an outside chance in a two-man race.

COERCION CHARGED IN FORTESCUE CASE

Defense Counsel Files Plea to Quash Indictment; Hearing Tomorrow.

Honolulu, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Charging judicial coercion was used to obtain the indictment of Mrs. Granville Fortesque and three Navy men for the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, alleged woman attacker, defense attorneys filed a motion today to quash the second degree murder accusation.

The indictment was returned yesterday only after Circuit Judge A. M. Cristy had refused to accept one grand jury report and had confronted the inquisitorial body with a reference to anarchy. The jury supposedly had attempted to return a "no bill" in the lynching case.

Dissolution of the indictment was asked on the ground it was not the voluntary act of the grand jurors.

Predictions were made here that the three Navy men would not be tried in civil court because of a "gentlemen's agreement" between Honolulu and naval authorities giving the Navy jurisdiction of personnel when alleged crimes do not call for capital punishment. The maximum sentence for second degree murder is twenty years to life imprisonment.

Refuse to Comment.

Navy officials would not comment for publication on the prediction of a naval trial. It was believed, however, that Gov. Lawrence Judd and Barry S. Ulrich, special prosecutor, had conferred on the matter.

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling declined to comment on his report to Washington that influence was used on the grand jury to obtain the indictment. Robert W. Shingle, president of the territorial senate, said he had heard on good authority that no indictment would have been returned had not Judge Cristy addressed the jury.

It was reported that the second degree indictment was a compromise, made on the assumption the principals thus would not be tried in civil courts.

Arraignment of the quartet was set for 9 a. m. Friday and Judge Cristy denied them freedom of the Navy Yard at Pearl Harbor, where they are held, without furnishing bond.

Frank E. Thompson, defense counsel, announced no application for bail would be made as the defense was "somewhat apprehensive" because "the situation in Honolulu is rather tense."

Barry S. Ulrich, special prosecutor in the case, announced his opposition to allowing the accused four the freedom of the Navy Yard without bond.

Thompson said two of the accused four were entirely without funds. Besides Mrs. Fortescue the defendants are Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord. Kahahawai was one of five suspected attackers of Mrs. Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue.

The defense attorney said Mrs. Fortescue was dependent upon a patrimony of approximately $2,000 a year and the pay of her husband, retired Army officer, amounting to $4,000 a year.

Temporary Chief Named.

Charles F. Weeber, 39, who retired from the Army in 1921 as chief clerk, was named temporary chief of police of Honolulu today by the newly created police commission. The commission indicated it had been unable to find a man suitable for permanent chief.

Weeber was born and educated in Harrisburg, Pa., the son of William McK. Weeber.

Kahahawai's codefendants in the attack case, who voluntarily went to jail for safety after the abduction and slaying of the former January 8, left the city prison on their own accord today after a consultation between their attorneys and police. The four, Henry Chang, Ben Ahakeulo, David Takai and Horace Ida, said they got tired of living in jail. They are under bond pending retrial of the attack case.

The quash motion asserted Judge Cristy had refused to accept a report of the grand jury last Friday in which "no bills" against the defendants were voted.

Takoma Chamber Asks Gas Rate Cut

Reelects G. W. Bonnette as President and Urges Detour Change.

The Maryland Public Service Commission was asked to order a reduction in rates of the Washington Gas Light Co. of Montgomery County last night in a resolution adopted by the Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce at an annual meeting for the election of officers. The meeting was held at the Takoma Inn Cafe.

The resolution on gas rates was taken in event rates for gas are reduced in Washington. The chamber also disapproved of any proposal to cut the pay of Government workers and addressed a resolution to the Maryland Roads Commission asking that the detour around construction work at the Carroll avenue bridge start at Carroll and Sligo avenues, instead of Carroll and Park avenues. Gordon W. Bonnette was reelected president. Other officers named are O. W. Youngblood, vice president; John W. Cossman, secretary; J. Milton Derrick, treasurer, and H. H. Votaw, Dr. J. Walter Dudley, John Meiklejohn, board of directors. Forty-one new members were brought in by the recent drive.

Respirator Goal Lacks Only $100

Plans for Conference Are Announced to Rotary Club at Luncheon.

Only $100 is needed to complete the $2,000 fund to purchase a respirator machine for Children's Hospital, urgently required by that institution, it was announced yesterday by S. Percy Thompson, president of the Rotary Club, at its weekly luncheon at the Willard Hotel.

In a brief talk on the automobile industry by Chester H. Warrington, he said sales throughout the country showed a decrease of 30 per cent in 1931.

The Rev. C. T. Warner introduced a new member, N. Landon Burchell, representing the retail grocery business. Roland Whitehurst, acting secretary, announced the Rotary bowling team would compete tonight with a team of the Kiwanis Club for first place in the Interclub League. Plans for the thirty-fourth District conference of Rotary international to be held in Washington, were announced by George Whitewell. Robert B. Swope told of plans for the ladies' night party at the Congressional Country Club, February 8.

Youth Is Indicted In Keller Murder

Grand Jury at Winchester Holds Companion as Material Witness.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Lawrence Fleet, Baltimore youth, was indicted for the murder of William F. Keller, hardware merchant, by a special grand jury sitting here today.

John C. Wallace, jr., also of Baltimore, and a companion of Fleet, was held as a material witness after the grand jury returned "not a true bill."

Fleet, who has admitted slaying the Baltimore merchant when he returned home from his store on the night of January 16, has not retained counsel. He told officers when he attempted to rob Keller the merchant pulled him inside the house. When Joseph Jones, Keller's nephew, ran down the stairway after hearing the scuffle in the hall, Fleet said he feared he was cornered. He fired fatally wounding the merchant.

Fleet said Wallace had no part in planning or executing the holdup and asked authorities to dismiss charges against him. Wallace, in a sworn statement, however, said he came from Baltimore with Fleet, and that the latter pointed out Keller as the man he intended to rob.

Mrs. Gann Speaks Today in Topeka

Vice President's Sister Returns to Home City on Hoover Tour.

Topeka, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, came back to her old home town today for a round of social functions and another campaign speech tomorrow in behalf of President Hoover.

The official hostess of the Vice President is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Rome Colvin, at the old Curtis red brick house on Topeka boulevard.

Mrs. Gann was enthusiastic about the reception given her yesterday in Omaha, where she addressed a rally of Republicans.

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS CHANGE TARIFF BILL

Harrison Has Amendments to House Measure for Senate to Vote On.

(United Press.)

Democratic fiscal leaders, in preparation for a battle on the floor of the Senate, yesterday drastically revised the tariff revision bill passed by the Democratic House.

The bill as passed by the House directs the President to call an international tariff conference, transfers from the White House to Congress the veto on rate changes as proposed by the tariff commission, and creates a "consumers' counsel" who would make arguments before the Tariff Commission on behalf of the consumers.

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, tariff expert, formally introduced these amendments to the bill:

1. Requesting the President to negotiate recriprocal foreign trade agreements "under a policy of mutual tariff concessions."

2. Changing the Hawley-Smoot law's provision for Tariff Commission investigations of costs of production in the United States and abroad (used in changing tariff rates), so that changes would be based only on industrial plants which "are economically located and efficiently operated."

Harrison is counting upon the Western Independents, who hold the balance of power in the Senate, to support his measure and insure its approval by both the committee and the Senate. This will put the measure up to President Hoover, who is expected to veto it.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and Robert M. La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, led the fight in the months-long Hawley-Smoot debate which nearly wrote into the law the congressional rate-veto and the "consumers' counsel" plan which the Democrats are promoting in this bill.

LEAGUE CAN'T FIND POLICY ON FAR EAST

Council Again Balked in Reconciling Divergent Opinions.

Geneva, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The council of the League of Nations labored during a three-hour session today to produce a declaration of policy in the Sino-Japanese conflict, but failed to reconcile the conflicting views of its enemies.

The deliberations were held in private and only twelve members of the council attended, the Chinese and Japanese delegates being excluded. They will be resumed tomorrow behind closed doors after a brief public sitting devoted to other matters.

The council is attempting to draft a resolution which will announce its devotion to the principles of the league covenant and the Kellogg pact, and will apply that announcement to the present crisis in the Shanghai area.

One group, led by Viscount Cecil, of Chelwood, has advocated that this declaration be similar to the recent note sent to Japan and China by the United States. Another group, said to be championed by Foreign Minister Marinkovitch, of Jugoslavia, has contended that the military methods of Japan were legal and proper. Competent sources reported that M. Marinkovitch, in defending the Japanese, repeatedly spoke of Bulgarian raiders and their alleged illegal activities in Jugoslav territory.

It was reported that Chairman Joseph Paul-Boncour and the British, German and Italian members of the council, who conferred last night with Naotake Sato, found the Japanese representative to be in no yielding mood.

M. Sato virtually let the diplomats of the great powers know that Japan would tolerate no interference with the military measures in the Shanghai area, it was said.

U. S. AND BRITAIN MAY JOIN TO BOYCOTT JAPANESE LOANS

patches last night indicated very definitely that a maneuver of major importance is already under way directed against Chinese resistance in Shanghai, as well as guerrilla outcroppings of Chinese bandits in isolated regions of Manchuria.

Attempts will also be made both by the United States and Great Britain and the League of Nations to persuade France to join in the credit embargo against Japan as a means of restraining her warlike maneuvers in the Far East.

(Associated Press.)

While both the United States and Great Britain gave "serious consideration" to the controversy at Shanghai, the Chinese authorities of that important port prepared the way yesterday for capitulation to Tokyo's ultimatum that anti-Japanese agitation be stamped out.

Manila reported that ships of the United States Asiatic fleet were prepared to sail for Shanghai.

Chinese sources in Shanghai said the municipal government had ordered that the National Savlation Society be closed. The society was one of the leaders in the boycott that has cost the Japanese heavily in the Shanghai market and throughout China.

Another Ultimatum.

This order was decided on after the Japanese had served another ultimatum calling for a satisfactory answer by 6 o'clock tonight.

British and American marines in Shanghai put up barbed wire barricades along the international settlement boundaries and prepared to take over the defenses of the area.

Tokyo reported that if the Shanghai controversy turned out satisfactorily Japan might demand that anti-Japanese societies be suppressed throughout China. An economic blockade of Shanghai was envisaged as a possible means of forcing China's hand.

Meanwhile pillaging Chinese troops turned Harbin, Manchuria, into a city of sorrow. Eighteen Japanese and Koreans were killed, Japanese buildings were wrecked, and the homes of Japanese and Korean residents were looted.

A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch said Japanese troops were being sent from Changchun to Harbin to protect Japanese lives and property. An Exchange Telegraph Agency dispatch from Harbin said a Japanese airplane was shot down and the pilots shot by a Chinese cavalry patrol.

Cyril Rumor Denied.

Reports that the former Archduke Cyril of Russia was acknowledged as their leader by white Russians seeking to establish an independent Manchurian state were met by statements from the archduke's friends in Paris that he wasn't interested.

The League of Nations Council continued its labors on the Manchurian problem, but failed to reconcile the conflicting views of its members.

Shanghai, Thursday, Jan. 28 (A.P.). The Chinese authorities of Shanghai prepared the way today for capitulation to the Japanese ultimatum that they suppress anti-Japanese agitators and boycotters or face action by the 24 ships of war whose guns are trained on the city from the Whangpo River.

Chinese sources said the municipal government had ordered the bureau of public safety to close the local branch of the National Salvation Society, one of the leaders in the boycott movement.

This decision was reached after new formal demands were made by Japan. Kuramatsu Murai, Japanese consul-general, handed another note to Mayor Wu Teh-Chen yesterday, giving him until 6 p. m. tonight to comply with the suppression order of the Tokyo government.

While the negotiations were going on 2,400 United States and British Marines prepared to take over the defenses of the international settlement and about 10,000 Chinese troops took battle stations against a possible Japanese attack.

Chinese dispatches from Manchuria told of sharp fighting between Japanese and Chinese in the southwestern part of the province. During the last few days, the dispatches said, 10,000 Chinese volunteers had clashed with three brigades of Japanese north of Tahushan and Kowpangtze. One Japanese airplane squadron participated in the fighting.

Harbin, Manchuria, Jan. 27 (A.P.). Eighteen persons were dead and fourteen were missing tonight after a day of terror in which soldiers of the army of Ting Chao plundered the homes of wealthy Japanese citizens, dragged Koreans off buses and killed them, and wrecked Japanese-owned buildings.

The marauders attacked the Japanese hospital in Puchiatien and cut off electric light wires, plunging the town into darkness. One section of the mob wrecked the plant of the Japanese newspaper Taihoky Shimpo.

Harbin was in such a terrifying state that the foreign consuls, including the American and British, held a meeting to determine what could be done.

Plunderers wandered through the city at will, centering their attacks on the houses of Japanese and Koreans outside the Japanese quarters.

Martial law was declared by the local authorities. Japanese and Korean residents were concentrated in the Japanese quarters, where their own police guarded them. The Rengo correspondent said the situation was "worse than hell."

Tokyo, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Japan's policy in the Shanghai crisis may be extended to a demand that anti-Japanese societies, held largely responsible for the damaging boycott on Japanese goods, must be broken up throughout China.

An authoritative spokesman revealed that whether this blanket move is made apparently depends on the outcome of the Shanghai controversy.

Gravely pondering the ugly potentialities of Japan's thrust at Shanghai, officials awaited word last night whether Great Britain would stand with the United States to end Japanese aggression in China.

With American and British marines already deployed across the pathway of a threatened attack on Shanghai's international settlement, the possibility of Anglo-American economic pressure on Japan or of a naval display in Chinese waters both had their place in the day's inconclusive discussions.

Of the situation at Shanghai, where United States Marines were erecting barbed wire defense bordering on the international settlement, officials would not speak. Nor was there any verification of rumors in Manila that warships there were being prepared to lift anchor for the Chinese port.

President Hoover gave heed to the possibe consequences of the situation. It was no secret London had been informed of the American belief that the problem at Shanghai is "serious."

Inquires of Views.

In apprising Great Britain of America's feeling of apprehension, Secretary Stimson inquired if the London government was prepared to suggest a method whereby American and British interests could best be protected.

Also, Ambassador de Martino of Italy was asked to determine the attitude of his government on the problem. For the first time on such an occasion in the Sino-Japanese troubles, so far as could be learned, the State Department did not consult the French Ambassador.

Secretary Stimson devoted most of his time yesterday to the troubled outlook. Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, visited him at his home for a conference.

Serious Consideration.

London, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The Sino-Japanese controversy at Shanghai received the serious consideration of the British government today following upon a conversation between Secretary of State Stimson and Sir Ronald C. Lindsay, British Ambassador at Washington.

The government was expetted to send a reply to Col. Stimson through the ambassador. Whether the Secretary of State made definite proposals for dealing with the Shanghai situation was not revealed.

Lieut. Crist, of Capital, Is With Marines in China

Lieut. Raymond F. Christ, jr., of Washington, is with the Fourth Marines, one of the units which prepared yesterday to defend the international settlement in Shanghai. Lieut. Crist is son of the Commissioner of Naturalization of the Labor Department and Mrs. Crist, who live at 3025 Newark street.

The officer graduated from the Naval Academy two years ago and was ordered to China last March.

Gandhi's Aid Near Death As Cobra Invades Cell

Poona, India, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—L. B. Bhopatkar, a Nationalist leader confined to the Yeroda Jail near Mahatma Gandhi's quarters, faced death for ten minutes today while a big cobra reared and swayed before him within striking distance.

Bhopatkar was sitting on the floor reading when a jailer shouted through the door that the snake had slipped through the bars. He had nothing with which to protect himself except his bedding and the snake was between him and the bed. He sat without moving a muscle until the warden came with the cell keys, burst in and killed the snake with a club.

DEMOCRATIC HOPES BRANDED FRUITLESS

Former Congress Member Holds Voters Will Not Desert President.

"The Democrats are now engaging in their ancient and habitual pastime of counting chickens before they are hatched and chuckling over the imagined defeat of President Hoover," said T. W. Hukriede, former member of Congress from Warrenton, Mo., who is in Washington renewing old associations on Capitol Hill.

"As usual," continued the Missourian, "they are chasing rainbows, and I am here to tell you that Mr. Hoover is going to be his own successor. In the first place, while our country has not escaped the universal depression, this unhappy period is passing, so far as the United States is concerned, and the credit for the big revival of business will be given to the administration in power.

"Democrats Never Trusted."

"The American people never have evinced faith in the governing capacity of the Democrats and are afraid to trust them with the task of rehabilitation. This is a job that the President and his advisers are going to put through, and the humorous side of it is that, unable to promulgate any program of their own, the opposition is forced to a reluctant cooperation.

"On none of the important issues of the day is there any definite stand by the opposition; on the contrary, it is torn by factional strife, much of which is sectional in origin. The only real cohesive bond of union among the Democrats is based on their fervor to acquire spoils—to get the Republicans out and themselves in.

"This attitude is of such long standing that it has crystallized into a habit and the voters have a thorough understanding of it.

Denounces Calumny of Hoover.

"Finally, not the least of the factors that will make for Republican victory in November is that inherent quality in the character of the men and women of this Republic that demands justice and fair play. The calumny and falsehoods that have been aimed at the President have affronted the Nation, and the net result of all the malicious attacks is to strength n him. In the minds and hearts of a tremendous majority there is an ideal of justice and square dealing. The President has met and mastered this tremendous emergency. He is leading us out of the pit.

"The people are with him, as they were with Abraham Lincoln, and they will keep Hoover on the job."

STIMSON SENDS TO SENATE NOTES ON MANCHURIAN ROW

jected into the exchange of notes between Washington and Tokyo.

The publication of the notes at this time is believed to be sure to provoke a considerable reaction in Japan in view of the recent expansion of the zone of Japanese activity outside of Manchuria to Shanghai. None of the pertinent diplomatic exchanges was omitted and the parallel forces for peace moving in Washington and Geneva can be followed from the messages between the State Department and the league.

Several Made Public.

Several of the documents have already been made public either through the offices of the League of Nations or the governments involved, but a goodly portion of the notes, the most important of them, have not been made public before.

The day before Christmas the American Ambassador in Tokyo handed the following note to the Japanese foreign office:

"News dispatches and reports from a variety of official sources are to the effect that responsible Japanese authorities are seriously contemplating action in connection with the continued presence of the regular Chinese military forces at and south of Chinchow in Manchuria, measures which if followed through to their logical conclusion would in all probability lead to renewal of armed hostilities."

"In the presence of these reports, I feel called upon, as a part of friendship, again frankly to convey to the Japanese government expression of my apprehension.

No Evidence of Offensive.

"On the basis of reports made by military observers of several nationalities on the spot, including our regular American military attaches, I find no evidence that the Chinese have engaged in or are preparing for any offensive military movement."

The Secretary then reiterated his statement of December 10 in which he declared:

"The future efficacy of the resolution depends upon the good faith with which the pledge against renewed hostilities is carried out by both parties."

The incidents leading up to the capture of Tsitsihar, the Nonni River and the Chinchow operations are all treated in the diplomatic files sent to the Senate.

The operations which resulted in the capture of Tsitsihar are thus foreshadowed by the Secretary of State. He said in a telegram of October 10:

"Until recently we have been assured by the commitments made by the governments both of China and Japan, to the League of Nations, which were embodied in the resolution of the thirtieth of September. * * * I am however, much disturbed by later reports, especially of the last 48 hours, which indicate that these commitments are not being carried out by either government.

Danger to All Interests.

"I wish you would call upon the acting minister of foreign affairs at once and * * * impress upon him the dangers to all interests in China, which we feel will inevitably result unless the pacific policy thus agreed upon is observed and unless the Japanese and Chinese nations exercise at this time the utmost self restraint."

The longest despatch in point of view of actual words from the State Department included in the correspondence was dated November 5. This note was sent a few hours before the general advance of Japanese Gen. Honjo which resulted in the capture of the City of Tsitsihar and the route of the Chinese forces of Gen. Mah.

"From the information in its possession, my government can not escape the conclusion that in the efforts to protect the South Manchurian Railway and the lives and property of Japanese subjects against attack a situation has been created in Manchuria which gives Japan substantial control of Southern Manchuria and has, temporarily at least, destroyed the administrative integrity of China in this region. On this my government neither attributes motives nor passes judgment, but desires solely to point out the facts . . .

Evacuation Question.

"My government hopes that the Japanese government will find it possible to share the view of those nations that negotiations looking to the settlmeent of long standing issues between Japan and China ought not to be made a condition precedent to the evacuation of the occupied positions, and by so doing avail itself of the opportunity presented to refute conclusively any implication that exertion of military pressure was in any way intended to affect the process of arriving at a settlement of the points at issue."

The Japanese reply to this note pointed out the dangers that would follow a premature withdrawal of Japanese troops from the zone of danger and then went on:

"Such dangers would inevitably be involved in any premature withdrawal of the Japanese troops. In order to provide against these dangers, the Japanese government have been brought to the conclusion that candid recognition by an arrangement between Japan and China of certain fundamental principles, the substance of which has already been communicated to the American Government, is of supreme importance."

"The principles which have thus been formulated are no more than those that are generally observed in practice in dealings of organized peoples with one another."

Other diplomatic notes contained in the files bring up the correspondence to date, but they have in all cases been already published.

WIVES OF M-2 CREW WAIT AS HOPE WANES

Some Weep, Some Are Brave Through Long Hours of Rescue Work.

Weymouth, England, Jan. 27 (U.P.). The wives, mothers and sweethearts of three-score men trapped aboard the submarine M-2 waited along the dark and cheerless English coast tonight with dying hope that the search for the missing craft would be successful.

Some of them were frantic, fearful and without hope. Others waited in silence, dry-eyed and steady in the face of a crisis which every wife of a sea-going man must risk. Still others stormed the offices of naval headquarters, hysterically demanding information regarding the rescue efforts. Two young women whose husbands are aboard the M-2 collapsed.

At Weymouth, Chatham, Gosport, Portsmouth, Plymouth and Portland the women who were forced to believe that their relatives are trapped in an underwater grave were waiting for word from the admiralty which would give them new hope. But the only message they received was the assurance of naval officials that every possible measure was being taken and a brief message from the admiralty which said:

Admiralty's Terse Reply.

"I regret to inform you that your husband is missing and feared drowned."

Mrs. Thomas Morrow, whose husband was one of the few survivors of the submarine Poseidon disaster off the coast of China, was among those who waited. Morris had not been to sea for some time, but he went out on the M-2 when it sailed on its trip yesterday.

"A few days ago I wrote him that he should not go because I had a feeling something was going to happen," Mrs. Morris said at her home in Lewisham. "Naturally he had to go.

"When the Poseidon sank he jumped overboard and was rescued. At that time I was terribly worried about him because I received no message and he promised that if ever he was in another disaster and was rescued he would telegraph me immediately. He was due to leave the submarine service in a month."

At Gosport, Mrs. J. Turridge, wife of the radio operator on the M-2, said: "I have a feeling he will come back. If not, then the best part of me is gone and I have only our children to live for."

Reveals "Queer Dreams."

Mrs. Ernest Thomas, wife of another radio operator on the submarine, said she had "queer dreams last night" before she knew of the accident. Her husband sent her a letter yesterday saying he would be home Friday.

A stoker on the M-2, George Sharpe, lives at Portsmouth, where a son was born to his wife three days ago. Sharpe had not seen his son before starting out on the submarine yesterday.

Friends said the chief stoker, Lewis McDonald, had been "unusually sad and preoccupied" before the M-2 departed. He expressed fear that the ship might meet with an accident.

Most of the members of the M-2 crew attended a dance at Portland the night before the submarine went out on its last trip. The dance lasted until almost dawn and, after breakfast at the Sailors Home most of them went aboard the ship without having had any sleep.

OBJECTS LOCATED IN SEA SPUR HOPE FOR SUBMARINE RESCUE

wife of the top stoker, had a baby three days ago.

All day long there were the rumors which always arise at times like this. They raised hopes for a while, but all of them proved false.

Reports of Finding Denied.

Once it was reported that the submarine had been located in 17 fathoms, far enough away from the treacherous Portland current to make the salvage work fairly easy. One newspaper even said there had been tapping on the hull, but the admiralty office said there was no truth in it.

Then the word went around that a navy plane had spotted a large patch of oil on the water. It turned out to be only mud raised from the bottom by the drags.

The M-2 was supposed to be a good diver and she carried a small seaplane. Her communication devices were the last word, and it seemed ominous that with this equipment she was unable to signal to the surface craft.

From the air the surface fleet was a striking spectacle.

Rescue Work Rushed.

Through the maze the ships could be seen spread over an area of perhaps fifteen square miles. The M-2's sistership, bobbing among the tugs, looked like a toy. Some of the boats were anchored and others moved about slowly, dragging the bottom.

Occasionally a bright searchlight flashed in communication, and as long as the daylight lasted Navy planes soared about, sometimes high, sometimes dipping low at some dark blob they had seen in the water.

In the middle was a can buoy with a red and black pennant. It was believed to mark the spot where the M-2 went down. Two lighters stood by with lifting apparatus ready to go to work if the submarine was found.

Naval officials were at a loss to explain what happened to the M-2.

Lack of Signals Puzzles.

Something may have gone wrong with her machinery and the boat settled to the bottom for repairs. It was reasoned, however, that if the men were still alive there would have been signals.

There may have been an explosion or the vessel may have struck some submerged object, but in such circumstances there are usually telltale bubbles of oil on the surface.

If the men were alive, presumably one or more of them would have used the escape apparatus by means of which a man is shoved through a hatch and shot to the surface.

But perhaps the boat struck a submerged object and turned over, in which case the hatches would be jammed shut, though it would be possible to signal.

Ordinarily the air supply in a ship like the N-2 is enough to last 48 to 56 hours. That period will expire some time between 10:30 and 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, and until then there will be some faint hope that the crew is alive.

Chairman Describes Work Done Pending Formation of U. S. Corporation.

Chicago, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The half billion dollar national credit corporation formed last October to succor banks with frozen assets, will abandon its work as soon as the emergency reconstruction finance corporation is ready to function with its $2,000,000,000 fund.

George M. Reynolds, chairman of the group which raised $500,000,000 to rediscount the paper of harried banks, announced the job would be turned over to the newer agency, with four times as great assets and headed by another Chicago banker, Brig. Gen. Charles Gates Dawes.

The move would avoid duplication of effort nad overlapping of two agencies which had a mutual purpose, Reynolds said. His corporation would continue to make short term loans to relieve emergencies and stringencies in the banking situation until the larger group was ready to function.

750 Banks Were Assisted.

About 750 banks in 43 States had dipped into the corporation's till in the three months of its operation, Reynolds said. Approximately $435,000,000 was pledged by subscribing banks. Three demands were made on subscribing banks for 10 per cent of their pledges, bringing in $135,000,000.

About $150,000,000 was lent to needy banks, Reynolds said, most of it on 60 or 90 day notes. Some of it has been repaid. The corporation will probably liquidate within three months.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation would have advantages in that it could make loans for longer periods and on the promissory notes of banks, Reynolds said.

17 Failures Cause No Loss.

"Money is closer now than when our pool was organized," he said. "The banks have strong need of their liquid funds, we feel we can withdraw without hindering the purpose of thawing out credits."

Reynolds indicated the corporation would complete its work without expense even to the banks which subscribed its capital. It obtained the money at interest rates of about 5 per cent and lent it at 6 per cent.

The corporation lent money to 17 banks which failed but no loss was anticipated due to stanch collateral against which they were made.

ter's bill to expand national bank note circulation.

"In the present depression there has been no currency shortage, and although there has been a great increase in the currency outstanding, the Federal Reserve System has met the increase without strain," Mellon said. "I believe a change would be unwise as the national bank circulation is not elastic, as is the case with Federal Reserve notes, and is not immediately responsive to changing conditions."

Earlier in the day, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, came from the White House with the belief that the administration did favor his proposals to bring about "limited inflation" or "counter deflation." He wants the broadened power of the Federal Reserve to accept certain paper in times of emergency broadened.

While confirmation of the three directors of the reconstruction corporation is assured, there is going to be some opposition to both Couch and Jones.

The nominees will be brought up today for approval. The President is still searching the Northwest for the fourth member. He is looking for a lawyer. The man must be a Democrat and the White House is seeking Democratic aid in the selection.

It seems unlikely that a measure for relief of depositors of closed banks will get before the Senate until early next week. The urgency for this was lessened considerably when provision was made in the reconstruction corporation legislation to permit loans to insolvent banks up to $200,000,000.

The work of the National Credit Corporation in the banking emergency was praised yesterday by Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, who led the drive for the reconstruction finance corporation.

"The National Credit Corporation," he said, "was a volunteer organization of banks which agreed to put up a percentage of their deposits for the protection of the surviving members of the volunteer group at the suggestion of the President.

"The corporation functioned quickly and well and was instrumental in materially helping a great many situations, keeping several banks from closing. It was a courageous thing to do, and the situation would have been much worse today had it not acted."

new way and uses graphic language to describe the yesterdays of this Nation.

Once more contestants are warned not to copy the subject matter of their essays from books of reference or from source material. This habit is one which is easily detected by those engaged in sifting out the essays, and such essays are discarded automatically from being considered in the contest at all.

It is thought best also that essays will not be received cast in any form other than that of prose. Several ambitious contestants have endeavored to cast their thoughts of Washington in the form of poetry. Their efforts are praiseworthy, of course, but they do not fulfill the terms of the contest, which calls for essays of not more than 500 words in length. The dictionary declares that: "An essay is a literary composition, usually of no great length, on a particular subject." This is the definition The Post essay officials accept, and any essays entered should conform to this general description.

New essays received yesterday included those from Edna Magruder, age 15, 51 Dick street, Alexandria, Va.; Richard A. Perkins, age 12, 120 Varnum street northwest; Moses A. Parker, age 11, Vienna, Va.; Helen Rutler, age 16, Ballston, Va.; Harry Scott, age 14, 105 East Selby avenue, Alexandria, Va., and Margaret Anne Pate, Sidwells' Friends School.

The sample essay today was written by a 14-year-old boy and is notable for the number of facts expressed in comparatively few words.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.
by

"George Washington, first President of the United States, was born in Westmoreland County, Va., February 22, 1732. He was the son of Augustine Washington, a planter, and of Mary Ball Washington, his second wife. His ancestors belong to an old English family, traceable as far back as the thirteenth century.

"The province of Virginia offered but scanty opportunities for education. Reading, writing, arithmetic and some other branches of mathematics alone were within the reach of Washington. It is said that he was a diligent student, but that his passion for active sports and military exercise was displayed at a very early age. Another tradition states that, while he was at school, his reputation for truth and judgment was so well established that his fellow pupils were accustomed to make him the arbiter of their disputes, seldom failing to be satisfied with his decision.

"After leaving school in the autumn preceding his sixteenth birthday, he went to live with his brother, Lawrence, at Mount Vernon. There he became acquainted with the Fairfax family, from whom he obtained employment as a surveyor of large tracts of territory in the valley of the Allegheny Mountains.

"Washington entered the military service in 1751. He entered into his duties with zeal and alacrity and applied himself to the study of tactics.

"After the outbreak of the French and Indian War, Washington made himself so prominent a figure by his brave but unsuccessful defense of Fort Necessity in 1754 that he was commissioned commander-in-chief of all the Virginia forces in 1755. The war in Virginia was soon at an end. Washington resigned his post, married Mrs. Martha Custis in 1759 and settled at Mount Vernon, Va. Washington was a member of the Episcopal Church. Washington left the Presidency in 1797 and resumed his life as a planter. Of all great men in history, Washington was perhaps the most invariably judicious and evenly poised.

"He died on December 14, 1799. His remains were laid in a private vault at Mount Vernon, where his tomb has since been converted into a veritable shrine for all patriotic Americans."

Among the applications received for Washington booklets yesterday furnished to contestants by The Washington Post through the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, were the following from W. F. Crosley, jr., 1722 Q street northwest; Margaret Grant, 4218 Thirteenth street northeast; William A. Beal, 1852 Park road northwest; Elizabeth Johnson, 117 Forty-ninth street northeast; Agnes Shapter, 2303 M street northwest; Ruth G. Brawner, 1473 Newton street northwest; Dorothy M. Wynn, 1407 C street southeast; Mary M. Slappey, 12 Boyd avenue, Takoma Park; Kathleen Crawfey, 3934 New Hampshire avenue northwest; Margaret Bargeron, 4311 Elm street, Chevy Chase, Md.; Irving Scherlis, 3722 Nineteenth street northwest; Betsy Winter, the Kenesaw Apartments; Helen M. Krug, 1225 Jackson street northeast; Robert P. Burruss, the Savoy; Florence K. Gillette, 4630 Thirtieth street northwest; John Wells, 249 Tennessee avenue northeast; Thomas F. Joyce, jr., Quarters 701, Quantico, Va., and William C. Fielding, 216 Baltimore avenue, Takoma Park.

STORIES IN BRAILLE WILL BE SENT ABROAD.

The Braille division of the children's department of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, which is transcribing into Braille stories from the life of Washington for the benefit of blind children, is planning to use an international exchange list with London and Paris, in order that blind children in those cities may also learn about America's foremost hero.

There are at present 36 secular English magazines which are published in embossed print. It is the plan of the Braille division of the commission to use these magazines in disseminating knowledge about plans of the coming celebration honoring the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

ICE CREAM INVENTED BY WASHINGTON? YES, ASSERTS COMMISSION.

When was the first ice cream made and who was the inventor of this now indispensable hot weather American dish

It as been generally accepted that Dolly Madison, the charming fourth First Lady of the Land, was the first to invent and prepare this wholly delectable dessert. But now, the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission comes forward with the suggestion that George Washington in all probability made ice cream at Mount Vernon at least 30 years before Dolly Madison is supposed to have prepared it for the first time.

Nor is this claim an idle one, for Washington's own words bear it out. In his cash memorandum book he wrote, May 17, 1784, "By (for) a cream machine for ice 1.13.4." This would indicate that the first President was perhaps first, in America at least, in some things not connected with war or statesmanship.

It has been said by some historians that Thomas Jefferson, too, made ice cream, but not until after he had returned from France in 1789. It seems that Washington's first Secretary of State became acquainted with the dish in Paris and that he brought from there some recipes for making it. But that was five years after Washington paid more than $5 for a "cream machine for ice."

Was Washington's ice cream the first in America? More than likely it was. The bicentennial commission at any rate is willing to give Washington credit for it until better proof is forthcoming in favor of some one else.

POPE SEEKS BLAME FOR LIBRARY'S FALL

New Inquiry Into Collapse Is Directed by Pontiff; Negligence Charged.

Vatican City, Jan. 27. (A.P.).—Possibility that one or more persons might be held responsible and punished for the collapse of a wing of the Vatican library, which took five lives, was seen today when Pope Pius ordered a second investigation.

The Pontiff took a personal hand in the investigation, ordering it resumed by a commission which includes court authorities. To do this, he made the first use since creation of the Vatican state of article 17 of the statutory laws, which gives him the right personally to intervene in any case under discussion.

The first investigating commission was composed only of technical experts. It reported on January 16, and was thought to have blamed the collapse, which occurred December 22, entirely on the age of the building and faulty construction.

There was an unconfirmed report today, however, that a technical officer of the Vatican state was blamed for negligence. The appointment of a mixed technical and judicial commission was attributed to a desire of the Pontiff to have a check of the first commission's findings and decide the matter from a judicial viewpoint.

Since the collapse, which affected only one section of the library, cracks have appeared in other parts of the Vatican palace.

Stinson's Body Taken Home for Final Rites

Detroit, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The body of Edward A. ("Eddie") Stinson, pioneer American flier, was brought here today from Chicago, where he was killed in an airplane crash Monday night. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Friday from the Stinson home in Dearborn, a suburb.

Among realatives and others en route here for the funeral is Mrs. M. A. Otero, jr., of Santa Fe, N. Mex., Stinson's sister, and his first flying instructor.

Suspected Denver Abductor Suicide

Shoots Self as Officers Approach Lodging in Bower Inquiry.

Denver, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Joseph Clinton Riley, former convict, shot and killed himself today rather than submit to arrest by a police shotgun squad which sought him as a suspected kidnaper of Benjamin P. Bower, Denver bakery manager.

Bower was held for ransom five days last week, but released without payment of the $50,000 demanded.

As officers converged on a rooming house in which Riley was reported, a shot was heard in his room. The police burst in to find Riley crumpled up on the floor, a bullet wound in the temple and pistol at his side. He died in a hospital without regaining consciousness while detectives waited to question him about the Bower kidnaping.

Chief of Police Albert T. Clark said he believed Riley was one of two men who forced their way into Bower's home and abducted him. The kidnapers had commandeered the car of two women and forced them to drive them to the Bower home.

FATHER OF IMBECILE IS CALLED DESERTER

Mother of Baby Only Knife Can Save From Idiocy Makes Charge.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Back into the silence which the father of Diane Moore, 13-months-old baby whose only chance to escape idiocy is a dangerous surgical operation, broke with a brief telegram yesterday, Mrs. Lillian Moore, the infant's mother, today sent her answer.

It was in the form of a visit to the district attorney's office, where she accused her husband, James N. Moore, now said to be in Detroit, of abandoning her and the child. Assistant District Attorney Pauline O Field questioned Mrs. Moore at length and then said she would present evidence to the grand jury probably tomorrow.

Mrs. Moore yesterday said she had received a telegram from her husband, saying "success to your decision. Take the chance. Letter following." It was the first message she had received, she said, since December, 1930. Her husband left her, she said, because he wanted the baby to be a boy.

Baby Diane, physicians say, though normal physically, has a skull which is too small to permit development of the brain. An operation to correct the condition, they say, has only about one chance in one thousand of success. No operation, they contend, would result in certain imbecility.

The baby is to have a further examination next Tuesday before a decision on whether to operate will be made.

THE TARIFF BILL FIASCO.

Finding jokers in the Democratic tariff bill has been a chief political sport ever since this measure was railroaded through the House. One flaw after another has been exposed, until there is almost nothing left of the bill that is not either contradictory, inconsistent or absurd. But it remains for the Senate finance committee to administer the coup de grace to this measure on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

In addition to the adjustment of rates, this measure would authorize the Tariff Commission to transfer commodities from the free list to the dutiable list without the sanction of either the President or Congress. If Congress did not reject orders of the commission within 60 days they would become law. The commission could group its reports and issue them just before the end of a session when Congress could not possibly act to defeat them. In short, this measure would authorize the Tariff Commission to levy new import taxes that never have been levied by Congress.

The unconstitutionality of such a grant of power is not open to question. In pronouncing the flexible provision of the tariff act of 1922 legal, Chief Justice Taft held as follows:

> The Congress may not delegate its purely legislative power to a commission, but, having laid down the general rules of action under which a commission shall proceed, it may require of that commission the application of such rules to particular situations, and the investigation of facts, with a view to making orders in a particular matter within the rules laid down by Congress.

Since Congress has laid down no general rule under which imports not now subjected to duties could be taxed automatically, the commission could not constitutionally function as the Democratic bill intends.

Will the Democrats of the Senate insert in the bill a declaration of policy to the effect that any product, which costs more to produce in the United States than in competing countries, should be made dutiable? That is the formula that would be required to give a semblance of constitutionality to the Democratic bill. But it would put the Democrats of Congress on record as favoring a more drastic tariff than any that has ever been imposed in this country. Such a policy would undoubtedly bring a large portion of the imports on the dutiable list under the protective system.

Three courses are open to the finance committee when it considers this measure today. It can pass an unconstitutional bill along to the Senate and allow that body to administer its own cure. It might attempt to validate the measure by emasculation, but it ought to throw the whole sorry mess into its waste basket and leave the law as it now stands.

Whichever way events may turn, the House Democrats who initiated this political gesture are in for public ridicule. In any form this measure could take it would be a blunder. The best thing the Democrats of the Senate can do is quietly to chloroform it in committee and try to divert attention from the fact that the House Democrats are ignorant of constitutional law.

BAKER STILL OUT OF RACE.

Newton D. Baker has an almost uncanny faculty for making the political pot boil over. His statement in New York, just before his departure for Mexico, does not in any way change the situation, or make Mr. Baker a candidate for the presidential nomination of the Democratic party. Nevertheless, a thousand enthusiasts are proclaiming the entrance of Mr. Baker as a dark horse into the Democratic race.

No one has presumed that the Democratic party would adopt a plank favoring adherence by the United States to the League of Nations. Mr. Baker has never threatened to drag the issue into the 1932 convention. As a loyal Democrat and an astute politician he would not think of interjecting an issue that would make defeat of his party certain before the beginning of the campaigns. Therefore, Mr. Baker's statement that he does not favor a plank in the Democratic national platform, "urging our joining the league," is a mere platitude. It means that Mr. Baker is a Democrat first, and an advocate of the league second. Has any one ever thought otherwise?

The fact remains that Mr. Baker is in favor of "taking the United States into the league" as soon as that becomes practicable. Hence, he could not become the candidate of the Democratic party without making the league an issue in the 1932 campaign. For this reason he can not be regarded as a formidable candidate, unofficial or otherwise, for the nomination. The former Secretary of War reiterated that he was not a candidate. Doubtless he realizes that his past record in support of the league, his present policy of advocating close cooperation with that body, and his hope for the future entanglement of the United States in league politics, would make it unwise for him to become a candidate at this time.

Regardless of what might have been Mr. Baker's intention, however, the situation is quite beyond his control. The whole country is well aware of his inclinations toward the league and his international leanings. Nothing that Mr. Baker might do could erase that fact from the minds of the voters who will go to the polls next November. No doubt he wishes to make his proleague policy as acceptable as possible, but there is no indication that he can remove sufficient objection to it to make his nomination at all probable or to give hope of anything but defeat should he be nominated.

JAPAN AT SHANGHAI.

Japan's threat against Shanghai is a logical outgrowth of the occupation of Manchuria. Invasion of the rich northern provinces has created widespread resentment in China proper. China was unable to repel the foe, so she used the only weapon available to her—the economic boycott. Japan has now assumed the untenable position of trying to force the Chinese people to be friendly at the point of the bayonet.

Prosperity in Japan is largely dependent upon trade with China's millions. This trade is vital also to the welfare of China, but the Chinese are willing to suffer inconvenience and want rather than do business with their enemy. Imports from China to Japan fell off only 16 per cent in 1931, but exports to China decreased 36 per cent. The actual contraction of Japanese business in China has been even more than this figure indicates, because most of the decline has taken place in recent weeks, while the comparison is for the entire year.

Japanese merchants are enraged because the Chinese boycott has been so effective. Consequently the Tokyo government has been urged to take drastic measures against this Chinese policy. It has demanded the dissolution of anti-Japanese societies in Shanghai and threatens to occupy the Chinese section of the city, unless its ultimatum is complied with. Chinese authorities, both at Shanghai and Nanking, the capital, are too impotent to resist. Hence, the society obnoxious to Japan has been officially disbanded.

It is not to be supposed, however, that this will be the end of the matter. The Chinese government may be forced to suppress its anti-Japanese organizations, but that will only increase the fury of the natives. When Japan attempts to force commercial good will down the throats of the Chinese people by military measures she is making a mistake. No power can force the Chinese to buy Japanese goods. Surely the Japanese government is not so fatuous as to believe that it can smash the boycott by merely compelling Chinese authorities to withdraw their outward influence in the movement.

Disorganized as China is, Japan will find it difficult to coerce a nation of 300,000,000 people. Each new insult that the Tokyo government inflicts upon them increases the recalcitrance of the Chinese. If Japan follows up her present attitude she may also incur the displeasure of other nations interested in the international settlement. Widespread international complications might result from an attack upon Shanghai.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION.

The World War taught the American people at a cost of more than $3,000,000,000 that this country could not do without shipping. Congress directed that war-built merchant ships be molded into a merchant marine, with American flag services throughout the world. Congress also directed that this merchant marine be made a matter of private enterprise, as soon as practicable. The result, after a hard and sometimes discouraging fight, has more than justified the decision not to risk America's welfare on foreign shipping. American shipping services now cover every important trade route, and nearly all of them are in the hands of private American owners. By the Merchant Marine act of 1928, enabling American owners to equalize the cost of operating American ships and the cost of building them, as against foreign costs, the Shipping Board will soon complete the disposal of the remaining lines established by it. Many new and splendid American ships have been built and will be built to furnish the utmost in efficiency on these lines.

These American lines are now providing efficient service to every port where the Army and Navy and the Panama Canal require facilities, yet the Government steam transport systems are continued in operation, with inferior equipment. The Government can obtain greatly improved service and effect a material saving in transportation costs by discontinuing the operation of its competing steamer lines. Private American lines would benefit substantially by the additional business from the Government, so that a mutual benefit would result.

It would be an absurdity for the Government to build and operate its own railroad communications exactly parallel with and competing with the regular railroads. Yet the operation of steamers is merely the extension of railroad transportation over the water. When private shipping lines are providing adequate service for freight and passengers, just as the railroads do, it is absurd for the Government to operate ships in competition with private lines.

This unusual and un-American scheme of things is not a deliberate act of the Government to engage in commerce and to injure private enterprise. It is a left-over situation which arose as a war-time necessity, and the Government has not thus far adjusted its activities to the present state of affairs. Necessarily, such adjustment is not a hasty process. Recently the Panama Canal's steamship line was directed to discontinue operating to South American ports, beyond the canal, in private business with which the canal is not concerned, directly in competition with a private American shipping line. This is a step in the right direction, and results from a particular study made by the Government. The next step should be the lopping off of other Government shipping services.

Private enterprise can not compete with the Government, in shipping, railroads, or in any other direction. Either the Government or private enterprise will have to get out of the shipping business.

NEW AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN.

The appointment of Joseph Clark Grew as Ambassador from the United States to Japan removes him from his present post in Turkey. He is the first and only ambassador from this country to Mustapha Kemal's autocratic republic. When Mr. Grew was the American representative in Switzerland he negotiated the Lausanne Treaty with Turkey, which paved the way for his later detail to that country. During his sojourn in Turkey he has made numerous friends and is generally looked upon as one of the most popular foreigners.

Ambassador Grew, like his two most recent predecessors in Japan, is a Harvard graduate. He began his career by taking a clerk's post in the American consulate in Cairo, despite the opposition of his family. His service covers one of the longest career terms in the Department of State. Before America's entry into the World War Mr. Grew was secretary of legation and upon occasions charge d'affaires in both Vienna and Berlin. He was appointed by President Wilson to be secretary of the American delegation to the Paris peace conference, which carried with it the rank of minister.

Mr. Grew is the sixth ambassador sent by the United States to Japan in the last ten years and the third within the last two years. The present situation, more delicate than ever before, will make heavy demands upon the tact and diplomatic acumen which have marked Ambassador Grew's career.

Newton D. Baker is back in the limelight of the presidential race. This is not due to a change in his opinion regarding the League of Nations, but because he is willing to soft-pedal the issue.

Reginald Denny has been hurt in a fall in a polo game. It is amazing how movie actors are always injured when they actually do the things they are shown doing in the movies.

The stork has been overworked in the District during the past 24 hours. Efforts to increase the expenses of District taxpayers are in evidence on all sides.

Smith College girls are being taught to turn out the lights as a thrift lesson. It should certainly make an impression on their boy friends.

Secretary of War Hurley has been termed a champion hand-shaker. Now we suppose that critics will say that the Army is grasping.

Turkish women are flocking to aviation schools. After those veils it must be a relief to get the air.

Taxi drivers in Berlin are learning jiu-jitsu. American taxi drivers learned it long ago.

When they took "obey" out of marriage ceremonies the world-wide depression followed.

DANGEROUS ECONOMY

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Signs are multiplying which indicate that Congress and the administration are not inclined to change their dangerous policy of heavy-handed economy with regard to the defense forces of the Nation. The House committee on naval affairs has approved the ten-year naval construction program calling for the building of 120 ships at an annual cost of about $60,000,000. This committee then postponed indefinitely the introduction of the measure.

Another subcommittee of the House is subjecting the War Department appropriations bill to deep slashes. Suggestions are being made that the citizens' military training camps be abandoned for at least a year. Pressure is being brought to bear to reduce the funds of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and of the National Guard. There is a proposal at one blow to decrease the number of regular Army officers from 12,000 to 10,000.

All this is proposed in the magic name of economy. It is also broadly intimated that Congress is acting in deference to the wishes of the White House. President Hoover is said to desire a minimum of Army and Navy legislation to be considered in order that the United States may make a more favorable impression at the impending Geneva disarmament conference. It is not justifiable on either count.

Virtually every one of the 120 ships called for in the naval construction program is for the purpose of replacement. Retention of obsolete units in the fleet could hardly be called an economic policy for a nation situated as the United States is situated. Sixty million dollars a year is little enough to spend on naval construction after a decade of neglect or at best unorderly development.

Last season 37,222 young men completed two weeks' training at 53 citizens' military training camps. The appropriation for this work was $2,779,129. In addition, some thousands of reserve officers took summer training and other thousands of young men suitable for officer material in case of emergency were trained in colleges and universities. The National Guard also makes its important if not pivotal contribution toward the cause of preparedness.

Congress is not likely to tamper with the National Guard. This organization has tremendous voting influence, to which every representative and senator is subjected, and votes are a necessity of political life. Members of the Army and Navy ordinarily do not vote and the students at the citizens' military training camps are for the most part youngsters. So, while the National Guard is probably safe, none of these other valuable organizations is secure from the economy knife.

As a political gesture this bearing down on the Army and Navy is futile. As an economy measure it is rather dangerous folly.

The yelp of European money brokers about a wolf at the door of the United States Treasury isn't working well this year.

Senator Huey Long is not entirely happy in his new role. He misses his part in the double-Topsy comedy still playing at the Louisiana capitol.

The complete answer to Senator Wheeler's extravagant claims of benefits that would follow adoption of bimetalism at 16 to 1 is—they wouldn't happen.

Japan is making a good bluff, but our wager is that Nippon knows that Shanghai isn't Mukden.

A survey of the monetary chaos in central Europe, where countries have gone off the gold basis and inflated their currencies is sufficient to warn the most ardent expansionist. Various nations have already been reduced to primitive methods of barter as the only means of effecting international trade.

In the "victory campaign" to raise a Democratic fund Mr. Raskob's contribution continues to be double that of the other two announced.

If broadcasters could apply a little more psychology they would understand that efforts to tell too much about things that irritate the throat, teeth and stomach have a similar effect upon the friendly feelings of potential customers.

Following the example of the Raskob side-step on prohibition, Newton Baker backs up on the League of Nations. Gov. Roosevelt may yet make an appeal for prevention of cruelty to the Tammny tiger.

Breaking up a Chinese boycott with battleships would be some undertaking even for Japan.

French generosity with regard to any war debts due the United States still appears to be unlimited.

"We folks of today are fighting economic eczema," says Ed. Howe. "Our forefathers fought Indians. It means every generation has to fight. Life is an adventure, and we might as well recognize that."

Manchuria was Shanghaied in the Japanese camp, so the old town that originated the sport had better keep sober and awake.

JUST FOLKS

GOOD TIMES GRIEF.

In the good old days of money
When the skies were always sunny
And they made us wait three months to buy their cars,
When the fact'ry wheels were roaring
And the price of things was soaring,
And they charged us fifteen cents for poor cigars,
Pessimists went up and down
Scattering gloom throughout the town.

In those days now long departed
Building booms were quickly started
And a fortune could be gathered overnight,
Though the boys in linen collars
Had their pockets bulged with dollars
And most any dub could guess the market right.
Men in places high or humble
Over trifles used to grumble.

In the good old times regretted
People very often fretted
When they traveled 'cause they couldn't get a room,
And to have to take the cheaper
Upper berth within the sleeper
Made the passenger a minister of gloom.
Then a few dark hours of raining
Would set many folks complaining.

But now real cares beset us
And important problems fret us,
We should like to ride in uppers on the train,
How we'd grin if they would tell us
Not for three months could they sell us—
It would mean prosperity had come again.
What we sigh for—and it's funny—
Is the grief that follows money.

Why Not Repair the Barns While Idle Men Wait for the Harvest?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN Russia and in Italy, where newspapers are controlled by dictators, the yoke of the people is made easier by the oft-repeated assurance that the poor in other lands are suffering greater hardship and privation.

In countries where the press is free, the discontent of the people is aggravated and multiplied by continual criticism of their leaders and tantalizing word pictures of the blessings enjoyed by the common man in other and more ably governed lands.

In America a few popular publicists, deceived by the greatness of hills far away or careless of the misery they multiply by telling half-truths, picture Russia as the Utopia of every poor man's dreams.

"Why is it," they ask again and again, "that Russia can provide work for all in times like these while millions are jobless in America?"

That is trickery, for they know the answer and conceal it.

There is no mystery about Russia's ability to provide jobs for everybody, nor does it indicate superior efficiency.

There was a job for everybody in America during the great war, you will remember. Labor was scarce and wages high. Do you know the explanation? Because millions of men were called to arms and the Nation set itself the task of building in two years the war machinery that others had built at their leisure.

Russia has work for all of her own people and many others because she is spending $30,000,000,000 to modernize herself—trying to catch up—doing in five years the construction work that required 50 years and more in America.

It is the most gigantic building program ever undertaken by a nation. It provides jobs—at an average wage of $45 a month—but the jobs will be gone when the construction work is finished.

The situation affords no proof of Russian superiority, but it does suggest an idea. What Russia is doing to catch up, America can do to keep up.

America can spend many billions profitably for public improvements, doing in two years the work that should be done within the next twenty in any case, and thus provide jobs for all.

The jobs would be temporary, as in Russia, but the need for them is temporary.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Where the Justices Come From.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The vacancy on the United States Supreme Court makes it timely to review the geographical distribution by States of the 76 men who have constituted that body since 1789. New York leads the list with nine, including John Jay, the first Chief Justice, and two of the most recently appointed members, Hughes and Stone. Massachusetts has had seven, as might have been expected, but it is surprising to find Ohio with the same number. Pennsylvania is next, with six. Three States have had five: Virginia, Maryland and Tennessee, and three have had three: New Jersey, Kentucky and Georgia. Two members have come from each of Illinois, South Carolina, North Carolina, Connecticut, Alabama and California, and one from New Hampshire, Maine, Iowa, Mississippi, Kansas, Michigan, Louisiana, Wyoming, Utah and Minnesota. Thus it will be seen that approximately half the States are missing from the roll. Missouri is conspicuous by her absence; so are Indiana and Wisconsin—in fact, most of the States west of the Alleghenies. No one with the interests of the country at heart, however, would urge the appointment of a man because he might represent a certain section. The object should be to find a man eminently fitted for the task.

Campaign Slogans.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The $100 prize for the best Democratic campaign slogan, offered by Pathfinder Magazine, was won by the inspiring battle cry, "Hee haw! We're coming back." The prize Republican motto turned out to be "Prosperity is returning—don't throw it in reverse." This barnyard bray and this back-seat driver's advice have attracted the attention of the respective national committees, and there is talk of having them declared official.

We have a feeling that the coming campaign will not be won by a snappy slogan, even such scholarly plumbings of the Nation's problems as the two prize winners. The voters are likely to be in serious mood, from which no glib apothegms can distract them. Secretary Hyde's coinage, "Who but Hoover?" will lend itself too readily as an answer to the indictments of opposing orators. The one conferred on Maryland's governor, "Get rich with Ritchie," sounds like a belated echo of 1928's "chicken in every pot."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Exaggerations by Wets and Drys Befog the Situation—Country May Not Be Going to the Bow-Wows.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an article in the Commonweal, headed "Total Abstinence in America," Edward J. Lyng says: "We of this Nation, unfortunately, have lost the sense of shame formerly associated with the drink habit, and our youth have plunged into the maelstrom of drunkenness with a recklessness and an abandon that would have terrified the inebriates of pagan Rome."

When the eighteenth amendment was ratified I was one among many who said it would fall short of the good results claimed for it, and thought it would probably do a good deal of harm in politics. That we were right is now plain enough, but I do not think the youth of the country have quite reached a state of drunkenness that "would have terrified the inebriates of pagan Rome."

I agree with Mr. Lyng that moral suasion is the best means by which to promote temperance, and his words are quoted here simply as a striking example of the sweeping statements with which well-meaning propagandists befog the discussion of public affairs.

The prohibitionists used to be about the worst offenders in this respect, but their opponents have of late become every bit as bad. At the present time, too, there is somewhat too much talk about what dreadful things will happen—the collapse of free institutions, the wreck of civilization—if this, that or the other means of world recovery is not adopted.

Perhaps we may always have with us political pessimists whose gloomy views will from time to time make the judicious grieve. But I feel confident that before another year rolls round, the wet-or-dry wrangle will be sufficiently moderated and the slough of economic depression left far enough behind to convince the world that as yet Uncle Sam has no good ear for calamity howlers. F. W. P.

Some Big Business Men Mighty Small When Asked to Pay Taxes to Help Them Make Money Again.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To judge from the way in which many big business leaders have opposed Secretary Mellon's business-like tax plans, they haven't as much hard common sense as I used to give them credit for.

When the turn of the cycle makes it necessary to help the United States Treasury out of a hole, they are not ready to come across. Having piled up wealth for ten years and more, they don't feel at all glad to give Uncle Sam a lift when all he wants is to bring back good times so that they can go on piling up wealth again.

The Government deficit has got to be paid, one way or another, and that means big business as well as you and me. I would feel a good deal more like bragging about these great leaders of business if there were a few more cheerful taxpayers among them. T. T. W.

High Rents a Staggering Item in Cost of Living—Asks Congress to Investigate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to second the voice of your recent contributor in regard to rents being lowered. Everything else is greatly decreased in price, but rents remain the same staggering item. Why can't Congress use a little of its energy investigating rents instead of utility rates?

We have a five-room apartment, exclusive of kitchen, bath, halls and closets, using all the electricity we want in many different forms, such as lights, radio, vacuum cleaner, iron, waffle iron, sewing machine, electric fan, &c., yet our electric bill varies from $1 to $3 a month.

I understand that some official of a large apartment house said that if 65 per cent of this house were filled there would still be a good profit. I know through my own personal experience that some of the rents have doubled since 1918. RENT PAYER.

Proposes a Novel Plan for Retirement of Federal Employes and Promotions Without Extra Pay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I suggest that the retirement law be amended to make retirement compulsory at the age of 65 years with a service record of 25 years or more, and a fixed annuity of $1,200, the positions thus vacated to be filled by promotion of younger men, with little or no higher compensation than what they now receive. This would mean a saving to the taxpayer of millions, and would give old men like myself an opportunity to pass the remainder of their lives in peace, and the younger men a chance for advancement, in position, if not in salary.

Favors Enactment of Bill Protecting Dogs Against Vivisection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Attention is called to S. 2146, recently introduced in the United States Senate, providing for the exemption of dogs from vivisection in the District of Columbia.

This bill should be of special interest to animal lovers and all humanitarians as well, who will want to see it passed at an early date.

I take this opportunity to express myself as in hearty accord with this legislation and trust that it will become a law.

Vivisection is a subject of which the general public knows very little, but if the light of publicity is thrown upon it, public sentiment will soon become aroused against its cruel practices.

We, as a race, have progressed beyond the stage of delight in torturing one another, and it is hoped that the day is not far distant when all cruel practices will be abolished.

Child Saved From Fire He Started With Match

A 2-year-old child was carried to safety by his half brother, 14, yesterday after the infant had found some loose matches and started a blaze which caused $1,000 damages to two houses at 1427 and 1429 Swann street northwest.

The child, Gilbert James, found the matches in the front room of the second floor of the home of his father, Roscoe James, colored, at 1429 Swann street. His half brother, William Giles, smelled smoke and ran in the room to find the child almost surrounded by flames. He carried Gilbert to safety and turned in an alarm. The flames spread to the home of James G. Roy, colored, at 1427 Swann street before being controlled by firemen.

RETROACTIVE TAXES SEEM IMPROBABLE

tion of taxes does not become a partisan matter. I believe Speaker Garner and other Democratic leaders feel the same way. Everybody is trying to work out a sound measure as fast as can be done. I hope that the country wil realive that we are trying to work out a Government tax revision law, not a Democratic bill and not a Republican bill."

Speaker Garner said he expected the ways and means committee to report and the House to pass the tax revision measure by the middle of February, and, he added, that would give the Senate a month in which to act, if, and he stressed the "if" it were decided to makes taxes retroactive. He refused to express an opinion on the question of policy which would be followed.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, also refused to commit himself in forecasting the probable decision on the retroactive proposal.

Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, who ranks next to Representative James W. Collier (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman, also refused to predict the fate of the retroactive proposal.

Privately, Democratic leaders agreed with Mr. Snell that it was doubtful even if the retroactive provision were accepted as a policy, that the new tax bill would be enacted into law in time to make a retroactive clause practicable, without special legislative measures.

These included a proposal to postpone the date on which income tax returns must be made for last year beyond March 15, and, a proposal to require supplemental tax returns on the basis of the new law. Objections to each scheme are held by both Democrats and Republicans.

Whatever financial difficulties the Government might fall into pending the receipt of revenues from the new tax law, it was pointed out, could be met by the issuance of bonds. Under existing law the Treasury Department has authority to issue bonds to a sum adequate to meet whatever emergency.

However the provisions of the tax revision measure finally are shaped by the ways and means committee, it can be put in the book that the new tax bill will not fill the deficit hole. A bond issue is to be necessary to meet the deficit. It is planned to achieve a balancing of the budget by 1934.

The ways and means committee continued its hearings yesterday, hearing Wirt Franklin, of Oklahoma City, Okla., sponsor of an excise tax on oil, which, he said, would yield the Government $102,000,000 annually and bring about a marked improvement in the domestic oil industry. Mr. Wirt charged that an effort was being made to squeeze out the independent oil producers and give the industry over to the hands of a monopoly.

There was withdrawn for export to France $12,005,000, representing a continuation of that country's withdrawals in connection with plans announced several days ago. There was also an increase of $97,800 in gold under earmark for foreign account. Imports amounted to $378,000 from India.

Bishop and Rector Are Friendly Again

Abandonment of Dances in Episcopal Services Is Reason for Accord.

New York, Jan. 27. (A.P.).—A bishop and a rector in the Protestant Episcopal Church have buried the hatchet after a disagreement of nine years, it was made known today. Bishop William T. Manning will resume visitations to picturesque old St. Marks-in-the-Bouwrie of which the Rev. William Norman Guthrie is rector.

The rift occurred when Bishop Manning expressed disapproval of services in Dr. Guthrie's church, with Eurythmic dance rituals. Dr. Guthrie declined to do anything about it, and Episcopal visitations ceased.

Now the Eurythmic dances are to be abandoned, but Dr. Guthrie said economy, and not pastoral submission to Episcopacy, is the reason. Bishop Manning said he would resume his visits, since there was no longer anything objectionable in the services. Dr. Guthrie said he would be glad to have him.

REPORTS ON FLOODS MORE ENCOURAGING

Tributaries of Mississippi Remain High, but Levee Strengthening Gains.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Flood-burdened tributaries of the lower Mississippi River continued to pour water over lowlands of Mississippi, Arkansas and northern Louisiana today, but more encouraging reports were heard from the stricken zones.

Caraway and Lester, on the upper St. Francis River in Arkansas, are under 2 to 3 inches of water and backwater from the swollen streams has reached the outskirts of Lepanto and Marked Tree, but United States engineers here say the situation along the St. Francis is not yet alarming. The water will not enter Lepanto and Marked Tree unless the St. Francis and Little Rivers set new high marks.

Laborers and Convicts Win.

More than 200 Arkansas land owners and tenant farmers are fighting to save a weak levee at Big Lake, swelled by waters from Mississippi drainage ditches, and the situation there is somewhat improved.

Laborers and convicts in Mississippi appear to have won their fight to save Belzoni from the rampaging Yazoo River and its backwaters as levees to the north and south continue to hold.

Red Cross headquarters were crowded with refugees from around Honey Island, Tchula and Cruger. Flood waters are pouring through a break in the drainage ditch dam near Carter, south of Belzoni, menacing villages in the Atchafalaya basin. Carter is under a foot of water and engineers believe the water will reach the lower edge of Yazoo City in the next several hours. Yazoo City, itself, located on a high hill, is safe from floods. The new break will cover thousands of additional acres.

U. S. Levee System Safe.

Precaution against loss of life and property along the Ouachita, the Black River and the Red River below Shreveport is being taken by Louisiana farmers as a result of recent heavy rains. The National Guard will be called out if necessary to patrol levees weakened by the rising Ouachita.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 acres of farm lands have been inundated by the Red River in south Arkansas, now on its worst rampage since 1930.

Although the Mississippi River has inundated lowlands at several points between its banks and the powerful new levee system built by Federal engineers, it will cause no concern unless there is a considerable rise.

Wales Heckled by Women During Talk on Depression

"Withdraw Forces From India," Hearers Shout as Prince Speaks About Britain's Interests Abroad; He Ignores Them and Continues Address.

London, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Royalty, in the person of England's popular Prince of Wales, was heckled by women at a meeting tonight when he spoke of British interests abroad and cried out against depression.

"Withdraw the forces from India!" a group of women shouted as the prince addressed 10,000 boys and girls in Albert Hall at a meeting arranged by the National Council for Social Service.

One woman was removed from the hall by attendants. The prince, who ignored the interruption, went on with his address.

Cheers had filled the hall earlier when the prince said depression and apathy were the devil's own.

"They're not English," he cried, "away with them."

Many paths in life were closed to him, the prince said. "Much that I would like to do I can not, but I have tried to bring the people of the empire closer together.

"I have had my failures, I know, but in these years with few precedents to guide us, to have had no failures is to have attempted nothing."

The women who heckled the prince previously had broken in on Capt. E. A. Fitzroy, speaker of the House of Commons. While he was addressing the meeting they shouted remarks about the unemployed.

The prince's rallying cry was heard by countless older folks listening to his voice by radio.

"Emerson wrote a good many years ago that he found the Englishman to be the one of all men who stands firmest in his shoes," the prince said, "and I am sure this is true of the rising generation of today."

"There is a danger that some people are getting too used to the present critical situation," he said later.

"It's no use waiting for that doubtful thing of a good time coming. We have got to fight, and here I pin my faith to the younger generation, to keep England 'a bulwark for the cause of men,' to keep our great heritage in trust for those who come after."

Britain to Double Speed of Air Mail

Order Is Placed for New Type of Plane Capable of 200 M. P. H.

London, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The air ministry today announced plans whereby it hopes to double the speed of air mail delivery on all empire sky routes.

The ministry placed an order with the builders of the Royal Air Force high speed bombers, for a new type of all-metal twin-engined plane capable of a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour and a service ceiling of 12,000 feet.

This plane, it was said, would be the forerunner of a fleet of similar craft which would carry two Pilots and 1,000 pounds of mail. Each machine would have a cruising radius of 1,000 miles with full load.

British Cruiser Quarantined.

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The British cruiser York lay in quarantine off this harbor today with a case of spinal meningitis in the crew.

NEW YORK LASHED BY WIND; ONE DEAD

11 Hurt as 47-Mile Gale Sweeps City; Three Boats in Distress.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—A woman was killed, eleven persons were injured, ferry service was disrupted, three small boats sent out distress signals, and the water in New York harbor was whipped by a 47-mile-an-hour wind which whistled over New York and vicinity today.

As the high wind struck Bayonne, N. J., it tipped over a billboard opposite the city postoffice, killing Mrs. Rose Ryan, 70, and seriously injuring Margaret Spask, 5. In other parts of Bayonne window panes were blown in.

Seven women and three men were injured, none seriously, when a sign 75 by 100 feet was blown from near the top of a new 40-story building at 444 Madison avenue and landed in the street. They were struck by glass and bits of splintered wood.

The tug Conway Brothers sent up a distress flag off Coney Island and was towed to port by two Coast Guard boats. Another Coast Guard cutter went to the assistance of the auxiliary sloop Start, which wirelessed from two miles off Glen Cove in Long Island Sound that its rudder had broken. Two men were aboard.

A converted submarine-chaser, now privately owned, grounded near Coney Island Creek. Coast Guard boats went to its assistance.

Ferry service from the Battery to the Statue of Liberty on Bedloes Island was discontinued after the steamer Hook Mountain was blown almost to Governors Island in attempting to make trips to the statue.

Senator Bulow to Speak To the Democratic Club

Senator William John Bulow, South Dakota, will deliver a humorous talk touching on politics to the Women's National Democratic Club tomorrow evening. The senator will address the club following a formal dinner at 7:30, at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue.

Senator Bulow is new to the Senate, having been elected after serving two terms as Governor of South Dakota. He defeated Senator McMaster (Republican), in the Democratic landslide that swept the West in 1930. He has been appointed to the agriculture and forestry commission.

Four Georgia industries use annually $62,550 worth of wood in the production of willow baskets.

NEW MAJESTIC SETS WIN GREAT ACCLAIM

Automatic Volume Control Is Feature of Models Now Being Distributed.

Majestic's new line of radio receivers is receiving the greatest accalm from Majestic distributors and dealers since the exciting days of that company's entry into the set-building field in 1928. This universal enthusiasm is occasioned, not only by the wide scope of these new models in price and style, but yet more largely by performance and workmanship.

Apparently, Majestic engineers had orders from Mr. Grigsby, president, and Mr. Compton, general manager, to put every refinement known to the industry into the line as, among the nine standard models, two all-wave sets and a converter, one finds automatic volume control, image rejector circuits, a highly developed type-35 multimu tube, a brand-new push-pull detector tube called the Duo-Diode, push-pull pentode output, twin power detection, twin speakers, spray-shield tubes and coverage of the 15 to 200-meter wave band.

In line with present conditions, this 1932 Majestic line, at every price quoted, represents value extraordinary. Among the anticipated "best sellers" is a table model in Art-Moderne design providing an 8-tube superheterodyne circuit with automatic volume control, push-pull detection, pentode output, tone control and image rejector circuits, listing at $59.50; a full size lowboy console giving these same features at $69.50; a generous proportioned console in Art-Moderne treatment, with 10-tube chassis, that is a yet further refined superheterodyne receiver feeding the speaker from twin pentode output, at $99.50.

The Duo-Diode tube, featured as a detector in these receivers, is a development of Majestic's own laboratories said to provide the following advantages: First of all, it is impossible to overload it; second, push-pull detection automatically cancels out all even harmonics; and, third, its life is far in excess of the three and four element tubes in use. The ear can readily appreciate an improved quality of reception from receivers utilizing Duo-Diode detection.

The factories at Chicago, long trained in mass production and how to get it quickly, are already pouring out all models into the cars and quick delivery on the entire new line is assured all distributors and dealers.

"Firedamp" Is Blamed For 11 Mine Deaths

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The deaths of eleven miners from an explosion in the Llwynpia Colliery in the Rhonddha Valley Monday night were officially attributed today to "firedamp" rather than burns.

Two of the dead were rescue workers who attempted to force their way through deadly carbon monoxide gases to save their comrades. The ventilation of the mine has been restored and the workings have been inspected. The exact cause of the disaster has not been determined.

Vatican to Protest Spanish Jesuit Ban

Edict Lamented Because of Effect on Schools for Catholic Youth.

Madrid, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Papal Nuncio Federico Tedeschini plans to present to the Spanish government a protest from the Vatican against the dissolution of the Jesuit Order, it was learned in Catholic sources today.

He was said to lament the dissolution order because of its effect on the education of Catholic children. Two important Jesuit institutions in Madrid alone are affected by the government's action.

Cardinal Vidal Barraquer, of Tarragona, ranking Catholic clergyman in Spain, made public a protest from Spanish bishops and archbishops saying the dissolution "violates the principles of fair execution of the constitution and offends the Pope because it imposes a maximum penalty against the Jesuits merely on the strength of their vow to him of spiritual obedience."

Oversupply of Films In Canada Is Claimed

Toronto, Ontario, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Arthur Cohen, president of Famous Players Canadian Corpoation, testified today that 450 feature pictures, "a very big oversupply," were released in Canada in 1930.

He testified at the trial of fourteen motion picture organizations which, with N. L. Nathanson, Samuel Bloom and I. S. Fine, are charged with participating in a combine in illegal restraint of trade.

Two Ships Off for Gulf Cruise.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The battleships Arkansas and Wyoming of the United States training squadron, sailed today with 400 Marines on a practice cruise to the Gulf of Mexico after a two weeks stay here.

The Arkansas was bound for New Orleans and the Wyoming for Galveston.

TOWN'S TEST REST REVIVES BUSINESS

Five-Day Trade Moratorium Brings Prosperity Back to Aurora, Ill.

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Aurora will tell you that a little nap is just the thing for a case of nerves.

Last Friday this Fox River Valley city of 50,000 had all the symptoms of a nervous breakdown.

Nothing organically wrong, perhaps, but—Aurora worried too much.

Chicago suburbs to the east, neighbor cities up and down the valley were having their bank failures and their industrial pains. Depositors in the five Aurora banks were fidgety.

Decides on Cure.

Mayor Conrad Bjorseth decided to administer an anesthetic. Not so much for the physical rest as the psychology of the thing.

So Aurora pulled down its curtains for a long winter nap last Friday morning.

The mayor set the alarm for today. The bells and whistles blew at 9 a. m. The patient hopped up, surprised at his own enthusiasm after the five-day rest. Bands played while shoppers in pre-Christmas masses thronged to the stores—they had been able to buy only groceries and drugs, newspapers and the usual public utility commodities since Thursday night.

All day there were long queues at the windows of the receiving tellers in the five banks—they used to give the paying tellers most of the business, and at the end of a busy day the bank deposits had gained an estimated $750,000.

Trade Records Set.

New accounts were numerous. Many depositors dragged their money out of hiding in safety deposit boxes and put it back on their accounts. One manufacturer deposited $100,000. Banks and merchants said it was the biggest day in years.

What did the doctor do while the patient slept?

Well, some of the employes had to take cuts for the five-day layoff; others had holidays with pay. But they had work to do. One thousand volunteers spent the interval calling on 14,000 bank depositors, of whom 97 per cent signed pledges to withdraw not more than 10 per cent per month of the money now on deposit.

Aurora is quite a spry old town today, thank you.

FAMOUS SEER

THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travels, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

WHO ARE YOU?
A RAZOR BLADE DEALER
ARE YOU THE MAN WHO SOLD SOMETHING "JUST AS GOOD"?
I AM
THEN HEAVEN IS NO PLACE FOR YOU
YOU KEPT MEN FROM TRYING THE WONDERFUL NEW GILLETTE BLADE
The blade we are talking about is made by the new management under a new process. Do not confuse it with the former "new" Gillette blade

POSSIBLY this cartoon is overdrawn. We have the deepest sympathy for the clerk who must substitute to eke out a modest income. We urge you not to blame him if he attemps to "switch" you from a demanded product to another "brand" that would not sell. The clerk needs the money he makes in commissions.

We are gunning for substitution at this time only because it might rob you of your opportunity to experience an absolute revelation in shaving comfort. Today's Gillette is a transcending achievement in blade manufacture. It is produced by a new and far superior process. We give you our solemn word—it is beyond doubt the sharpest blade we have ever turned out.

Prove this on our money-back guarantee. Please let nothing stop you from making the trial. Resist any attempt at substitution this once—and we are sure you will resist it in the future. That is the selfish reason for this message. Let us again urge you—sympathize with any clerk who tries to "switch" you—but insist on Gillette.

THERE has been some delay in concluding the preparation and introduction of a radio bill dealing with radio advertising by Representative Ewin L. Davis, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine, Radio and Fisheries. This has been due to the fact that Mr. Davis desires to include a provision calling for a license fee for each station, and the question has arisen as to exactly what this fee should be. It has been found to be a difficult proposition to work out.

However, if a solution is not found at an early date, it is likely that Representative Davis will introduce his advertising bill and later introduce another bill embracing the license proposal. Representative Davis has in mind restricting sales talks in radio programs. This may even go so far as to prohibit more than an announcement of the name of the sponsor of a program.

The Aguilar Lute Quartet, said to be the only famous lutanists in the world, will be featured in an all-Spanish program tomorrow night at 10 o'clock over WRC. The quartet, composed of three brothers and a sister, Paco, Pepe, Ezequiel and Eliza Aguilar, recently arrived from Spain for a concert tour. They have played the ancient instrument since childhood, and their repertoire includes classic works as well as modern Spanish music, with such modern composers as Manuel de Falla and Joaquin Nin represented.

THERE is frequently a resemblance between men in public life. Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, for instance, reminds one of Edward Klauber, first vice president of Columbia.

First-hand impressions of conditions in Honolulu and the Island of Oahu will be broadcast from Hawaii by Dr. David L. Crawford, president of the University of Hawaii, tomorrow night (WMAL, 10 o'clock).

A fancy dress ball in celebration of the bicentennial anniversary of George Washington's birth will be broadcast from the ballroom of Washington and Lee University during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour tonight. Bernie Cummins and his orchestra will play (WRC, 10 o'clock).

Burns and Allen will be guests of Rudy Vallee tonight. George Burns portrays a high-pressure go-getter, while Grace Allen plays a "Dumb Dora," unable to appreciate his witticisms. They will be aided and abetted by Ray Perkins.

GIVING a cross-section of the kind of entertainment and entertainers the networks consend the radio public wants most is list, compiled by Variety, of eleven who during the last year reached national star prominence through broadasting. They are the Boswell Sisters, Bing Crosby, Russ Colombo, Mills Brothers, the Goldbergs, Eddie Cantor, Walter Winchell, Guy Lombardo, Ben Bernie, Cab Calloway and Misters of the Skillet.

Radio's holdover stars were Amos 'n' Andy, Rudy Vallee, Morton Downey, Kate Smith, Paul Whiteman, Seth Parker, Ted Husing, Phil Cook and Tony Wons.

The thirteen whose status is adjudged by Variety as having declined below their previous national rating, or to have backed out of the coast to coast picture altogether, were Little Jack Little, Floyd Gibbons, Henry Busbig, Vaughn de Leath, Jessica Dragonette, Olive Palmer and Paul Oliver, Gladys Rice, Happiness Boys, Graham McNamee, Breen and Dedose, Vincent Lopez, B. A. Rolfe and Harry Horlick's Orchestra.

Herb Gordon and his orchestra, assisted by a group of novelty entertainers, will be heard in an hour's program tonight over WOL, direct from the Palais Royal, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. The store is holding open house from 7:30 to 10 p. m., announcing the installation of a new department.

The inaugural program of Ted Husing's Sportslants, cofeatured with the songs of Irene Beasley and the music of Freddie Rich's orchestra, will be broadcast tonight by WMAL at 9:15 o'clock.

THE Chief of Police of Los Angeles, R. E. Steckel, is enthusiastic about the application of radio short waves to police work.

"We have continued to make many quick and important arrests by reason of our radio system," Chief Steckel told Radio Commissioner Lafount. "In the month of December our radio motor patrol answered 11,975 calls, the average time per run being 2 minutes 39 seconds, and there were only 36 calls not received by the cars.

John Kelvin, Irish tenor, recalls his most unhappy broadcasting experience. For an hour he had worked assiduously with Vincent Sorey and his musicians in rehearsal. Just before his program was due on the air he was informed that he was working with the wrong group of selections. He has unforgettable memories of the next fifteen minutes, during which he had to present songs which he had not prepared.

Edwin L. Rogers, WRC'S barytone-announcer, was married to Miss Vivian C. Bruce, of Elmwood, Conn., last Monday. Rogers was connected with Station WTIC at Hartford before coming to Washington.

THE Community Chest program on WMAL at 11 o'clock tonight will feature Earl Carbaugh, barytone. * * * Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, will address a national network on a subject of his own choosing, from the studios of WRC next Monday night. * * * For the third time Dr. Sigmund Spaeth's perennial poem, "The Bridge Fiends," will be heard over the WJZ network tomorrow night (WRC, 7:30 o'clock). The poem rhymes the rules of contract bridge. * * * Nellie Revell, monologuist, says James Whitcomb Riley used to ride miles when he heard she was going to recite one of his poems—but never got there in time to stop her. * * * For the next four Fridays, starting tomorrow night (WOL, 7:30 o'clock), the Northern Dramatic Company will present a mystery play, "The Upward Shot." * * * Hoaghy Carmichael, New York banker, will interpret his "Washboard Blues" with Nat Shilkret's Chesterfield Orchestra tonight at 10:30 o'clock. * * * "Prunella," a three-act play by Laurence Housman and Granville Barker, will be presented by Radio Guild players tomorrow afternoon, WRC. 4:15 o'clock. * * * Senator Claude A. Swanson will be presented by Frederic William Wile from Geneva next Wednesday. * * * Anne Morgan, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Princess Der Ling will speak on successive Wednesdays, beginning February 3, under auspices of the American Woman's Association.

Ann Q. INTERPRETS the MODE

A dressy tailleur of black wool trimmed in black astrakhan, with a rust-colored crepe de chine blouse for a vivid contrast. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie.)

"LA Parisienne a un faible pour le tailleur."

And isn't that true, Madame?

It means that the Parisienne has a weakness for the tailored suit, although that is not the literal translation, word for word. I repeat, isn't that true?

When one says of so and so, "She is Parisian, you know" or, "a Parisienne" what does one instantly picture? Two pictures spring to memory—one, the typical "petite Parisienne" or flapper type of Frenchwoman, chic, little, pert, frilly and frivolous, terrifically high as to heel, stub toed as to shoes, tip-tilted as to hat, and, in a well-fitting and chic tailored suit. The other, the gracious and graceful type of elegante, for which the word was coined.

The first type is better known and recognized. And she it is who has discovered the charm and practicability of the tailleur, and who clings to it down the years, demanding that it change in line and style with the styles, but never, never, go out of style.

Of course, it perfectly suits her type. If one is not the type to be flattered by a tailored suit, one does not choose it. But if one is, then one simply always has a tailored suit in the wardrobe, and innumerable delightful and youthifying and flattering blouses, gilets, vestees, jabot and collar and cuff sets to wear with them.

It is for the "lingerie touches" that accompany the tailored suit that the Parisienne is so faithful to her tailleur. For she knows that there is no other items of wearing apparel so flattering and fresh, so gay and youthful, as these dainty lingerie touches. And well she knows that from a practical standpoint, she may wash and starch and iron her little collars and cuffs and vestee every night if needs be and always look as though she had just stepped from the hands of her couturiere in the morning, e'en though she wears the same tailleur year in and year out!

And she knows that the tailleur flatters her figure—that is, it flatters the good figure, no matter how plump—but not the bad figure or the bad posture. The Parisienne, being proud of her figure and seldom addicted to bad posture, delights in the tailored suit for this as well as the many other reasons which make and keep it a continued favorite in the wardrobe.

* * * *

The tailleur that I sketch today, from Bernard et Cie, Paris, is a far cry from the first tailored suit that the Parisienne wore! But it is a tailleur for a' that, and the Parisienne is as fond of it as ever. This one is hinting of spring, too, with its flat fur trimming and its light-weight wool material. The fur is put on as incrustations, which peep out from under the bolero effect of the jacket, and the inverted pocket effect of the skirt. And the jacket, for contrast, is rust colored crepe, informal as to sleeves and neckline, and just the proper contrast to the chic black of the suit.

* * * *

How would you like an apron with a wrap-around double front, which you could whis-s-s-s-h over to literally present a clean front to the world if the doorbell should ring? How would you like to make it yourself, to know that it would fit and be absolutely comfortable without being so baggy and loose as we used to think was necessary to comfort? And, how would you like to make another smaller apron for serving or lighter house tasks—and make them both for less than 50 cents? A stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make these aprons, couple of hours in which to make them, a half hour for their laundering, and you have our idea of real house aprons, chic and efficiency and economy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WALKING OUTSIDE.

J. F. writes: I have formed a habit of walking on the outside of my shoes. This causes all my shoes to lose their shape quickly and, at the same time, gives the toes a tendency to curl up, since all the weight is put on the outside of the foot and not on the ball. I would like to correct this condition. Is it better to wear a narrow shoe or a wide one? Of late I have been wearing a narrow shoe, as I am of the opinion that since it fits the foot very snugly it will help to correct this condition. Am I right?

REPLY.

The probable seat of your bad habit is in your head, not your feet. That's where the responsibility for most bad habits lies. Changing shoes will not affect your head. Wear shoes that are broad enough, but not too broad. Ninety-nine per cent of shoes worn are too narrow. Some would add another per cent.

CATCHING SOMETHING FROM CATS.

H. M. B. writes: What are the dangers if any of children of very tender years playing with and caressing, breathing the breath of, and being licked on the hands and face by ordinary bone-gnawing dogs and puppies that play in the dirt and trash, and playing with and hugging mice-catching cats—not the pampered, bathed and manicured pets of some society matron—and with other animal pets? The dangers I refer to are not injuries the animal might intentionally inflict, but the probability of the children contracting diseases by reason of such close contacts.

REPLY.

The danger that domesticated animals will spread disease, is not great. At least, such danger has been proved as to only a few diseases.

Alley cats and dogs are somewhat more likely to spread some parasites, but, other than that, they are not more dangerous than the pampered kind. While they have more diseases, they are not more likely to be in close contact with humans.

What It All Means.

D. J. V. writes:

1. What, in plain words, is the meaning of this diagnosis: Hypertrophic osteoarthritis lumbo-sacral spine formation at the articular borders of the vertebrae?

2. What brings it on?

3. My nerves are shot and I have a severe headache. I am always thinking that I am about to lose my mind. Could this be caused by the trouble described?

REPLY.

1. Inflammation of the lower point of the spinal column, involving both the bones and the joints of the vertebrae. It is chronic and it results in the formation of callus.

2. Generally some sort of an infection. Perhaps exposure is a second cause and injury a third.

3. There is no direct relation between the form of rheumatism of the spine and the mental state you describe. One can develop a certain mental state from any number of mental, social and physical causes.

TREATING TUBERCULOSIS.

Mrs. C. W. P. writes: I was a case of bone and lung tuberculosis. I had bloody sputum. I was cured by taking viosterol.

Viosterol is rich in vitamin D. Vitamin D regulates the lime in the body. Tuberculosis is arrested by formation of lime around the diseased area.

REPLY.

Your letter is interesting and you are to be congratulated on your good fortune, but your conclusions are much too broad for its foundation. An opinion based on one experience is liable to be misleading. Tuberculosis has been known to get well under scores of different treatments. Some of these treatments have aided the cure. In some, cure has come about in spite of treatment. Your reasoning is interesting but not necessarily correct. For instance, you can not prove that it is formation of lime in tubercles that arrests the tuberculosis process. It is true that old, broken down tubercular tissues become calcareous. But the laying down of lime in such an area comes after the cure. It is an effect and not a cause. Nevertheless, there is reason for thinking viosterol has a place in the treatment of tuberculosis.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

THE TANGLED WEB OF DECEIT.

FROM Mr. Frederic Ley we receive the following interesting hand and very amusing description. It is too good to be spoiled by my own pen.

"The most pleasing and joy-giving hand of my whole misplayed Bridge experience was dealt me by one of my opponents a few evenings ago. Imagine a hand so remarkable that you can bid three different suits, two of them singletons and one a doubleton, make a Grand Slam doubled and redoubled at another declaration, and watch your opponents and partner go through the most awful writhings of anguish—all in perfect safety.

"The hand was as follows: We were vulnerable, but our opponents were still lying.

"West dealt and passed. North and East did likewise. I was sitting South and had just about recovered from the shock of assorting my clubs. I bid two spades. West passed. Partner, of course, bid two notrump. I never yet had a partner who bid anything except two notrump over my Forcing bids. Of course, I had the kind of partner who knew he would be shut if he ever passed my Opening two-bid, which is Forcing for both of us until a game is reached.

"East passed, and I thought three hearts might be an amusing bid. West passed a bit more cheerily as he began to see rays of hope. Partner dutifully called three spades. Even East's pass seemed a bit brighter.

"Well, things were going splendidly, so I bid four diamonds, that suit being twice as long as the others. Partner called four spades, East passed and I bid seven notrump. West doubled in such a gleeful tone that it nearly finished my poor partner, who was in a bad way already. East's joyous pass didn't revive him much and when I redoubled, all he could do was jabber about giving minimum responses every time. East lec something or other. I laid down one stopper in spades and hearts, two stoppers in diamonds and nine stoppers in clubs. So we poured another one for North and added it all up.

"Well, those hands come ones in a lifetime."

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is a four-card biddable suit?

Answer: A four-card biddable suit is any four-card suit headed by 1½ honor-tricks or better.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a two-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

PARENTAL VIGILANCE.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: My problem is the unusual one—a girl overchaperoned. We have known each other for quite a time. But all the time her parents were not told about the affair. We have done nothing to be ashamed of so therefore we didn't tell her parents about it.

They are the type to get the wrong impression of our affection for each other. So I am asking you what I can do to make her parents understand that I can be trusted with her. I am anxious to win their confidence. They are really nice people and I enjoy their presence. But they insist on her not going out with boys.

We are old enough to know what we are doing. We understand each other and never have become serious about the future. She knows my ideas and I know hers. We see each other daily that her parents are unaware of it. We do not do this to hide anything but we know we would have to be broken up should they find out.

I go to her place when her parents are home, but they think I come to see them. They have told me several times their attitude toward her going out. We both know that we have clear conscience of any act that we would ever be ashamed of. She has high ideals and therefore I do not wish to lose her. So again I say I would appreciate if you would advise me in what procedure to make to win her parents' confidence. Also tell me what you think of our affair. Remember we really believe we understand each other thoroughly so that is why we insisted on seeing each other. I have come to you for advice because I think you capable of rendering it. RUSSELL.

So her parents think you are calling upon them when you come "awooing!" Don't let them fool you, Lad! They know very well that your interest is not in their health and well-being. And they are pursuing the policy of letting well enough alone. Why do not you do likewise? I take it the girl is very young of course. If she is over 18, then you should boldly ask permission to take her to some certain affairs—the movies, a concert, or a party. Do not ask permission to monopolize her time, but merely to escort her to an occasional show, asking first for one special date without reference to future ones—by way of breaking the ice. Then later things will shape themselves.

You know in this age of promiscuous friendships one can hardly blame the parents of any young girl for attempting to shield her for as long a period as possible from the dubious contacts of our rather hectic social whirl. There is today no circle free from undesirables. Our best families have their worst connections. And parents look on helpless as their children go forth full-grown into the melee! So be patient, but be brave and the princess may yet step from the tower, your very own. You will at least know that she has been well guarded, and that is worth much in such an age as this!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:50 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2:35 p. m. to 3:45 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:10 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Artists, musicians, stage folk and ministers of religion will be inspired, through the astrological influences on January 28, to great efforts, and will make corresponding progress. The painful effects of jealousy will be experienced by young lovers, and mutual trust should be striven after.

The child born on this January 28 will have a headstrong nature, and will be inclined to go to extremes. It will be a "Doubting Thomas," and will worry over trifles. It will be more sociable and companionable within than it appears to be on the surface. It will take a pride in its own accomplishments.

Born January 28, you have enthusiasm, fire, and concentration as weapons with which to fight your way through the world. You know your own power of displacement too well not to put up a bold front when you go after things. You have extraordinary grit in the face of odds, and are not easily turned back by "rough going." There is nothing flabby about your nature and you do not take anything lying down. People are usually unsuccessful when they try to throw dust into your eyes, for you seldom let anything blind you to facts.

You have a nimble and active tongue, although you do not always limit yourself to the conservative handling of raw facts. For the sake of making a good impression you freely add or subtract from the real truth. You are not dishonest or insincere in any of the bigger things in life, and in a business way you are a hundred per cent square.

You are not only astonishingly quick at picking up ideas, but you have the faculty of putting them to new and entertaining or most advantageous uses. You are always "running" someone for whom you have developed a new passion. You put too much zest into your friendships for many of them at least.

Successful people born January 28: Daniel Willard, railroad president. Julie Opp (Mrs. William Faversham), actress. Charles Simon Barrett, president National Farmers' Union. Henry M. Stanley, explorer. Alexander Doyle, sculptor.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

OUR backyard soil is composed largely of sand and a little clay. There is little plant food in it. We are anxious to build up a good top soil. How can this best be done? We have added a little leafmold from the woods, but this is slow work. What would you suggest?

MRS. F. P. B.

A good loam is one composed of a noncoherent mixture of clay and sand with a proportion of such decayed vegetable matter as leaves and the fibrous roots of grasses. I would spread the entire surface of your garden with some well-decayed manure, provided you can obtain such fertilizer. This in the course of three years will change the entire nature of your soil. But as this is a long time to wait, I should suggest that you remove the earth to the depth of 12 inches or more and replace with good top soil, leafmold and enough bonemeal to whiten the surface. If you use top soil you may omit the use of manure. I should, however, in any case use the bonemeal.

Is there any truth in the statement that Scotch soot will kill plant lice in the garden? Last season many of my plants were ruined by these pests.

MRS. HAROLD B. E.

Yes; you may spread tobacco dust thickly over the soil around infested plants or you may blacken the soil with Scotch soot. The use of either material will kill the lice.

Please tell me how to prune bearing currant bushes, also newly set-out specimens. THOMAS F. P.

Bearing plants should be so pruned that all wood over 3 years old is cut out. Newly planted specimens should be cut back to five or six buds, leaving only one branch.

How deep should peonies be planted? ALICE F. W.

Set peonies only 2 or 3 inches below the surface of the soil.

I have a Norway maple, which is very beautiful, but so far I have not been able to get anything to grow under it. Even grass refuses to grow. What do you suggest?

MRS. GERARD A. N.

I am sorry to seem discouraging, but there is really nothing that will grow in such a location. Japanese spurge sometimes lives in such a location, but even this shade lover does not always do well in such dense shade.

Mrs. Harry P. K.—Hardy phlox is best transplanted in late August, just before flowering.

Can you tell me whether hybrid tea roses, especially Ophelia, should be pruned in the spring?

HENRY J. T.

Yes; prune hybrid tea roses after the weather is settled in the spring. Do not do the work too early or the growth made may be injured by a late frost.

I want to plant some rhododendrons in the near future. What are the requirements for success with these shrubs? CHARLES W. H.

Rhododendrons require an acid soil (free from lime). Good garden loam, leafmold or peat and sand in equal parts make an ideal soil for growing these shrubs. They need water in abundance and protection from the winter sun. They demand perfect drainage. Their roots must be covered with a perpetual mulch of leaves. Plant in spring when you are sure the weather is settled or in the fall.

MME. MUZIO WINS HONORS IN CONCERT

Chicago Civic Opera Soprano and VanVliet, Cellist, Applauded Here.

Mme. Claudia Muzio, soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera, and Cornelius Van Vliet, cellist, were the soloists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's fifty-ninth musical morning at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Mme. Muzio charmed with the beauty of her voice and her artistry, and her songs were greatly applauded by the appreciative audience. In an aria from "Forza del Destino," by Verdi, she reached the highest point of her success yesterday.

Mr. Van Vliet proved himself a master of the cello. His tone was golden and melodious at all times, and especially in the "Decameron Suite," by Th. Gauvy, and the Sonata in F by N. Porpora, his playing was most pleasing.

A French group sung by Mme. Muzio elicited much applause and the audience was enchanted with the "Chant Hindu," sung by her with inimitable skill, accompanied by Mr. Van Vliet on the cello.

The artists next Wednesday morning will be Miss Rosa Ponselle, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Mario Basiola, baritone, also of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Musical Benefit Set Tomorrow Night

Concert Will Be Given in Congressional Library to Aid Artists.

A benefit concert, with four of the world's leading musicians as feature attractions, will be given tomorrow night, at 8:45 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Library of Congress. Proceeds will go to the Musicians' Emergency Aid.

The affair is being sponsored by the Friends of Music in the Library of Congress, headed by Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe. The money will be used by the Musicians Emergency Aid, in cooperation with the Musicians' Foundation, in an effort to relieve suffering among unemployed musicians and their families.

Included in the program are four internationally known artists. They are Nina Koshetz, Russian soprano; Harold Bauer, American pianist; Paul Kochanski, Polish violinist, and Hans Kindler, Dutch 'cellist and conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Bennett's Versatility Great Aid to Needy Babies

Again Brings Seth Parker to Capital to Help Summer Camp.

MRS. JOHN S. BENNETT.

From tending babies in a rescue mission to managing a radio and movie star requires a versatility of a rare sort, but Mrs. John S. Bennett, of the Central Union Mission, does both equally well.

With 40 small boys and girls constantly on her hands to feed and shelter, necessity accounts for many strange things. Unlike the Old Lady Who Lived in a Shoe and simply gave up, Mrs. Bennett seems to know exactly what to do in an emergency.

A year ago she decided the children needed a summer camp, so seeking to hitch her wagon to a star, she astonished hard-boiled theatrical managers by singling out "Seth Parker." Overnight she and Seth Parker smashed about all records for a charitable production. After two return engagements, Mrs. Bennett became exhausted and went back to tending babies. She had raised $12,000 toward the summer camp.

From that time on Mrs. Bennett became the exclusive Washington manager for Seth Parker and his Jonesport Neighbors. Other organizations, thinking to duplicate her success, tried in vain to engage the radio evangelist for personal appearances.

Now that the mission is about to acquire a water site for its camp, Mrs. Bennett began worrying again about the means to equip it. So once more she turned to Seth Parker and set about the task of filling Constitution Hall for another benefit performance. From the proceeds of Friday night's performance, she hopes to be able to go ahead immediately with plans to move her big family of children out of the city next summer.

Since her first experience as a Seth Parker "manager," Mrs. Bennett has received numerous bids from other cities to help stage benefit performances for charity. Sometimes she does, but her real job, she says, is managing babies who haven't anyone else to look out for them.

AMASA J. WARD, 54, LAWYER, SUCCUMBS

For Many Years Was General Counsel of Internal Revenue Board.

The death of Amasa James Ward, for many years general counsel for the Internal Revenue Bureau, was due to toxemia, it was announced yesterday at Garfield Hospital, where he died earlier in the day. The outcome of a test which will show the exact nature of the blood poisoning will not be known until this morning. An autopsy was performed to determine this.

Mr. Ward had been ill for ten days. He was 54 years old. He was born in Iowa, and was graduated with the class of 1904 at Columbian College, now George Washington University. He practiced law in Oklahoma several years before coming to the Capital to live. While in that State he was tribal attorney for the Creek Tribe of Indians.

Mr. Ward's great-grandfather was on the staff of George Washington during the Revolutionary War. His uncle, Amasa Stone, was builder and first president of the Erie Railroad. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Agatha Diek Ward, supervisor of the United States Employment Bureau of the Department of Labor, who he married last June; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth W. Atherton, of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Lucille Bledsoe, of San Bernardino, Calif.; also by his father, James Ward, and two sisters.

Mr. Ward was a Blue Lodge Mason. He made his home at 2008 Sixteenth street northwest.

MISS ANNA GROH'S RITES.

Funeral services for Miss Anna Groh, 67 years old, of Herndon, Va., will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Congregational Church in that town with the Rev. George Gee, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the Chestnut Grove Cemetery.

Miss Groh was born in Prescott, Pa., moving to Herndon 44 years ago. She had made her home with her brother and sister there. She had taken an active part in civic affairs, was a deaconess in the Congregational Church and a member of the Corban Club.

She is survived by three brothers, Calvin Groh, of Meyerstown, Pa; William Groh, of Orlando, Fla., and Jacob Groh, of Herndon, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Feesholtz, of Canton, Ohio; Mrs. Bessie Adams, of Churchville, N. Y., and Miss Katherine Groh, of Herndon.

MELLON DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF COLOMBIAN LOAN DEAL

the receipt of a mass of evidence regarding Latin-American loans by American banks.

The outstanding development was testimony that the Chase National Bank loaned $70,000,000 to Cuba while a son-in-law of President Machado was a manager of the bank's Havana branch.

The committee was told by Carl J. Schmidlapp, a vice president of the bank, that the son-in-law, Jose Obregon, was paid $500,000 on one of the loans amounting to $50,000,000, but officials of the bank said he received it in an official capacity for the bank and did not profit personally.

They said he may have had some part in negotiating the loans, but denied he was employed for that purpose.

Other Testimony.

Other developments yesterday were:

Testimony that an official of the National City Bank materially altered and revised a report by Herbert D. Brown, of the United States Bureau of Efficiency, on the financial condition of the Panama government before submitting it to that government.

Insertion in the record of a letter from Luis Abelli, Bolivian Minister to the United States, saying "the life of many a dictatorial and corrupt government" in Latin America "has been prolonged and rescued" by American bankers.

A charge by Senator Johnson that resources of the Chilean government were diverted from payment on nearly $200,000,000 of bonds sold to Americans and now in default to funding bonds of the Cosach Nitrate Syndicate held by the National City Bank and others.

Insertion of voluminous correspondence between the National City Bank and its representative in Bogota, concerning loans to Colombia, showing the Barco oil concession was frequently mentioned, though officials of the bank told the committee they were not interested in the petroleum concession now held by the Gulf Oil Co. and other American interests.

The Federal Loan Board proposed in one of Johnson's bills would be composed of the Secretaries of State and Commerce and the governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

No Federal Reserve bank or individual could make a foreign loan without the board's approval.

In passing on the loans the board would be required to consider the general financial condition of the borrower, the security available, the remedies available for enforcement of the obligation, the proposed method of financing, and the existence of any circumstance that might affect this country's foreign relations.

The other bill would require the lender to report to the Secretary of Commerce the terms, security and estimated profits of all foreign loans.

Methods Defended.

Ambassador Ferrar of Cuba last night defended business methods of Cuban officials involved in the loans under investigation.

"I have not come back for the investigation," he said. "Nothing can be shown damaging to any Cubans involved. My government is not interested in this investigation, first because the United States Senate has no control whatsoever over Cuban affairs, and second because we are not afraid of anything that can be revealed by the inquiry.

"On the contrary we welcome any investigation which would further establish the integrity of Cuba."

Secretary Mellon's statement follows in full text:

"A persistent effort has been made to connect the granting of the Barco oil concession by the government of Colombia with the granting of a loan by American bankers to that government and to imply that improper influence was exercised in order to bring about the granting of the concession. These indirect charges and innuendoes have recently received widespread publicity through a speech broadcast by a United States senator. Inasmuch as I am a stockholder in one of the companies interested in the concession and I have been definitely drawn into this matter, more particularly in the radio speech, I deem it proper to state the facts.

"I had no knowledge of the granting of the Barco concession which it is said was coincident with the fulfillment of a credit obligation. I had no knowledge at any time of any contract by bankers to grant a credit to the Colombian government. I never knew that such a credit had been granted or fulfilled until the Senate hearings.

"The record before the Senate committee indicates that the Barco concession was confirmed on June 20, 1931, and that the $4,000,000 credit obligation was met on June 30, 1931. I left Washington on my way to Europe on June 5, 1931, and did not return to this country until the end of August. All of these transactions took place during my absence. I had no knowledge before I left of any negotiations then pending, if they were pending, relating either to a bank credit or to the Barco concession. I did not discuss this loan with the Secretary of State, any officer of the State Department or any one else.

"The suggestion that I participated in or in any way concerned myself, directly or indirectly, with these transactions, is entirely without foundation in fact, and the senator was evidently misinformed.

"It may be observed that Assistant Secretary White in his testimony before the Senate finance committee definitely established the fact that the agreements by the bankers to open the credit were made in June and October, 1930, several months before the granting of the concession. The only question involved in June, 1931, was the fulfillment of a definite obligation previously made."

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Chase National Bank officials said today that the $500,000 paid to Jose Obregon, son-in-law of President Machado of Cuba, in connection with a $50,000,000 loan to Cuba was the regular 1 per cent commission due on that transaction and that only by coincidence had the money been paid to Obregon.

Obregon, it was said, had been the only representative of the banking institution available when the commission was paid and that he had received it in the normal course of business. After deduction of expenses, the balance was divided among the banking syndicate making the loan, namely the Chase, Blair & Co., the Equitable Trust and the Continental National Co. of Chicago.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Jose Obregon, son-in-law of President Machado, said today he was "clear" in the United States senatorial investigation of loans to Cuba.

"I happened to be manager of the bank at the time," he said, referring to the Havana branch of the Chase National Bank of New York, "and the check was made out to me as manager and redistributed in the natural course of business."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE following wire, received yesterday, is self-explanatory:

"The Newark Star-Eagle says: 'Blessed Event' is the play the theater has long been waiting for. It has glamour, hell-bent speed and comedy that bursts explosively and won't be denied. There are tense dramatic moments that help make this new play a powerfully exciting thing. The whirligig of modern Brodaway is made to shine and gleam in all its recklessness.'

"I thought you might possibly like to tell your readers (sic) about this fine reception. I really think we will bring you a good show. Sincerely,

"MARIAN SPITZER."

Miss Spitzer, you will recall, in private life, is the wife of Harlan Thompson, co-producer and director of "Blessed Event," the new columnist comedy by Manuel Seff and Forrest Wilson, that comes into the Belasco Theater next Monday night for a week's pre-Broadway run. Having been herself a newspaper, screen and magazine writer, Miss Spitzer's labors in behalf of the new play have been anything but of negligible value.

As a matter of fact, it seems to me I remember her telling me that so great was her confidence in the new work that she hocked a bond or something and invested the proceeds in the new theatrical property on her own account.

Greater faith than this hath no one, of whatever gender!

While trying its wings in the Belasco, "Blessed Event" will have stiff opposition, opening the same night, at the National in "The Band Wagon," that fabulous New Amsterdam Theater, New York, revue, starring Fred and Adele Astaire, Frank Morgan and Helen Broderick.

This was hailed by many as the most eminently superior of all the season's big musicals in New York. It is, as of course you know, written by Howard Dietz, who playwrights and librettos as an avocation while pursuing the major occupation of being Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's director of publicity. George S. Kaufman was his collaborator and Arthur Schwartz wrote the music. Hassard Short directed the production and Albertina Rasch staged the dances. What more do you want?

Down at the Gayety, come Sabbath afternoon, the attraction will be "Girls From the Follies," one of the better Columbia Burlesque Circuit's offerings, with Gypsy Rae Reed starred, along with Charles Smith, the eccentric "boob" comedian, whose humor is sure-fire.

E. M. Newman, the famous Travel-talker, now presenting a series of five Sunday afternoon European tours in motion and still pictures at the National Theater, either is just a bit clairvoyant or has a lot of luck. He seems always to be endowed with the instinct that is said to characterize the perfect city editor—knowing where hell is going to break loose next and having a man there to cover it!

He was the man himself when Spain went republican in the bloodless revolution. The clouds were rising when he arrived on the Iberian peninsula and the monarchy had been overthrown before he left. Thus, next Sunday's travel talk, "Spain, the Republic," will reflect first-hand knowledge of what actually happened. It is Mr. Newman's second talk of the series.

Frieda Hempel, the great coloratura soprano, who has returned to the concert stage after an absence of two seasons, will be the guest soloist at the sixth Sunday concert of the National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall, Sunday afternoon at 4, with Hans Kindler conducting.

Two famous arias will be sung by Miss Hempel during the course of the concert and the symphony, under Mr. Kindler's baton, will open with the Lohengrin Vorspiel of Wagner and also include the complete Peer Gynt suite, by Grieg.

The Boston Sympony Orchestra, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor, makes its appearance in Washington next Tuesday afternoon, February 2, at 4:30 o'clock, at Constitution Hall, as the fourth attraction in Mrs. Wilson-Greene's Philharmonic course of afternoon concerts. This will be the Boston Symphony Orchestra's only concert appearance in Washington this season.

It will be of interest to her many friends and admirers in the city that Sylvia Lent, on Tuesday of next week, February 2, in Central High School auditorium, at 8:15 p. m., will be presented as the first local solo artiste to be featured by the Community Institute in its season's schedule of events.

Miss Lent is a young violin virtuosa who has won acclaim on both sides of the Atlantic, having made her professional debut in Berlin in 1922.

It should be borne in mind that this is the week, and Friday the day, when the Metropolitan Theater shifts its opening from the customary Saturday to the Friday inaugural already observed by all of the other motion picture houses in town, with the sole exception of the Earle.

To signalize the change, the Metropolitan, beginning Friday, the 29th, will present a "thrill week," of which the major features will be an English-made production of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes story of "The Speckled Band" and the complete film record of every play in the Tulane-Southern California Tournament of Roses football game, which is being widely acclaimed as the best thing of its kind ever done.

The complete roster of photoplays in the downtown, first-run sector next week, will be as follows: Fox, George O'Brien and Cecilia Parker in Zane Grey's "Rainbow Trail" and James Dunn in person; RKO-Keith's, Anne Harding, Adolphe Menjou and Melvyn Douglas in "Prestige," and Daphne Pollard headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans in "Lovers Courageous," and the "Stepping High" revue; Earle, Miriam Hopkins and Phillips Holmes in "Two Kinds of Women," and Jans and Whalen headlining the vaudeville; Rialto, "Slim" Summerville and ZaSu Pitts in "The Unexpected Father;" Metropolitan, "The Speckled Band" and "Tulane vs. Southern California;" Columbia, Fredric March and Miriam Hopkins in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," second week.

In case you had wondered, Frank Garner, appearing currently at the Palace in the "Hollywood Collegians" revue, is a brother of Paul Garner, of Washington, who for several seasons was one of the two nut associates of Jack Pepper in all of his acts.

Tomorrow night at the Rialto Theater the boys are throwing an extra midnight performance. The major screen feature will be "The Unexpected Father," heralded as one of the funniest comedies of recent release, which will be given an additional unreeling after the second regularly scheduled evening performance.

Then there are some preview screenings coming off, too. Saturday night, at the Fox, for example, an invited audience will be given an early matutinal showing of "The Silent Witness," in which Lionel Atwill and Weldon Heyburn, Washingtonians all, both are featured. Weldon Heyburn, by the way, is a close West Coast friend of Jimmy Dunn, who will be present in the flesh at the Saturday night rout.

Rumblings are also stirring about of a screening of "Mata-Hari," with Garbo and Ramon Novarro, under the auspices of the Loew interests, the first of the week.

In contemplation of all this, there is just one minor matter I should like to have cleared up:

When do we sleep?

BATTALINO-MILLER BOUT IS RULED "NO CONTEST"

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

PROFESSIONAL golf, unlike Gaul, is divided into only two parts. The names that grace the headlines in the national and big money tournaments are those of the playing professionals, but they are outnumbered ten to one by the teaching pros, the lads who stay close to the caddy houses and minister to the needs of club members delinquent in the fundamentals of the game.

The professional troupe which follows the tournaments, the golden trail that leads from Florida to the Pacific Northwest in winter and the rich rewards of the Northern tourneys in summer, are merely ornamentary in their home club affiliations, never pausing in their quest for purses to impart their skill to the great body of men who could benefit from the lessons.

So eager has been the desire of the rich and pompous among the golf clubs to obtain the prestige and glory of outstanding professionals that it has long been the custom to engage these nationally known stars merely to carry their club affiliations into the big tournaments while lesser known pros are hired to carry out the manual duties of the club professional.

"The real tonic of golf is the professional who devotes all his time to club duties and never shares in the plaudits of championship galleries," declared Alex Pirie, honorary president of the Professional Golf Association of America.

"Only a small percentage of the pros follow championship tournaments," continues Mr. Pirie. There are some 3,300 pros in the United States, yet 90 per cent stick closely by their clubs attending assiduously to the manifold duties that fall on their shoulders.

"A recent compilation of golf statistics showed there were 2,072,614 active golfers in the United States during 1931. With only 3,300 pros, the ratio is one instructor for every 628 players. The pro is not only an instructor, although that is his most important task. His services to club members are many. He is called upon to select and supply the proper equipment; to repair broken implements and to play with duffer as well as star. This is the work of the great body of pros who don't reach the headlines."

The Professional Golfers Association in three short years has organized the ranks of paid players of the links into a smoothly working, compact, efficient body destined to raise and maintain the highest requirements among golf professionals.

A three-year apprenticeship under the supervision of some recognized professional is required of prospective members of the P. G. A., thus limiting the field of qualified professionals to the element better able to teach the game, the pros who have learned golf from the masters, and learned, too, the art of imparting their skill.

George Von Elm, former amateur player, was the first to feel the weight of the P. G. A. three-year edict when he was refused entrance in the National P. G. A. tournament on the grounds that he had served no apprenticeship as a pro. There is none to doubt Von Elm's skill on the links, but as yet he has displayed no technique as a teacher, which, in the final analysis is the greatest demand upon a professional. The P. G. A. is maintaining the art of teaching as the first requisite of its members, which is as it should be.

For unadulterated thrills, it is easy to recommend Warner Brothers picture, "Southern California vs. Tulane," which will soon be released for public consumption. It was shown yesterday to a group of football coaches and newspapermen in the projection studio of the Earle, and, for 50 minutes, virtually play by play, held the scribes on the edges of their respective chairs.

It is Hollywood's first attempt to screen a complete football game. The reel, all of it in slow motion, seems to be not only a priceless object lesson for embryo college and scholastic stars, but is packed full of suspense for the not-to-be-overlooked J. Angus Fan.

Would Accept Salary Cut, Ruth Hints

Babe Refers to 1-Year Contract; Sure to Play, He Says.

Bambino Leaves for South Monday to Await Training.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth said today he was sure he would be out in right-field for the New York Yankees when Col. Ruppert's team opens against the Athletics at Philadelphia on April 12.

"Do you think I'd be eating two meals a day and going without pie, if I wasn't sure I'd be playing with the Yanks?" the sultan of swat demanded, wiping a stream of sweat from his forehead.

The interview started while George Herman was in the middle of his gymnasium workout and the bambino was in an uncertain mood because he had 2½ more miles to pump. His comparatively skinny, pink legs were going up and down like pistons; his pug-nose face was flushed from exertion and his heavy white sweater was wringing with perspiration.

What About Salary?

"But what about you salary——" the reporter started to get right down to business.

"Aw—, nertz!" ejaculated the Babe. Then the well-wnown face mellowed into a smile. The big fellow said he was sorry and explained that "this velocipede" got on his nerves sometimes. He assured that he was confident his salary dispute with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, would be ironed out all right.

"As a last resort, to get the matter settled, would you take a salary slash?" the scribe inquired.

The Babe pedalled a moment in silence, then countered with "well, I'm not saying I wouldn't."

America's outstanding diamond luminary recently mailed back to the Yankees his unsigned 1932 contract. The contract had contained a salary cut of $10,000 from the $80,000 annual stipend he had received under his previous two-year contract.

Yankee Offer for One Year.

When he dropped the contract in the mail box, the Babe told newspaper men he would not take $70,000 on a one-year contract. He said he might take that sum on a two-year contract. The Yankees' offer had been for one year.

The reporter asked Ruth if his salary slash statement today referred to a one-year contract.

"Oh, well—I guess so," he responded.

During the last mile, the Babe explained he was leaving Monday for St. Petersburg, Fla., to play golf and lounge around until training season started, about February 24.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 27 (U.P.). Tommy Goodwin, Monroe (N. Y.) youth, eliminated the defending champion, Arthur Yates, Rochester, N. Y., 2 and 1, in second round in the annual Lake Worth golf tournament here today. Other survivors were Albert Hakes, Dunkirk (N. Y.) medalist; William B. Langford, Chicago.

Scoville and Kenny Out Of 3-Cushion Running

Chicago, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, and Len Kenney, of Chicago, saw their hopes for the world's three cushion billiard championship flicker and die today, both receiving their third defeat.

The veteran, Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, himself far out of the championship race, applied the brakes to Scoville's chances by defeating him, 50 to 30, in 55 innings, and was followed by Jay Bozeman, Vallejo (Calif.), youngster, who conquered Kenney, 50 to 35, in 48 innings.

Gus Copulos, of Eugene, Oreg., won his fourth straight game in defeating Bud Westhus, of St. Louis, 50 to 30 in 53 innings.

Conger Far Back In Newark Race

Nordell Defeats Star Field in Fast Time; Singer Sweeps Sprints.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 27. (A.P.).—Frank Nordell, middle distance star of New York University, defeated a huge field tonight in the 1,000-yard handicap run, one of the features of the indoor meet of the Newark Athletic Club. Starting at scratch, 30 yards behind most of his 42 rivals, Nordell passed the field shortly past the half way mark and easily increased his lead the rest of the way. Finishing ten yards ahead of Ed Brown, unattached, who was second. George Kastner of New York University was third, with A. Mills of the Prudential A. A. fourth.

Nordell's time was 2:17 2-5, fast, in view of the conditions.

Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., holder of the national A. A. U. championship at the distance, started with Nordell at scratch but was able to finish no better than twelfth.

Ira Singer, last year's indoor champion, competing unattached, made a clean sweep of the night's sprint series by winning the 50, 60 and 70 yard dashes from a crack field.

CANN NAMED TO COACH AT N.Y.U.

Successor to Meehan Former Violet Star; Knows Football.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Howard G. (Jake) Cann, the greatest all-around athlete ever produced at New York University, today was appointed head football coach and director of physical training at the Violet institution to succeed John F. (Chicks) Meehan, who resigned six weeks ago.

Cann, who graduated in 1920 and who has been head basket ball coach at N. Y. U. since 1923, will assume his new duties Monday, it was announced today. In addition to his new status as head coach of two major ports, Cann will be a member of the faculty, with the rank of assistant professor.

He succeeds his father, Frank H. Cann, as physical director and supervisor of the university gymnasium. The senior Cann has been connected with N. Y. U. for 37 years, and for more than half that time has been physical director.

Has Wide Experience In Game.

Although he has not coached football in recent years, the Violet's new mentor has had wide experience on the gridiron and is a student of the game. He captained the 1919 Violet eleven, playing a star game both on the line and at full back, and was one of the East's outstanding kickers.

After his graduation in 1920, he was appointed assistant football director under Tom Thorp and assistant basket ball coach under Ed Thorp. He held the football post until 1925, when Meehan came to the Heights. In 1923 he succeeded to the post of head basket ball coach, which he has retained almost a decade.

Appointment of Cann as football coach is in line with the university's new and avowed policy of "de-empasizing" the fall sport.

Meehan Resigned Position.

Meehan, regarded as an advocate of "high pressure" football, resigned on the eve of the athletic council's announcement of a drastic curtailment of the school's football program. Meehan since has accepted a position as athletic director at Manhattan College, in the metropolitan area.

Cann will retain the same staff of assistants that worked with Meehan last year.

Cann attended Dartmouth in his freshman year and starred in three sports. He transferred to N. Y. U. the next year and starred in football, basket ball and track. He was a star on the 1919 basket ball team, which won the national A. A. U. title. He won the intercollegiate shotput title in 1920 and that year was picked as a member of the American Olympic team.

Passon Pros Replay Skinker Five Sunday

A basket ball team that has been forced to concede both seniority and experience in order to make connections with worthwhile opposition, again will grace a District court Sunday when Passon professionals take issue with Skinker Eagles in a return meeting at Bolling Field.

Comprised largely of lads still in their teens, the colorful Passons have swept through a formidable field, while landing the independent championship of Philadelphia and vicinity. Only recently the Quaker City boys marked off their thirty-first victory in 32 starts.

Decisively flailing the Eagles last Sunday, the Philadelphians will be out to cop by a still wider margin during the impending Sabbath. In a promising preliminary, Census Enumerators are to encounter Bolling Field in a Government League game at 2 o'clock.

Wood Breaks Speedboat Record

American Pilots Boat at Rate of 110.785 Miles Per Hour.

Don's Mark Exceeded by Half Mile; New Trial Today.

By HENRY S. WRENN.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27 (A. P.).—Gar Wood shot his Miss America IX along Indian Creek course to a new 110.785-mile an hour world's speedboat record today to reclaim supremacy of the water for America.

Wood's speed was a scant half-mile better than the record of 110.223 miles an hour set at Lake Garda, Italy, last July by Kaye Don in taking the speed boat record to England. The Detroit sportsman's mark today also raised his own American record of 103.269 miles an hour, set here April 16, 1931.

Wood, however, was not satisfied with his speed and announced after two runs over the measured nautical mile course that he would try to raise the record a mile an hour tomorrow, after making minor changes in the hull of his boat.

Fastest on Run South.

Streaking the 24-cylinder craft over the water course in two runs, Wood's speed was recorded by electrical timing equipment as 111.08 and 110.49 miles an hour, respectively, for south and northbound trips. The average of these gave him the new record. Elapsed times for the first trip was 37.32 seconds and 37.52 for the second.

His time must be checked by the Yachtsmen's Association of America, under whose sanctions the trials were made, before the record may be called official. C. W. Chase, jr., Miami Beach, and five other men acted today as a committee of official observers for the association.

"I am happy we broke the record," Wood said as he and his mechanic Orlin Johnson of Detroit, climbed out of the boat, "but I believe we can do at least a mile an hour better, and we'll try again tomorrow if weather conditions permit."

Course "Pretty Mean," Says Wood.

The Indian Creek course was "pretty mean," Wood said, because of an 8-mile-an-hour southeast wind and a rising tide.

"It's rough and bumpy when you're making 110 miles an hour, although it may look smooth from over here at the timing stand," he said.

Wood's stop-watch in the boat showed southbound time as 35 4-5 seconds, instead of the 37.32 clocked by the electric timing device ashore, he said. He explained he was not complaining about the timing equipment, which was pronounced in perfect order before the trials started. He kept time in the boat for comparison, he said, and in order to gain a better check of motor performance.

Lord Wakefield to Build British Challenge Boat

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Lord Charles Wakefield, wealthy British sportsman, soon will build another speedboat, Miss England III, which may bring back to England the world's speedboat record, he announced today.

Lord Wakefield, owner of the Miss England II, which set the record broken by Gar Wood's Miss America IX today, congratulated Wood on his achievement in a statement to the press.

He explained he had decided to build Miss England III, which would be piloted by Kaye Don, former record holder, and which would be expected to attain a speed greater than Miss America II.

Bell, Butler Sports Director, Quits Berth

Indianapolis Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Harry M. Bell, athletic director at Butler University announced today that he had resigned. He recently was granted a leave of absence for graduate study in coaching at the University of Southern California.

Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, coach of basket ball, had been appointed temporarily to fill the vacancy and he now is slated as Bell's successor.

A new head football coach is expected to be named. Bell had coached football.

Sharkey Made a Success of Failure As His Career, Rarely Failing to Fail

Can Be Relied Upon to Do Worst in Biggest Bouts.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Jack Sharkey is a young man who took up failure as a career early in life and made a success of it. Sharkey has made at least $500,000 in the last seven or eight years. He probably has somewhat less than half of that amount now, because he is a free spender, and, anyway, any one who had $500,000 invested in any of the familiar ways in 1929 can be regarded as lucky if his capital has shrunk no more than 50 per cent by now. Rich prize fighters are not peculiar in this respect. Sharkey, though, is fond of very expensive automobiles and, since he began to make money, has not been content to keep up with the Jonses in the expensive suburb where he lives. He has generally kept a little ahead of the Joneses.

Sharkey's first success as a failure occurred in his debut in New York about seven years ago. He was matched with a rather well-known young heavyweight named Eddie Huffman. Huffman was not a good fighter, and Sharkey was expected to beat him badly. Instead, however, Jack fought a bad fight and barely won. The fight was so bad that the prize fight commissioners thought he had not done his best and summoned him before them a few days later to explain their suspicions away. In the meantime they withheld his purse.

Escapes With Confession.

Sharkey allayed the suspicions of the prize fight commissioners in a few words. Old William Muldoon, who has a strong paternal trait in him, thought Sharkey had the making of a great prize fighter, and he was uncommonly sore at him for betraying this confidence.

"I wasn't stalling," Sharkey explained, however. "I know it was a punk fight, but the reason for that is very simple. The reason is that I am a punk fighter. Punk fighters fight punk fights, and that is your answer."

So the prize fight commissioners released his purse, and Sharkey was off to a profitable start as a false alarm.

People began to take a strange interest in this remarkable young athlete, whose emotions bubbled and boiled into shrewish rages and tearful tantrums in the ring. He was building up a reputation as a bust. He could lose fights in spite of apparently insuperable odds. But he was not entirely reliable. He happened into the ring to fight old Harry Wills, the sad, complaining Negro who had been Jim-Crowed out of the championship competition in expiation of the social offenses committed by Jack Johnson.

Wills seemed pretty sure to win this one, but Sharkey betrayed his following who expected him to lose. He won by the referee's action. The referee disqualified Wills for holding

$1 Mutuels Abolished By Fair Grounds Track

New Orleans, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The Fairgrounds today abolished the $1 mutuels, which were tried out on the opening day and second day of the winter racing meet, and returned to the $2 ticket minimum.

John P. Sullivan, chairman of the board of directors of the Louisiana Jockey Club, operators of the racing plant, said $1 mutuels and $1 daily double would be reserved solely for the field stand.

"The Louisiana Jockey Club instituted the $1 mutuels throughout the Fairgrounds because it believed it would win the approval of our patrons," Sullivan said. "Such has not been the result."

Many Disappointments Have Netted Him $500,000.

Amateurs to Box At Congressional

Brooks, of Charlottesville School, Faces Zinkham in Feature Tonight.

Marion Brooks, 18-year-old welterweight who attends the Charlottesville School for Boys, and is regarded as one of the finest amateurs in the South for his weight, heads tonight's card of six bouts at the Congressional Country Club, meeting LeRoy Zinkham, of the Ritz Athletic Club, Baltimore.

For the first time since the inauguration of Congressional amateur fights women will be admitted tonight. If the women of the club patronize the matches in good numbers, the club will remove the "stag" aspect of the bouts.

The majority of the other bouts are of an intercity nature, featuring boxers from the stables of the Ritz Athletic Club and the local American Legion. The feature preliminary matches Jack Baxter, all-high center at Tech, with Stan Cielieski. Other bouts are George Frizell vs. Ernest Grisett, Angelo Bradario vs. Don Burgess, Frank Hosza vs. Joe Sweatman, Mike Clannos vs. Ralph Smith and Nick Franchitta vs. Harry Haas.

Henry Fownes Beaten At Pinehurst Golf

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Donald Parson, Youngstown, Ohio, eliminated Henry C. Fownes 2d, Pittsburgh medalist, one up, in the St. Valentine's day golf tournament today. He will meet Halbert J. Blue, Aberdeen, N. C., in final play tomorrow. Blue beat Robert G. Morrison, Pittsburgh, 4 and 3.

TITLE HOPES OF CENTRAL AT STAKE

Friday's Tech Game Makes or Breaks Improved Team.

CENTRAL'S hopes of remaining in the high school series race will be severely put to test tomorrow afternoon when the Blue and White squad gets its second series shot at Tech, now leading the high school basket ball brawl by a none-to-secure margin. Earlier in the series Tech first began to show its power by beating Central, 29-15.

But the Central that was beaten 29-15 is not the same squad Bert Coggins is guiding today. In the meantime they have dropped but one game, and that a valve-twisting 28-27 verdict to Eastern, after leading all the way. The team doubtless is the best aggregation of passers the high schools have had in two years, and is daily showing a more even division of shooting strength on the club, where once the bulk of it fell on Bill Burke's shoulders.

Tech Annexed Previous Game.

Tech totally blasted Central's attack in the previous game. The Blue and White Team's passing crumpled on the armature of Tech's zone defense. Unable to get the ball consistently in under the basket, Central resorted to long shots, but could not score consistently.

Tomorrow's game is going to be tighter, there seems little doubt. Tech has come from behind to win its three series games, and many of the bench experts are saying that it is about time for their comeback strain to break. But the majority of the fans probably will be betting Tech's way, largely on the strength of its earlier win.

The other series game matches Eastern and Business in a game which Eastern should cop after a struggle with the aggressive little Stenographers.

Today Business and Gonzaga go at it again, St. Alban's tackles Landon at Epiphany, and Eastern entertains National Training.

Lew Raymond, Braunstein Fight

Welters in Semifinal on Alexandria Day Nursery Card Tuesday.

Lew Raymond, sensational Baltimore welterweight, will oppose Sammy Braunstein, crack local Jewish welter, in the semifinal to the Marty Gallagher-Natie Brown go Monday night at Portner's Arena in the weekly Alexandria Day Nursery show, it was announced last night.

Raymond, a brother of Phil and Joey, has reached the peak of his boxing career. Only recently he defeated Ralph Lenny at the arena in Philadelphia in the semiwindup to the Benny Bass-Prince Saunders battle.

Raymond has defeated Stumpy Jacobs, Charley Gomer, Sailor McKenna and Pat Igoe. Braunstein, a favorite here, holds a technical knockout over Harry Kid Groves. He is a murderous puncher with his right hand and is a real match for the hard-punching Baltimorean.

Patsy Lewis, whom many are predicting will go far in the fight racket, returns to meet Sailor McKenna in the six-round main preliminary. Lewis, in his last showing here, stopped Billy Essinger in two rounds. He made Roddy Davis quit in two and beat Marino Marini.

Vic's Five to Tackle New Yorkers Sunday

Strengthened by the return of Jake Goldblatt and Dick Streeks, who were forced to idle because of severe colds last week, the Vic's Sport Shop five will meet the Columbia Turners, of New York, Sunday at 3 p. m., in the Silver Spring Armory.

The Turners have compiled an impressive record for the season, numbering among their victims the Broadway Theatricals, which team trimmed Vic's several weeks ago. Bill Keenan, well known to all followers of the court game, is coaching the Columbia quintet. Keenan enjoys a reputation as one of the smartest mentors in the game and he has imparted a generous quantity of his tricks to his charges.

A preliminary game, featuring the G. P. O. and Patent Office, Federal League teams, will be played at 2 p. m.

Wide Open Races for Titles In A. A. U. Court Tourney

NEW teams, new faces, will dot the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament this season, giving every entrant a chance to share in the distribution of nearly 100 awards. Four of the seven defending champions have either disbanded or graduated into higher competition, and the race for the seven championships appears, at this early date, wide open.

Last year's champions, who came through victorious in a month of stirring play, were: Unlimited, Potomac Boat Club Scholastics; 145, Saks Clothiers; 130, Boys Club Optimists; 115, Charlottesville Fives; 100, Boys Club Optimists. In the girls' divisions the winning sextets were: Unlimted, Eagles, and juniors, Rockville.

A majority of the boys who carried the Boat Club Scholastics to victory, the most of them Eastern High stars, are not playing together this year. The Boatmen, however, have formed a good combination and will be choice contenders. Saks, a power as it was last year in basket ball, will play in the unlimited division. The 130-pound Boys Club Optimists have outgrown their division and will step into 145-pound competition, and the Charlottesville Fives will not compete, because of the fact that they have been ruled outside the jurisdiction of the District A. A. U.

The "Fives" teams may compete in Baltimore's South Atlantic A. A. U. tournament, and may come here late in the District of Columbia tournament for exhibition games with the leaders.

Teams in the 130, 145 and unlimited divisions have only until Monday at midnight to be registered as amateurs with Charles M Fyfe at the Boys Club. The remaining classes can register up until February 23, the date on which all team blanks must be in.

Nicholson, Capital Golfer, Gains Semifinals in Miami Tourney

Special to The Washington Post.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27—H. W. D. Nicholson, of Washington, D. C., advanced to the semifinals in the third flight of the annual Miami Beach Championship Golf Tournament, as the result of a victory over Henry J. Smith, of Schenectady, N. Y., in the second round over the La Gorce Golf Club course here today by 2 up and 1 to play.

L. W. Laudick, of Washington, a member of the Columbia Country Club, failed to survive in the second division, succumbing to Kenneth Berry, of Miami, by 1 up. Nicholson played well throughout, establishing a comfortable advantage at the start. He was 2 up at the turn and encountered little difficulty in maintaining his margin for the duration of the match. Nicholson will oppose C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, in the semifinal round tomorrow.

Flashing his way around the course in subpar fashion, T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, triumphed over Gus Novotny, of La Grange, Ill., by 4 up and 2 to play. John B. Ryerson, of Coopertown, N. Y., the defending champion, put out Ed Romfh, jr., of Miami, by 3 and 2. Perkins, the medalist, continued his

Brouillard Risks Title Tonight Against Fields, Former Champion

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Lou Brouillard, sturdy French-Canadian youngster of Worcester, Mass., will defend his world's welterweight championship tomorrow night against a former holder of the crown, Jackie Fields, who believes he can win it back.

The champion rules an 8 to 5 favorite to retain his honors. Brouillard, in risking his title for the first time, will battle Fields ten rounds, or less, in the Chicago Stadium. The contest, supported by bouts involving the light heavyweight championship tournament, figures to attract 12,000 spectators with receipts around $35,000.

Brouillard, only 5 feet 5 inches tall, is a natural welterweight and expects to scale 145 pounds tomorrow afternoon. Fields, who has not made the 147-pound notch since he lost the title to Young Jack Thompson two years ago, says he will make the weight without difficulty and expects to scale 146 pounds.

Fields says his condition is the best since he won the title from Joe Dundee. His left hand, twice fractured during his comback campaign has held up strongly in training.

Brouillard is a southpaw, and his style may cause Fields plenty of trouble. Unlike other southpaws however, Brouillard makes good use of his right hand.

N. B. A. Strips Champion of Crown

Referee Leaves Ring When 'Light Blow' Floors Italian.

Bat Shorn of Title Earlier, Failing to Make Weight.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—The ten-round fight between Bat Battalino, erstwhile champion of the featherweights, and Freddie Miller, Cincinnati southpaw, was declared no contest in the third round when Battalino went down under what Referee Lou Bauman declared to be a "light" blow.

Miller came out of his corner in the third and sent Bat down for a short count with a right to the chin. Bauman ordered him to get up and continue. When Battalino got to his feet, Miller sent him down again and Bauman stopped the fight at the direction of the Cincinnati Boxing Commission.

Battalino Loses Title.

Battalino was shorn of recognition by the National Boxing Commission as featherweight champion today when he weighed in over the 126-pound limit for the bout, billed as for the championship. Since he weighed 129¾, however, the commission ruled the fight could be held, and Miller declared champion if he won.

The no contest ruling leaves the field open with the title vacant, as it would have been had Battalino won.

Carl Wilzbach, chairman of the Cincinnati Boxing Commission, announced from the ring that the commission foresaw such an emergency, and added all ticket purchasers would get their money back.

The crowd of hardly more than 2,000 booed the fighters throughout when the first two rounds saw little or no action.

Bauman, after declaring the milling "no contest," turned his back to the fighters and walked from the ring. Miller and Battalino went to their corners, but were sent back by their seconds, and began sparring around the ring again.

Miller Claims Crown.

Miller vigorously claimed the title and had to be taken from the ring by his seconds. Battalino told the crowd he was weakened by his efforts to make the weight.

Battalino was down approximately fifteen seconds, the second time, but Bauman did not count, finally lifting the former champion to his feet and telling him to "fight."

Battalino, however, offered Miller no defense and Bauman walked from the ring.

De Paul, G. W. Victim, Beaten by St. John's

Some idea of the relatives strength of George Washington University and St. John's of Brooklyn in basket ball might well have been shown last night, when the New York championship club downed De Paul, 35-21. George Washington beat De Paul 35-to-28 here last Monday night. The Colonials and St. John's are scheduled to meet February 26 in New York, but efforts are being made to shift the game to Washington.

DON LEON SHOWS TOP FORM IN TAKING HIALEAH FEATURE

Texas Knight Wins Debut as 3-Year-Old at New Orleans.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 27 (A. P.).—Don Leon, the Western flash owned by R. W. Collins, raced to his top form here today to score a smashing victory in the featured Dade County Handicap of 6 furlongs. The 4-year-old son of Lee O. Cotner ran the distance in 1:11 and finished a length clear of another Westerner, Brown Wisdom. Panetian was a neck behind in third place. The winner paid $10.90.

The start was straggling and played an important part in the result. Panetian went up in the air and was an early trailer while Helianthus, which was favorite, hung enough to have a handicap to overcome.

Leros Takes Big Early Lead.

Leros got away fast and Don Leon was next in line. Willie Carroll allowed Leros to steal a wide early lead, but "Red" Pollard had plenty of horse under him and did not make his real move with Don Leon until leaving the back stretch. Brown Wisdom crept up to the leaders, while Helianthus also became a contender after saving ground on the turn for home. Panetian went wide and the field sailed through the stretch in a spirited battle until Don Leon drew away inside the furlong pole. He was ridden out to the end.

Woco caused considerable consternation among the talent when he failed to finish in the money after swerving to the inside right after the break of the 2-year-old contest. The move did Woco no good and impeded Swaggerstick and King Hollis. The winner turned up in the sadly neglected Dry Ridge, which returned $112.40 for $2. He beat Strait Jacket by a length, while the latter was a head before Mike Reynolds. Dry Ridge took the lead early and drew clear, but had to be hard ridden to stave off Strait Jacket when the latter challenged in the last furlong.

Texas Knight Wins Feature At New Orleans.

Fairgrounds Race Track, New Orleans, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Texas Knight, an appropriately named son of Sir Galahad III, from the Texas-owned Three D's stock farm, made a successful debut as a 3-year-old today, winning the Sapirant purse over 6 furlongs.

With Jimmy Burke in the saddle, Texas Knight jumped into the lead at the rise of the barrier. Never relinquishing his advantage, the Texas colt finished a length and a half in front of C. Janusak's Sandwrack. J. A. Marsch's Simple Singer, which alternated with Sandwrack in forcing the pace, was third.

On the basis of several speedy trials, Texas Knight, which was coupled with Pietro, was the even money favorite. He ran the distance over a heavy track in 1:16 4-5.

The daily double combination of Marlene and Lofty Heights, both long shots, paid $209.20 for $2.

Excellency Repeats at Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—A. G. Tarn's Excellency, which was unable to win a race in four starts last year, won his third straight at Oriental Park today as he led a band of platers home in the mile and 50-yard feature of an all-claiming program.

Excellency was asked to pick up 7 pounds over his last victory, but he ran the distance in 1:43 1-5 to defeat Miss B. Bowman's Tang and Flo O'Neill from C. N. Freeman's barns. The time was three and one-fifth second slower than the track record made by King David under 96 pounds in 1928.

Despite his two previous victories over the Cuban turf, Excellency paid 4 to 1, 8 to 5 and 4 to 5 across the board.

LAST ATTEMPT, moving up stoutly on the back stretch, went to the front and was rated under slight restraint until final furlong, where he had to be hard ridden to stall off EL PUMA. Latter worked his way up on the outside and finished full of courage out in the middle of the track. PLAY BILL lugged the rail all the way. He was in hand in the early stages. DISCOBOLUS closed gamely under a drive. GHOST DANCER was carried wide most of the trip.

DRY RIDGE went to the front with a rush, bore over to inside and hung on with determination under punishment. STRAIT JACKET was closing on the outside and outgamed MIKE REYNOLDS at end. Latter hung right at end. SMOKE CLOUD closed strong after a slow beginning. WOCO broke toward the inside fence, causing a jam in which KING HOLLIS and SWAGGERSTICK were forced to be pulled up. H. A. KNOWLTON broke slowly and outrun until well around the far turn, where Malley went to the outside. KNOWLTON steadily improved his position and, after a long, hard stretch drive, was up in the final strides. PARNELL BOUND bounced to the front and set a rapid pace. He hung on with good courage under punishment. DOUBLE HEART saved ground entering home stretch. He tired after making a bold effort inside the furlong pole. COADY broke slowly and appeared to be galloping all the way.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IMPISH, $5.40, $2.80, $2.30; SUNFIRE, $3.10, $2.30; ISLAM, $2.90.

IMPISH, rated along under slight restraint, forced the pace to the top of home stretch, where he shook off MONTANARO and had something in reserve when SUNFIRE challenged. Latter raced on the outside of the leaders all the way. He outlasted ISLAM when it came to a drive. Latter, a forward contender from the break, lost ground at the top of home stretch, where he went wide. GARLIC stopped after moving up stoutly rounding the far turn.

BROWN WISDOM, off slowly, closed a big gap and finished stoutly. PANETIAN, left at the post in a tangle, was taken to the outside at top of home stretch. He hung at end. HELIANTHUS dwelled when break came.

DYAK, outrun in early stages, moved up stoutly entering home stretch and just lasted long enough. BLACK MOCK began very slowly and was taken to outside at stretch turn. He closed stoutly and was gaining on the winner at end. CATHOP shook off FREDERICK just after fifty yards. Latter was on outside of leaders to stretch turn. SONG HIT and BAY ANGON raced each other into submission. The winner stumbled after the finish and unseated his rider.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOREALONG, $5.90, $4.10, $2.60; OUTBURST, $5.40, $4.60; GRIFFIN, $2.70.

TOREALONG ran a great race. He was shut off right after start and reached first turn with trailers, moved up very fast when clear on back stretch and, saving ground on the inside, gradually wore down leaders in stretch to take lead and hold on gamely. OUTBURST closed a belated rush in last furlong after being outrun to stretch. GRIFFIN worked his way up steadily, but tired in final stages from early efforts. BIRD OF PREY got to the front around bend, but faltered under pressure in stretch. BEN BLAIR was timidly ridden.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 27.—LADY BROADCAST appears to be a standout in the Pan American Purse, feature of the card tomorrow. This speedy mare, which was sold for $20,000 at the disposal sale of Rogers Caldwell last year, won her first start at Miami this winter when she defeated Dancing Mack and Raccoon on January 14, but lost in the Miami Beach Handicap later. She takes off weight and meets an ordinary field in the mile feature.

JOHN F., second to Meridian Queen last out, should be the contender. DANCING MACK is in top form, and will get third money if he runs back to recent races. Miami racing has had a wonderful break in the weather. The track continues fast.

FIRST RACE — Mahopac Stable's DIANA D. has a good chance to win. In her last start she was third and is about ready to graduate from maiden division. GALLOPING DUCHESS probably is the class of the race, but has been idle since the Bowie meeting. She should be the contender. LADY ARVO is next best.

SECOND RACE—LUCILLE K. is selected to win. In her last start she was second to Wise Anne by a half length, a race which equaled the track record. REVONAH is the chief contender, having finished second to Chuck B. last time out.

THIRD RACE—MUFF, which was nosed out by Batty Monday, should beat the field in the third. She takes off weight and has easi opposition to overcome. TOP HATTIE should hold the others safe. BOB'S PLAY ran well a few days ago, finishing third to Tomberau.

FOURTH RACE—PORT HARLEM is picked to take the measure of MAE SWEEP. Both have won recently, but PORT HARLEM seems to have the advantage in class. LOVE OFFERING should defeat the remainder of this field, but she is not running to best form. PORT HARLEM was very fast in the East last year and has taken her speed into the winter campaign.

SIXTH RACE—SHIVA was a consistent winner in Maryland last fall and is capable of winning the sixth race, where she is below her class. MISS TULSA, second to Dr. Syntax in her last start, has the edge on the others in this field. NIGHT EDITION, on Tropical Park form, should be third.

SEVENTH RACE—SILVERY, a beaten favorite, is selected. FRANCES ST. L., running several good races in Florida, will like the route, and should be a dangerous contender. TEA CRACKER, which has disappointed repeatedly, may figure in the money.

SHARKEY HAS MADE GOOD FAILING

and hitting, a practice indulged in by all the white prize fighters, including Sharkey. This was a raw deal for Wills, of course, but it was the sense of the prize fight profession that Wills must be eliminated from the situation one way or another so as to avoid the embarrassing possibility of his winning the championship some day.

However, that mishap and the incident with Jimmy Maloney of Boston, whom Sharkey knocked out in Yankee Stadium the night Lindbergh flew for Paris, were the only two conspicuous reversals of form in an otherwise generally consistent career of failure.

Sharkey fought Arturo De Kuh in Boston and failed brilliantly against a certified third rater, barely winning the decision when he should have won quickly by a knockout.

And Then the Dempsey Affair.

He got a match with Jack Dempsey which was to decide between them the right to fight Tunney for the championship. Sharkey and Dempsey drew $1,083,000 in Yankee Stadium, of which Dempsey received $350,711 and Sharkey $210,000. Sharkey was younger than Dempsey, his legs were stronger, and he was a straight puncher. In the first round he got Dempsey on the ropes and almost melted the legs from under him with several straight, shocking cracks on the jaw. Dempsey sagged, his mouth fell agape and he seemed about to go out. But he pulled himself together and somehow lived through to the third round, by which time Sharkey, the wonder-bust of the age, was beginning to cringe and sympathize with himself.

A couple of rounds later Sharkey turned victory into astonishing defeat when he dropped his hands and turned to whine to the referee about some immaterial punches slightly below the belt. At this Dempsey cracked him on the chin with his left and Sharkey flopped down and, technically out. He did not get up, although most of the sages of the prize fight assembled there said Dempsey or Tunney or even old Tom Heeney would have struggled up at least once from the same punch.

Still Had Several Good Flops Left.

Failure had made a rich man of Sharkey by now, and this undoubtedly was one of the two great failures of his career. Still, he was not through. He had several good flops left in him. His other masterpiece was the flop against Schmeling, and here he showed his versatility as a complete, all-around false alarm. In the one great failure of his life he had gone down as the result of a foul delivered on his own person. In the other great washout he delivered the losing punch himself, fouling out at a time when it seemed as if this time failure was beyond his talents.

He went on to fail against Fainting Philip Scott in Florida, delivering several fouls this time; against Mickey Walker, a fat and ageing middleweight who had not had the confidence to defend the middleweight title against middleweights, and against Johnny Risko.

It may be claimed against Sharkey that he failed to fall against Jack Delaney in one of the most expensive indoor fights ever produced, but I can defend him against this false charge. Delaney took a poke on the teeth and went to the floor, groveling and growling like a young father playing bear with a cooing child. Sharkey raved and wept along the ropes, lurching like a stock actress doing Camille.

So this hardly could be charged against Sharkey's record as a victory. Under other conditions he might have lost handily.

Still, somehow, he remains the one prize fighter whom Max Schmeling must meet before his heavyweight championship is confirmed. If and when they meet he undoubtedly will come through with another magnificent bust, and you can rely on him to fail worst in the most important fights.

G. U. Prep Five Holds Landon to Lone Goal

Holding its opponents to a single field goal, the Georgetown Prep School quintet scored an easy 30-5 victory over Landon Prep School in a slow game played yesterday at Garrett Park.

With Keating and Allan essaying the leading roles, the eventual winners piled up a 14-1 lead on Landon in the first half, and the substitutes who took over the task in the second half completed the rout of the visitors. Baker score d all of the losing team's points.

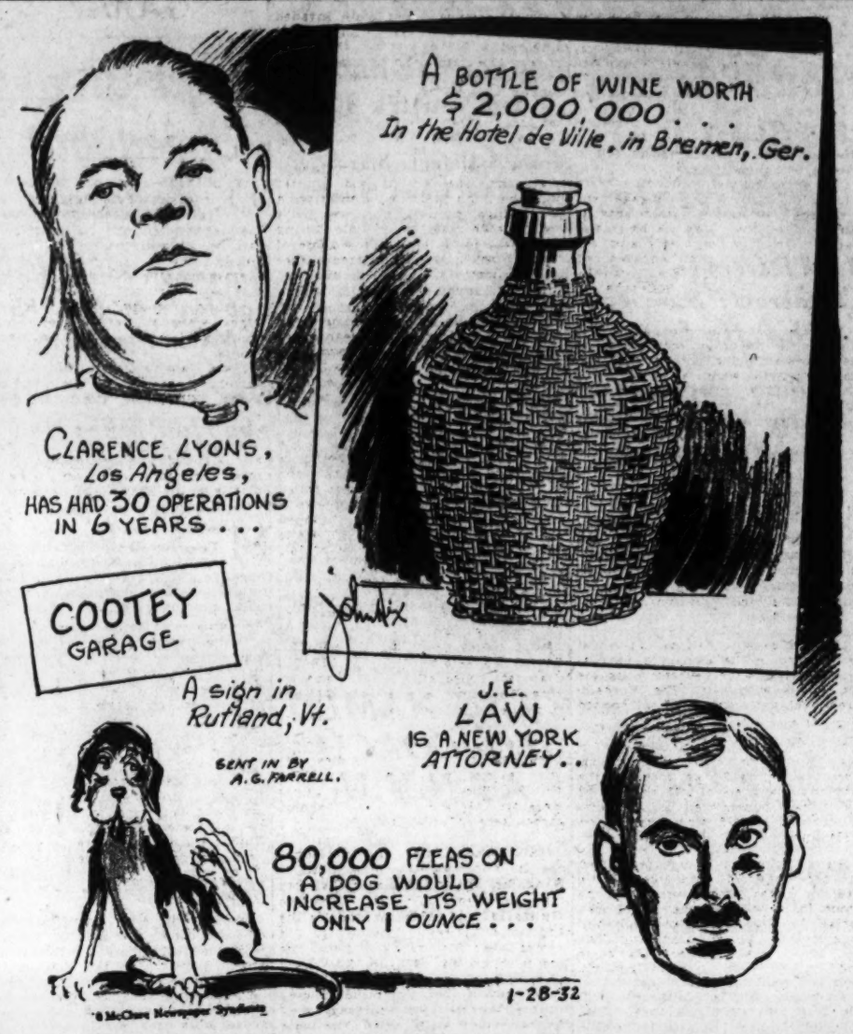
brilliant game against Novotny, former Chicago district champion and 1929 University of Illinois star, establishing a lead of 2 up with an outgoing 36. Perkins increased his margin with wins on the tenth and twelfth, getting a birdie three on the latter 300-yard hole. Novotny cut his rival's margin with a par 4 on the fourteenth, but a birdie 3 on the 360 fifteenth was wasted as Perkins matched this figure.

K. OF C. FIVES BUSY TODAY

Today will be a busy one for Knights of Columbus basket ball teams, as no less than three games are on tap for three of the Casey teams. At 4 p. m., the 85-pounders will meet the Congress Heights A. C. and an hour later the 100-pounders are scheduled to hook up with the Boys Club Team of that class. The unlimited quintet will see action at 8 p. m., when the D. C. Firemen will be met. The big five has won sixteen of the eighteen games played this season and is pointing for the A. A. U. tournament.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



WINE at $2,000,000 a bottle, is a drink that in expense would rival the luxurious taste of barbaric splendor, when priceless pearls were thrown into the winecup to give a rich flavor to its contents; yet that there is such a costly beverage is a fixed fact.

In the rose apartment (so called from a bronze bas-relief) of the ancient cellar under the Hotel de Ville, in the City of Bremen, is the famous Rosenwein, deposited there nearly two centuries and a half ago. There were twelve large cases, each bearing the name of one of the apostles; and the wine of Judas, despite the reprobation attached to his name, is to this day more highly esteemed than the others. One case of the wine, containing five oxhoft of 204 bottles, cost 590 rix-dollars in 1624. Including the expenses of keeping up the cellar, and of the contributions, interests of the amounts, and interests upon interests, an oxhoft costs

8 GAMES FOR GEORGETOWN

1932 Football Schedule Is Reduced

West. Va. Wesleyan, Canisius Added for Home Contests.

N. Y. U. Battle Again Feature; Bucknell to Invade Capital.

THE most abbreviated football schedule played by Georgetown University in many years was announced yesterday at the Hilltop. Eight games stud the Hoya grid season, including three new opponents. The New York University game, October 15 in New York, remains the feature.

Mount St. Mary's, of Emmitsburg, Md., for years the initial opponents of Georgetown, returns to the lead-off position after a year's absence, October 1 having been set as the date. Griffith Stadium will be the scene of all home games.

Canisius College, beneficiary of much of Buffalo's sturdy manufacturing folk, open a series with the Hilltoppers on October 8, here. One week later the team goes to New York for its fifth N. Y. U. struggle, and returns again on October 22 for the annual battle with Western Maryland, whom Georgetown, after three years of setbacks, sent skidding down to a decisive defeat last year.

Georgetown's lone night game of the year comes off Friday, October 28 against Detroit in Detroit.

For the first time since athletic relations were evolved with West Virginia, Georgetown will meet the Mountaineers at Morgantown. One week later West Virginia Wesleyan, one of the most feared colleges in the region, will be met at Griffith Stadium in what is likely to be the homecoming game. It will be the first meeting between the two.

Bucknell, which defeated Georgetown by a slim margin here last fall, will be met here again in the final game of the season, November 19. Bucknell, after nosing out Georgetown, won handily from Fordham last fall to snare a high place in Eastern football.

The new opponents are Mount St. Mary's, Canisius and West Virginia Wesleyan. The institutions dropped from the schedule are Lebanon Valley, Boston College, Michigan State and Villanova.

October 1, Mt. St. Mary's College, at Washington; 8, Canisius College, at Washington; 15, New York University, at New York; 22, Western Maryland College, at Washington; 28, Detroit University, at Detroit (night game).

November 5, West Virginia University, at Morgantown, W. Va.; 12, West Virginia Wesleyan College, at Washington; 19, Bucknell University, at Washington.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

A TEAM composed of Joe Harrison, Jack Wolstenholme, Eddie Espey, Astor Clarke, Maxie Rosenberg, Johnny Anderson, Bradley Mandley and possibly Paul Harrison will leave tonight or tomorrow morning for Willimantic, Conn., where the Blue Ribbons will be met in a return match on Saturday. Mandley and Rosenberg are also expected to roll in the Eastern Sweepstakes.

The announcement that the team will fulfill the return engagement with the Connecticut team sets at rest rumors that Lew Hoffenmaier had left the boys high, dry and not so happy. It has been also learned that the team will finish out its league schedule under Hoffenmaier's management.

Miller's 152 game and 380 total topped the individual scoring in the Georgetown Church loop at Arcadia. Team honors were accorded Peck Chapel No. 1 by virtue of its 575 game and 1,611 set. Peck No. 2 tied its brother team's game effort, but didn't quite make the grade on the three-game count.

Cragoe's 360 set and Hellmer's 139 game were the medal scores in the Bureau of Standards loop at Columbia. B. T. U. toppled the timber for a game of 657 and set of 1,651, to floor Technologists for a count of 3. Engineers, Mimeos, and Chemicals gained 2-to-1 victories over Ceramists, Files and Industrial in the other matches.

Rice's 136 captured the individual game prize in the Dynamite loop at Lucky Strike, while Pomeroy took the set laurels with 344. The Wreckin' Crew's 561 game and 1,613 set topped the teams.

Miss Fitzgibbons was the star in the Commission and Miscellaneous circuit at Lucky Strike, mauling the maples for a game of 123 and set of 326. Team honors went to Appointment, with its 495 single game and 1,284 total.

Ruby Taylor and Van Porter tossed Brother Crawford and the Battle Axe for three-game losses in the Amos 'n' Andy League at Lucky Strike. Wildcat Wilson and Lightnin' took the odd games from King Fish and Mme. Queen. Riley's 132 game and Burns' 346 set led point-getting.

Tony Santini made his debut in the Business Men's League at Convention Hall last night, but even he failed to save the Colonial Ice Cream five from a shutout at the hands of S. Kann's Sons. It was not the only shutout of the evening, however, as Call Carl, Hech Co. and Convention Hall applied the same remedy to the championship aspirations of Fitzpatrick's Service Station, Briggs Meat Market and Edmonds. C. & P. Telephone took the deciding game from Brodt's. Brad Mandley's 140 and 396 were high.

Bill Looney's game of 137 and Larry Fitzgerald's 359 set took tthe cake in the K. of C. League at Convention Hall. Genoa's 603 game and 1,687 total led the teams in scoring.

The Columbia Girls Team invaded Convention Hall last night and ameared a 2-1 defeat on the home crew. The high-scoring miss of the evening was Helen Kohler, who rocked the maples with a game of 127 and set of 315. Eva Gude's 308 set and Miss Costello's 110 game topped the losing team in pinspilling.

In antoher Ladies District League argument, the Rendezvous quintet told the John Blick representatives a few things, winning all three by a comfortable margin. Lucille Young was the leading lady with a game of 121 and set of 338 to her credit. Evelyn Viehmeyer's 113 game and 293 total led the Blicks.

Chris Poullos outdid himself to lead the Five Greeks to a clean sweep win over the National Lithographers in a King Pin Business Men's League match last night. Chris rattled off a game of 134 and set of 373 to lead both clubs in scoring.

Judd & Detweiler is a game to the good after meeting Messrs. Young & Simon in the National Capital loop at Lucky Strike. The Printers rolled 560, 586 and 553 to their opponents' 519, 645 and 543. Ed Laake bumped the bottles for a game of 147, while Jack Gooding registered a set of 369.

With Eddie Espey strangling the sticks for a game of 147 and a set of 415, Convention Hall whitewashed Petworth at the hall. The winning team's scores were 602, 574 and 599. Petworth's were 538, 539 and 567. Bill Clampett rolled a set of 342 and Irving Billheimer a game of 127, but it availed the losers naught.

Meyer Davis gained a 2-1 victory over Takoma Park in a Ladies District league affair rolled at King Pin No. 2. The winning team's games were 423, 480 and 515. The Takoma games were 447, 438 and 483.

In another Ladies' District league match, contested at Lucky Strike, King Pin odd-gamed another victory out of Deal's Service. Lorraine Gulli's 137 and 343 accounted for the individual prizes. The King Pin scores were 534, 538 and 499. The losers rolled 505, 490 and 539.

Seventy-five per cent of the honors in the Bankers' loop were bagged by Hibbs bowlers at Arcadia. The team won the honors in its' class with a game of 613 and set of 1,719. Madden's 153 helped a bit. Yerks, of Federal-American, cashed in on his set of 368.

Jim Mullican, of Drifters, No. 2, split the splinters for a set of 345 in the Nautical League at Columbia. Allen, of El Dorado, turned in a game of 135. Bonzai rolled a set of 1,625 and won all three from Washington, No. 2. Drifters, No. 2, hit the headpin for a game of 570 and a 2-1 victory over El Dorado. Drifters, No. 1, and Washington, No. 1, gained the decision over Colonial and Potomac.

2-DAY LAPSE IN COLLEGE GAMES

G. U. Plays New York, K. of C. and Army on Trip North.

DEFINITE proof that college athletes do buckle down now and then and attend to scholastic matters has been provided during the last two days by the absolute lack of college basket ball games and the prevalence of midyear examinations. The arid spot on the schedule will continue through until tomorrow night when an active week-end of court warfare breaks out on several fronts.

Local fans will not find it convenient to attend games tomorrow night. Georgetown meets the ever-strong Knights of Columbus of New York in New York. Georgetown was downed by this aggregation last year, and although Coach Mesmer has a rapidly improving team on his hands this year, the Hoya squad remains an underdog.

Gallaudet, Strayer Play Tomorrow.

In tomorrow night's other games Gallaudet plays the Pharmacy School Team of Temple University at Philadelphia, and Strayer's meets old Bridgewater at Bridgewater, Va.

While Georgetown is tackling select competition in Army at West Point Saturday night, it has left the local field open to the two choicest teams of this section, Maryland and George Washington University. Maryland, whose second straight Southern Conference championship is beginning to appear faintly on the horizon after an uncertain start, meets V. P. I. within Ritchie Coliseum's massive confines. Maryland, bolstered by the work of two sophomores, Vincent, center, and Buscher, guard, is favored to win its fifth straight conference game.

Georgetown Guest Of West Point.

Coach Jim Pixlee, the strong, silent man of George Washington athletics, trots out the beautiful basket ball team he has fashioned this year once more Saturday night, this time against competition of a caliber unknown in this district. Colonials' contestants are Lynchburg College's tossers, and sight unseen, the odds favor G. W. to achieve its eighth straight victory of the undefeated season.

Gallaudet meets another Philadelphia opponent Saturday night, La-Salle, and Bliss, leaders in the Washington Collegiate Conference, engages Strayer's of Baltimore, at Bliss.

Citizens Protest Redistricting Plan

Eighth District Change Is Hit by Balston Association.

The Ballston Citizen's Association at its meeting last night in the auditorium of the Ballston firemen's hall went on record protesting the redistricting of the Eighth Congressional District of Virginia, and the secretary was instructed to write letters to State Senator John W. Rust and Delegate Hugh Reid.

The association also went on record opposing the granting of permits to the so-called medicine shows which establish themselves in this vicinity every year during the spring season.

Ray R. Cogswell was unanimously reelected president. Other officers elected are: Mrs. Rachel White, first vice president; Thomas J. Crack, second vice president; Mrs. Lydia Smith, secretary; and Mrs. Alice Thomas, treasurer.

Youth Injured Second Time Aiding War on Demon Rum

Peace has its heroes, no less than war—

Witness Herbert Harrison, cut over the eye by an exploding beer bottle while he was helping to destroy a quantity of liquor seized by Prince Georges County police. Sergt. A. W. Hepburn also was injured, spraining his leg while carrying a load of "boxes" over uneven ground in Marlboro. More than 100 cases of contraband liquor were broken up back of the courthouse yesterday, and the aroma penetrated every office in the building throughout the afternoon.

This was Harrison's second injury of this sort. The youth, who is chauffeur for Chief J. J. Crowley, received a severely cut thumb several months ago when pieces of glass from a smashed half-gallon jar flew into the air and fell on his hand.

2 SCHOOLS MERGED IN PRINCE GEORGES

Patuxent Pupils Will Be Taken to Marlboro Building by Motor Bus.

Pressure of economy in the Prince Georges County school system has forced the consolidation of the Patuxent school with the Marlboro school, patrons of the Patuxent institution are notified in a letter mailed yesterday by the county school board.

Pupils of the smaller school will be taken to Marlboro by bus, it was announced, and Miss Louise Ryon, teacher of the Patuxent school, will be transferred to the Mullikin school. The change is effective Monday, when the new bus will leave Swansons at 8:45.

The Patuxent school has an enrollment of 18 pupils and is located on the Crain highway at Wells Corner. The average cost per year per pupil is $80, compared to an average of $59 in the Marlboro school. Closing of the school is only tentative, but if found satisfactory the old school building will be offered for sale.

Miss Ryon will fill the need for an additional teacher at Mullikin, where the present four teachers are instructing nearly 200 pupils. Her transfer will save the expense of another teacher here, although the cost of the Patuxent bus line will offset this saving to some extent.

Parent-Teachers Give Awards for Attendance

The Maury School unit of the Parent-Teacher Association, Alexandria, held a meeting Tuesday night at which awards for the attendance of parents at the meeting were given, first to Miss Gladys Guin's room; second to Miss Elizabeth King.

Mrs. E. E. MacMorland sang a composition, words and music by Mrs. A. F. Umholtz, of George Washington Park, for which she received an award in a recent Washington bicentennial music contest. This unit will give a benefit card party tomorrow afternoon and evening in the school auditorium.

County Manager Pledges Cooperation to Firemen

Meeting with the presidents and chiefs of the several fire departments in Arlington County at his offices in the courthouse last night, County Manager Roy S. Braden assured the firemen that the county will in every way cooperate with them and see to it that as far as possible they will be given needed equipment.

Arlington County, he said, is equipped with the finest type of fire-fighting equipment and every effort will be made by the county to continue the efficiency which the firemen have maintained in the past.

Mt. Rainier Installs Firemen's Officers

Volunteer Unit Urged to Work Toward State Insurance Bill.

Mount Rainier volunteer firemen were urged to work for legislation to provide for State insurance by Capt. H. A. Chapman, of the Washington department, in an address delivered at a dinner following installation of new officers of the Mount Rainier unit.

Other speakers at the banquet included Mayor John H. Beall, of Mount Rainier, and Karl Young, who is serving his fifth consecutive year as chief. Other new officers are H. A. Bates, deputy chief; William S. Freeman, captain; George R. Lee, jr., lieutenant; Bernard Beall, sergeant; John M. Earnest, secretary; David Laing, financial secretary; Julius Reiners, treasurer; and C. E. Moore, lieutenant of machnery.

Officers of the Mount Rainier unit of the county rescue squad, also installed, were Andrew Gill, jr., captain; F. P. Casey, lieutenant; Charles E. Donohue, sergeant; N. B. Smith, secretary; and George R. Lee, jr., treasurer.

Carne Precinct Citizens To Attend Civic Session

The Livingstone Heights Civic League will be host to residents of Carne Precinct tonight when it holds a special meeting in honor of Roy S. Braden, new manager of Arlington County, in St. Mary's Church on Glebe road. Invitations have been broadcast and a large attendance is anticipated. It is expected that Mr. Braden will discuss the progress of the new county administration and in addition Mrs. R. N. Sutton will outline the work of the county welfare board.

Lawrence W. Douglas, Commonwealth's attorney, will speak on the subject of redistricting, which problem is now pending before the General Assembly. Some of the plans in the reapportionment threaten to divide the Eighth District, which is comprised, in part, of Arlington County, and this situation is considered of grave importance to the people of northern Virginia. The meeting, which has been arranged by the trustees of the Livingstone Heights Civic League, will be presided over by its president, John A. Petty.

Man Is Arrested Here In Alexandria Robbery

Washington police yesterday arrested Richard Michael, colored, of Reidsville, N. C., charged with stealing two suits of clothing from the automobile of R. A. Rosenthan, of St. Louis, while the car was parked near the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

Michael was turned over to the Alexandria police, and, according to Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims, admitted the theft. The case will be heard in police court today.

ALEXANDRIA PARADE ROUTE PROTESTED

Effort Will Be Made to Change March to Pass Christ Church.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Owing to alleged dissatisfaction over the route selected by the George Washington Birthday Association for the parade to be held February 22, and also over the selection of the location for the reviewing stands, efforts will be made at the next meeting of the association, Monday night, to change both the route of the parade and the location of the stands.

The route of the parade, as adopted by the association at its last meeting by a vote of about 20 to 5, provides for the parade to turn from King street north on Royal street, pass the reviewing stand at Royal and Cameron streets, then proceed north on Royal street to Queen street, thence to Washington street, and north to the point of disbandment. This would omit two blocks on North Washington street, and would not pass Christ Church, where George Washington worshipped.

The object in having the parade traverse Royal street, which is a departure from the custom of previous years, was to locate the reviewing stand at Gadsby's Tavern, where Washington held his last review of his troops, and issued his last military order. This was deemed particularly appropriate at the bicentenial celebration of Washington's Birthday, and at the last meeting there was little or no argument against this route, although some members wished to have the parade turn west on Cameron street instead of Queen street. The chief of staff of the parade, Charles W. King, however, explained that this would make necessary two left turns within one square, which would be impracticable. It is contended that should the reviewing stand be located on Washington street it would destroy the effect of having the parade pass Gadsby's Tavern, the object of which was to have President Hoover review the parade from the same location as that occupied by Washington in his last review.

The matter will be reopened at the meeting Monday night of the Birthday Association.

Alexandria firemen are making elaborate preparations for the annual conventions, to be held in Alexandria in August, of the Virginia State Firemen's Association and the Cumberland Valley Firemen's Association, the latter being composed of firemen from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia. The auxiliaries of both organizations will also meet in Alexandria at the same time.

With the exception of the Washington's Birthday parade and the parade at the dedication of the George Washington Masonic Memorial Temple in May, this will be the biggest convention and parade of the year in Alexandria. Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., of the executive committee of the State organization, estimates that not less than 5,000 firemen will be in line, and several thousand visitors are expected to attend. The two organizations will hold separate meetings, and they are arranging for reel races, fire rescue demonstrations, hose contests and other features, including evolutions by the firemen.

A definite date for the meetings will be announced later by the executive committee. One of the main attractions will be a big barbecue, to be held in the open.

Eastern Smothers Washington-Lee Five

Eastern High's Basket Ball Team, kingpins of the high school world until toppled by Tech last week, got back into a winning habit yesterday by overwhelming Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, Va., 48-13, in the Eastern Gymnasium.

The first-string Eastern team—Kane, Waters, Lieb, Bayliss and Zola—appeared only for the first half. At the end of the first quarter it led, 4-3, and at the end of the half stood 14-3. The Little Generals could score only four more points in the third quarter, while Eastern's reserve strength boosted the tally to 28 and finished down the home stretch with an undeniable exhibition of marksmanship.

STOCK PRICES CLOSE LOWER AFTER GAINS

Dividend Reports Overcome Steel News Effects; Sales, 1,287,342 Shares.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Stocks were somewhat troubled today by the news from the United States Steel Corporation, but a couple of regular dividends by railroads and a conviction that carrier workers would ultimately take a wage cut broke the fall of shares.

The market closed lower, although above the day's minimum quotations. Steel issues naturally made the poorest showing, for their industry is apparently facing a rather indefinite period of unprofitable operations and the earnings statement of the largest unit made gloomy reading.

Tomorrow Bethlehem's report comes out. It, too, will reflect the hard times that are besetting the business of steel production, a distinctly "prince or pauper" business.

Steel Opening Awaited.

Wall street waited eagerly for the opening in U. S. Steel common. The first sale was a block of 2,500 shares at 40, or Tuesday's San Francisco close. After holding fairly steady for a short period as covering orders were executed, the stock weakened sharply, selling down to 37¾, or 4 points lower, accompanied by a similar break in the preferred. Late repurchases by shorts steadied the junior issue back to 38⅝, reducing the net loss to 3⅛. The senior stock, however, finished near the bottom.

Traders seemed to feel that the prospects for any dividends on Bethlehem common were none too bright, for the shares broke to the new low of 16¾, closing at 17 or 2¼ off. Crucible, now paying nothing, was also weak.

American Telephone was subjected to pressure, down 7 net, while General Electric, Westinghouse, American Can and Consolidated Gas closed a point lower. Pennsylvania quickly recovered a loss of nearly 2 points when the regular 50-cent dividend was announced. Delaware & Hudson, whose directors took similar action, also rallied.

Northern Pacific Firms.

Northern Pacific firmed on better December earnings and an estimate that the road earned $3.60 a share last year, a substantial part of which resulted from a draft on a subsidiary. Woolworth, making $4.24 a share in 1931 against $3.56 in 1930, eased a point.

Selling generally was light, centering on stocks which figured in the day's news. The turnover of 1,287,342 shares was moderate, although considerably above volume of the two previous sessions.

Steel operations have firmed to 29 per cent of rated capacity, the rise of one point in a week being a step in the right direction although hardly sufficient to meet seasonal standards. Demand is so light that the price structure has not yet been fully tested, and there still seems to be considerable uncertainty as to when improvement will accelerate.

Money markets carried an easier undertone and U. S. Government bonds again improved. Whether such symptoms, as well as the cut in the Dallas Reserve Bank's rediscount rate foreshadow any action by the New York bank tomorrow, remains to be seen. It may be that the authorities feel conditions are favorable to and another move in the easy money program, especially since foreign fears of inflation in this country appear to have subsided.

DAILY SUBSIDED MOVEMENT.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Today's gold transactions resulted in a net decrease of $11,724,800 in the country's monetary stock, the New York Federal Reserve Bank statement disclosed.

There was withdrawn for export to France $12,005,000, representing a continuation of that country's withdrawals in connection with plans announced several days ago. There was also an increase of $97,800 in gold under earmark for foreign account.

Imports amounted to $378,000 from India.

BOND MARKET DROPS UNDER DULL TRADING

Average Loss on List Slight in Smallest Turnover for More Than Month.

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Lassitude today gripped the bond market, and traders generally were unable to agree on any definite trend in prices.

There were no pronounced efforts made to disclose the leaders of the list, and quotations showed only fractional changes, in the main. The average for 60 corporate securities lost but .2 of a point. The dullness was shown by the fact that sales totaled only $8,864,000, the smallest volume in more than a month.

While the rails gave a better account of themselves than other domestic issues, they emerged from the session with their noses barely above water. The average for the principal carriers was just 1-10 of a point better than yesterday.

Principal losses in the transportation section were in St. Louis Southwestern liens, which shed from 1 to 3 points. This was attributed partly to profit-taking, however, as the bonds of this road climbed 14 to 19 points Tuesday. There were a lot of minor gains and losses, but none that indicated any particular movement.

The utilities were under pressure at times, American Telephone and Western Union loans sagging slightly. Of the industrials U. S. Rubber lost 1¼ points after earlier gains. Remington Arms 6s were somewhat active for a 2½ point advance. National Radiator 6½s picked up 3 points.

United States Government obligations were mixed. Foreign bonds developed an irregular trend. German government 7s and 5½s sagged, but Japanese 6½s and British 5½s advanced. Gains were recorded by most of the Argentine issues. Salvador Republic 8s lost 6 points, due, it was believed, to recent disturbances in that country.

JANUARY 28, 1907.

Three hundred miners have been entombed in a mine explosion in Prussia.

Reed Knox, son of Senator Philander Knox, of Pennsylvania, ran away to Alexandria last night with Miss Bessie McCook and was married. The eloping young couple used the high-speed electric trolley line that runs to the Virginia city to thwart their parents, who could not catch them.

"The Girl of the Golden West" is playing at the Belasco with an all-star cast.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE LADY AND THE CRUISER.
(A Motorboat Show Study.)

SHE (boarding the boat)—Oh. isn't this sweet! May we go downstairs?

He (a little embarrassed)—Not downstairs, dear. Go below, you mean.

She—Below what?

He—You never speak of going downstairs on a boat; it's always going below.

She (going below)—Oh, how comfy! And look at this lovely little kitchen, Henry!

He (hoarsely)—Not kitchen; galley.

* * * *

SHE—And what a cute window for ventilation, and * * *

He—Please, dear, it's a porthole, not a window.

She—It all seems so senseless. Why shouldn't a window be a window whether it's on a boat or in a house?

He—Nautical terms, my dear. People who know anything about the water laugh at you if you call things by their wrong names.

She (looking around the cabin)—This is a nice, big room, isn't it, Henry?

He—Cabin, not room.

She—And are these the beds?

He—Berths!. You really might try to talk as if you knew a little something about boats, honey.

She—But I don't.

He—You ought to. We were on the water quite a little last summer. And, anyhow, there's no use advertising the fact we're not used to yachts and things.

* * * *

SHE—What's this? Oh, a nice big closet!

He—Locker, darling. Please!

She (after a little while)—What's that hole in the roof, Henry?

He (with a look of pain)—A hatch. It's for ventilation.

She (discovering something else)—And if we got through this little doorway can we see what's up in front?

He (sternly)—Up forward, my dear, not up front. If we're going to get a boat you might as well begin to understand the right boating terms, you know.

* * * *

She (after inspecting the forward cockpit)—It's awfully cute. Now let's go look at the rear end.

He—The stern, you mean.

She—I mean the back part, where the wicker chairs are.

He—The aft cockpit, dearie.

She (quite discouraged)—Well, anyway, let's look at it.

* * * *

SALESMAN (buttonholing them and going into his sales talk)—Now the feature of this boat is its construction. Heavy oak stem * * * entire boat copper fastened throughout * * * extra heavy bronze skeg * * * electrically ventilated bilge * * * roomy lazaret for storage * * * adjustable stuffing box cushioned from shaft log with one-inch live rubber pad * * * heavy oak planking * * * folding helmsman's seat * * * screened hatches * * * alemite equipped drag link steering control and * * *

She (despairingly)—Oh, Henry, I don't think we want a boat, after all.

He—Why not?

She—I just never could be happy on anything with so many funny names!

* * * *

DARN CLEVER, THOSE JAPANESE.

THE Japanese are funny folks—
They fight another nation,
And then explain it as an act
Of mere pacification.

THEY RAKE AND SHELL ANOTHER STATE AND VIOLATE EACH PACT, ANNOUNCING THAT IT'S NOTHING BUT A VERY FRIENDLY ACT!

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Youngstown advices forecast a substantial deficit in the 1931 statement of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. In some quarters the loss is estimated at more than $5,000,000. For 1930 the company reported a net profit of $7,036,132.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Co. is planning the immediate expenditure of $200,000 for improvements, Chairman M. H. Cahill stated today. The road has placed orders for 2,800 tons of 90-pound rails.

George H. Bucher has been elected vice president and general manager of the Westinghouse Electric International Co. His headquarters will remain here.

Some companies that split up their stocks during boom times are understood to be considering a reverse action, that is, exchange of a number of shares for one new share, to restore more impressive values to their shares. A tabulation prepared by Lamborn, Hutchings & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, shows that some 265 listed stocks were split up or the number of shares outstanding otherwise greatly increased since 1920. General Electric now has roughly 16 1-3 shares outstanding for one in 1920, and General Motors, about 20 2-3. Noranda Mines has 100 times as many shares as in 1920.

Arrangements were made today for the sale of a New York Curb Exchange membership at $41,000, an increase of $1,000 over the previous sale.

Electric Power output for the week ended January 23 was 1,593,201,000 kilowatt-hours, a decrease of 6.7 per cent from the corresponding week last year. A like decrease from last year was reported for the week ended January 16.

For the first time in several weeks the composite price averages of Iron Age on finished steel, pig iron and scrap have shown no change, indicating slightly more stability at the existing low levels.

The shops of the General Electric Co., in Schnectady will be closed the first two weeks in August while employes take their vacations without pay.

Bank Placed in Receivership.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Federal Judge J. Lyles Glenn at a hearing here today decided to place affairs of the closed Peoples State Bank of South Carolina in the hands of receivers.

He appointed William Elliott, sr., Columbia attorney, and Robert M. Gage, of Chesterm, receivers for the 44 branch chain which went into the hands of the State bank examiner January 2.

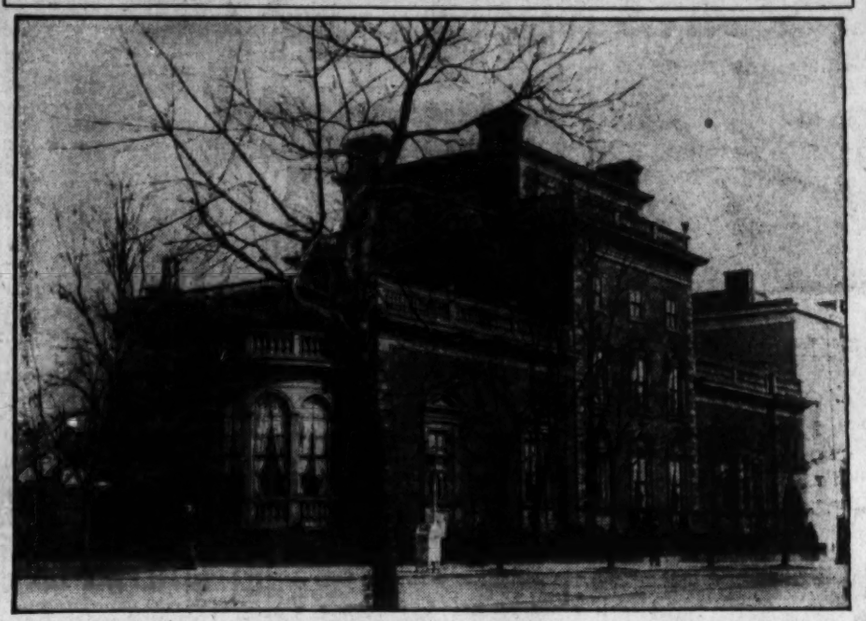
When Washington Was Younger—No. 177



National Photo.

ONE of the famous old landmarks of the city, now gone, was the Corcoran House at Connecticut avenue and H street, where the United States Chamber of Commerce now stands, pictured above.

The house was built by Thomas Swann, district attorney for the District of Columbia, between 1824 and 1829. It is said that the house was presented to Daniel Webster when he was Secretary of State by his admirers, but as he resigned as Secretary in 1843 and his name appeared on the deed from 1844 to 1847, it is not known whether it was presented to him before that or not.

It was next occupied by Richard Packenham, Minister from Great Britain, and eventually came into the possession of William W. Corcoran, the banker philanthropist, to whom Washington is indebted for the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Church of the Ascension and the Louise Home.

During the Civil War Mr. Corcoran's sympathies were with the South, and his home was ordered confiscated, but he promptly leased it to M. de Montholon, Minister from France, and as the Government was not inclined to invade the property of a friendly nation, Mr. Corcoran scored a point. During this period many brilliant social events were held there, and probably one of the grandest balls in Washington history was given by order of Louis Napoleon, in February, 1866. Dancing was kept up until well into the day for the crowd was so great that it could not commence until nearly dawn.

It is not known exactly when this picture was taken, but judging from the dress of the promenaders, it must have been some time ago. Note the white mail boxes and lamppost.

WAVE OF HOLDUPS IS CHECKED AS 200 POLICE ARE ADDED

Only 1 Reported as "Stretch System" Keeps Patrolmen on Duty Longer.

GLASSFORD BACK TODAY TO TAKE OVER CAMPAIGN

Two Men Take Cab and Cash From Driver in Single "Job" Listed.

Only one holdup was reported last night as 200 extra policemen walked the beats in the various precincts. And as the extra men, who were put on through a "stretch" system, did their patrolling, a man walked through their ranks to appear at headquarters and surrender, saying he burglarized a store last Saturday.

Eleventh Precinct police were holding a colored youth they claim has participated in more than a score of housebreakings.

After four holdups Tuesday night, in one of which a man was shot and gravely wounded, Inspector E. W. Brown, acting superintendent of police, issued an emergency order in an effort to stop the crime wave.

Glassford Back Today.

Men working on the 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. shift were ordered to report again for work at 7 p. m. Those working the 4 p. m. shift worked through to 2:30 a. m.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, his cold cured in Southern climes, will be in the city today, and will take over the job of attempting to cope with the holdup situation. The individual policemen were not particularly pleased with the "stretch" system idea of fighting the wave. What steps Gen. Glassford will take will be revealed today.

The lone holdup last night was reported by George Odian, taxicab driver, of 1204 Sixth street southwest. He said two colored men got in his cab at Georgia avenue and Irving street northwest and told him to drive to Blair road and Rock Creek Church road northeast. Near that spot one of the men pulled a pistol, and the pair got away with his cab and $3.20, he said.

Surrenders in Theft.

Detective Sergts. Sweeney and Mullins were holding the fort at headquarters last night when a man ranged himself before the railing. He said he wanted to give himself up and then went on to declare that he had entered a store in t 400 block of Eleventh street northwest and got away with $30 last Saturday night, police quoted him as confessing.

Sergt. Mullins looked in the records and found that a store a 427 Eleventh street had been entered that night and about that amount of money was missing. The man, who said he was James Wesley Davis, 30 years old, of no fixed address, was sent to the First Precinct station on an investigation charge.

Detective J. F. Boxwell, of the Eleventh Precinct, claimed to have the key to more than a score of robberies in the Northeast section with the arrest last night of Walter Childs, colored, 14 years old, of 1304 Forty-ninth street northeast.

The youth is said to have confessed to many of the robberies and police say they will connect him with more. He is accused of having pulled a pistol and attempted to shoot a civilian who attempted to detain him last night. The youth's gun is said to have snapped.

Girl Scout Chiefs In Annual Meeting

Miss Bertie Backus Gives Principal Address at Y.W.C.A. Function.

One hundred or more Girl Scout leaders of the District of Columbia held their annual "get-together dinner" meeting last night at the Y. W. C. A. Building, with Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn, president of the Leaders Association and captain of Troop 17, presiding. Inspirational talks were made by Mrs. B. F. Cheatham, chairman of Camp May Flather; Mrs. Campbell E. Waters, chairman of District 111, and others. Mrs. Cheatham spoke on plans being made for the summer at Camp May Flather and "scholarships" to be offered according to a new policy inaugurated by the camp committee in cooperation with the Community Chest.

The chief speaker of the evening, Miss Bertie Backus, principal of Alice Deal Junior High School, was introduced by Mrs. C. E. Waters. Her subject was "Growing Up." Mrs. Waters told of work being accomplished by Miss Backus, notably that of transforming an ordinary school cafeteria into a homelike club dining room, where each day a different host and hostess among the students presided at the noon hour meal of the student body.

Miss Backus talked of the problem offered by "present-day living" in the character development of boys and girls. She stressed the need of security, personality and responsibility in the home life and community life of children in order that they may learn to give and not just to take. "The child of today is afloat," said Miss Backus. "Children need an anchor, they must feel that they 'belong' somewhere and that they have a definite part in things."

Two Seized When Police Get Disabled Car's Rum

A traffic policeman found 167 half-gallons of whisky in a car at Third and H streets last night and arrested two men in connection with the case, according to police. The policeman, J. E. Bennett, said the men were waiting for a broken axle on the car to be repaired.

The men gave their names as Richard Robinson, 22 years old, of 30 G street southwest, and Leon Addison, 38 years old, colored, of 125 H street southeast.

FINE FOR POLICEMAN URGED AFTER 'BREAK'

Private. W. T. Murphy Censured for Absence Allowing Hicks to Escape.

Private W. T. Murphy, Ninth Precinct policeman, was recommended to the District Commissioners for a $100 fine yesterday by the Police Trial Board in connection with the escape from Gallinger Hospital of George Emmett Hicks, noted "jimmy" artist.

The police tribunal found Private Murphy guilty of "gross neglect of duty" in connection with Hicks' escape. Testimony showed that the policeman momentarily left Hicks, who was being treated for injuries received when he leaped from a police station second-story window. During the brief absence of the policeman, Hicks donned a bathrob over pajamas and fled. He was subsequently recaptured in an apartment house when tenants' suspicions were aroused by his actions.

Private Luther Kline, of the Third Precinct, was found not guilty by the board on charges that he struck a colored woman during his investigation of a law violation. Charges of conduct unbecoming law officers were continued against Privates R. A. Williams and C. P. Flynn of the special squad.

The accusations grew out of a party attended last summer by the two policemen at which it was said they were drunk. Witnesses yesterday testified both for and against the latter two and their trial was continued until further testimony can be secured.

Hoover Asked to Attend Unveiling by K. of C.

President Hoover yesterday was invited to attend ceremonies here on August 14 at the unveiling of a memorial to Cardinal Gibbons during the convention of the Knights of Columbus.

The invitation was extended by Martin Carmody, of Grand Rapids, Mich., supreme knight of the order. He was accompanied to the White House by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan. The President promised to give the invitation "most serious consideration." The memorial will be unveiled in a small park at Sixteenth street and Park road northwest, as one of the opening ceremonies of the convention.

Concrete Group Elects Ahearn Treasury's Aid

Vincent P. Ahern, of 5604 Thirty-second street northwest, was elected assistant treasurer of the National Ready Mixed Concrete Association at a convention in Pittsburgh yesterday. Mr. Ahearn is executive secretary of the National Gravel and Sand Association.

J. E. Burke, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected president. Other officers are Arthur C Avril, of Cincinnati, secretary, and Paul P. Bird, of Boston; H. F. Thomson, of St. Louis, and R. B. Young, of Toronto, Canada, vice president. J. L. Shiely, of St. Paul, was reelected treasurer.

Sons of Veterans Plan Open Meeting Tonight

Among the organizations invited to take part are the Cushing and Harding Camps, Sons of Union Veterans; their auxiliaries, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War; the Women's Relief Corps and the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Officials State Project Would Cost Less Than $1,000.

The Fire Department may soon be as up to date as the Metropolitan Police Department in its mode of communication, it was indicated yesterday, after successful demonstration had been given of wired radio facilities connecting the fire alarm headquarters with No. 1 Engine Company at Seventeenth and K streets.

Fire Chief George S. Watson was enthusiastic in his praise of the experiment, though he admitted he knew little about the technique of its operation. Officials estimate that the entire department could be equipped with loud speakers connected by wire to the microphone in the fire alarm division for less than $1,000.

To J. V. Marean, a fire alarm operator, goes the principal credit for the successful test yesterday. For weeks he has been at work getting the material where he could for the demonstration, and last night he worked late in anticipation of the experiment. He has been assisted by Joseph McInerny, a telephone fire alarm operator.

A brief address by O. J. Schelin, an assistant repair man, from the fire alarm division on the fifth floor of the District building yesterday afternoon was heard with ease by a group of fire officials gathered at the house of No. 1 Engine Company.

The wired radio is little more than a public address system and requires no additional cable, thus eliminating the greatest expense for installing such a communication hookup. Its sponsors point out that it would be invaluable in broadcasting local or still alarms because the use of the telephone now often results in misunderstandings and results in numerous repetitions of the alarm as several branches of the department must be informed.

Were all the firehouses equipped with loudspeakers, a single broadcast, with the alarm probably repeated three times, as with the police bulletins, would inform the entire department of the location of the still-alarm fire. It may be possible that the system might eventually replace the signals by bells, used for fire box alarms, though this change would come slowly. At first it would be only supplemental.

The system also would be of use in speeding messages which the fire chief or other officials wished to get to the officers of all fire companies.

Whether the system is adopted remains for a decision of Chief Watson and the District Commissioners. Its sponsors believe that the hookup could be made with money available and without asking an additional appropriation from Congress.

Officers to Show Riding Art Tonight

'Military Night' Sponsored by Club to Feature Charger Class.

Admirers of horsemanship are expected tonight at the Horse Show, to be given at the Riding and Hunt Club, Twenty-second and P streets northwest, where foremost horsemen of the country will meet in competition.

The event, known as "military night," will feature riding in the officers' charger class, open to privately owned officers' mounts, ridden by owners in uniform. Rules require the riders to execute several intricate school movements to demonstrate the skill of horse and rider. Each competitor also must jump at least three fences without wings. Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, chief of Cavalry, and one of the Army's foremost horsemen, will act as judge.

Entries from nearby Virginia, Warrenton, Middleburg and vicinity, and from the District, will participate in the civilian classes. The first of this group, a ladies' hunter, will open the show. Other classes will include 3 and 4 year old hunters, green and qualified hunters, park hacks, touch-and-out, and hunter championship.

JURY IS DUE TO GET BEATING CASE TODAY

Three Justice Agents, on Stand, Tell of Statements of Two Policemen.

The long, drawn-out trial of Policemen Charles R. Bremerman ani Hollis H. Clark, suspended members of the old Second Precinct, was ended yesterday as far as the taking of testimony was concerned. The case is nearing the end of its third week.

Following a brief examination of Bremerman, which closed the defense case, the Government prosecutors placed three special agents of the Department of Justice on the stand for rebuttal testimony, which ended presentation of all the evidence in the case.

All that remains now before the case is given to the twelve male jurors are the arguments over prayers, the arguments of attorneys and Justice F. D. Letts' charge to the jury. Since the session today will get under way at 10 o'clock, the jurors may get the case in midafternoon.

Three special agents of the Justice Department were called by William A Gallagher and John R. Fitzpatrick to tell what they knew of statements made to them orally by Clark and Bremerman and Lieut. John T. Wittstatt, in the Department of Justice Building.

They were queried by James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett as to whether they had attempted to find out anything favorable to the defendants, or whether they had been sent out "to make a case." Each of the three, Oscar George Hall, Rupert B. Surat and Raymond Suran, said he had looked into all angles.

Held down to "yes" or "no" answers to the questions by defense attorneys, the agents evinced some irritation and often snapped back their answers. In the main, the agents testified as to alleged contradictory statements made by Clark and Bremerman, and Lieut. Wittstatt. Each said his written records were accurate, and that they truly portrayed what the officers had told them in September.

Lieut. Wittstatt's testimony at the trial was that he had seen the two officers talking to the boys in the station house, while in a statement given to the agents he said that at no time did he see Clark and Bremerman with the boys.

Man Arrested and Auto Seized on Liquor Count

A man was arrested and a new coupe was confiscated yesterday after the driver had allegedly delivered a half gallon of alcohol to Sergt. R. C. Spieth, of the Third Inspection District liquor squad. Police said the delivery was made in the 600 block of M street northeast.

An illegal possession charge was placed against the man, George Harkins, 27 years old, of 1126 Twelfth street northwest. He was released under $500 bond.

Man Injured as Wind Hurls Glass From Store

Samuel Elliott, 44, of 218 Third street northwest, was knocked down and injured yesterday when the strong wind blew a plate glass window at Whelan's Drug Store, 403 Eleventh street northwest, upon him.

Policeman Ernest C. Lucas, of the Traffic Bureau, removed him to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a laceration of the right hand and shock. His injuries are not considered serious.

CURTIS CHIEF GUEST AS WOMEN OF BAR GIVE ANNUAL DINNER

Cites Success of Members of Their Sex in Legal Profession.

ASSOCIATION'S LEADERS VOICE TRIBUTE TO HIM

One Calls Present Period of Reconstruction Rather Than Depression.

With Vice President Charles Curtis as the guest of honor and principal speaker, members of the Women's Bar Association of the District celebrated the beginning of the sixteenth year of the history of their organization with a banquet last night at the Willard Hotel.

Vice President Curtis, who played a leading part in bringing about passage of the nineteenth amendment, declared that he has always had faith in women, and affirmed that women deserve the same amount of pay as men in any corresponding field of work.

He told the women lawyers that "things may look black" in their profession at first, particularly at this time, but predicted that "persistence and hard work will bring you all the success that you expect." The Vice President paid tribute to the few individual women whose courage opened the doors of all fields of education to their sex. He mentionel especially Mary Sommerville and Mary Lyon and Harriett Hunt and Elizabeth Blackwell.

1,000 Women at Capital.

When he first went to Congress, Vice President Curtis said, there were not as many as half a dozen women employed at the Capitol. Now, he pointed out, there are about 1,000, "all doing good work."

Others who addressed the association were: Miss Pearl McCall, president of the association; Miss Gail Laughlin, former member of the Legislature of Maine and founder of the Business and Business and Professional Womens Club; Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel, president of the National Assoication of Women Lawyers, and Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, president of the Women's Bar Association, of Baltimore. Miss Laura Berrien was toastmistress. The Vice President's speech was broadcast by Station WJSV.

Miss Laughlin paid tribute to the women who have made it possible for women to practice law in this country. She declared that women have a double duty to their individual clients and for public service. She asserted that nothing can now separate women from equality, freedoom and opportunity, "which is their unalienable right."

"Roconstruction Period."

Mrs. Gabriel described the present period as not one of depression, but rather of reconstruction, "presenting a golden opportunity for women lawyers to contribute to the building of a new era."

Miss McCall, Miss Berrien and Miss Brown spoke of the part contributed by men in giving women their rights. Vice President Curtis was described by Miss Berrien "as a man who has stood for the advancement of women at all times."

Other guests included: Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the Supreme Court of the District, and Mrs. Letts; Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District committee; Charles P. Sisson, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and Mrs. Sisson, and Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt.

LEADERS REELECTED BY CITIZENS' GROUP

Rhode Island Avenue Body Upholds Gas Tax Rise Asked by Mapes.

All officers of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association were re-elected last night at a meeting held in the Sherwood Presbyterian Church, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

The officers are E. G. Sievers, president; Charles R. Allen, first vice president; Mrs. C. E. Channing, second vice president; Julian F. Belfield, secretary; Wallace E. Perry, financial secretary; Mrs. H. S. Newman, assistant secretary; William S. Torbert, treasurer, and Thomas J. Llewellyn and W. H. Dunn, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The organization went on record as opposing the Mapes bill now before Congress, with the exception of the provision for increase in taxes on gasoline.

A resolution was adopted indorsing a bill in Congress making the public sale of dangerous weapons unlawful. It was urged that $250,000 be set aside by the school board for the completion of the Taft Junior High School in 1933.

In two other resolutions, the association paid tribute to the late Cuno H. Rudolph, former District Commissioner, and expressed regret at the retirement of Capt. C. L. Plemmons, of the Twelfth Police Precinct.

Lost Boy's Romancing Balks Taking Him Home

Police were on the point of sending Jack Clark, 9 years old, to the Receiving Home late yesterday afternoon after he had spun them about a dozen fine yarns as to how he came to be lost and where he lived, when a lookout came over the teletype asking them to locate the boy.

The boy is a pupil at the Gale School and is living at the Children's Home of the Gospel Union Mission. He went home with another pupil of the school, Joel Piccioni, 7, of 105 D street northwest and had dinner. Then he said he did not know where he lived or how to get home. Joel's brothers, Oliver, 13, and Dante, 11, took him to the First Precinct, but the police were stumped, too, until the lookout came along.

Sneeze Causes Woman Worker to Swallow Pin

It isn't wise to obey that impulse and sneeze when one has a mouthful of pins. Miss Edith Healy, 25 years old, of 3025 Fifteenth street northwest, will tell you that if you ask her today.

She was at her appointed task in the drapery department of an F street department store and as she took a tuck here, and another there, she would mark the place with pins she held in her mouth. Then the impulse to sneeze overtook her and she swallowed one of the pins. The Compensation Clinic ambulance was called and treated Miss Healy for a lacerated throat.

Wall.

CHURCH BODY PLANS BICENTENNIAL FEAST

Presbyterians Will Arrange National Banquet During 1932 Celebration.

The National Capital Presbyterian Commission, established by the general assembly of that church to direct the movement to build a national Presbyterian church in Washington, met yesterday to arrange a national dinner in Washington as a Presbyterian contribution to the George Washington bicentennial celebration.

The dinner will be given in honor of Presbyterian associates of George Washington and other Presbyterians who did valiant service in the foundation and building up of the republic, including eight signers of the Declaration of Independence, several of Washington's generals and a host of Presbyterian officers and soldiers who served in the Continental armies.

Among the eight Presbyterian signers was the Rev. John Witherspoon, the only clergyman signer, whose brave speech at a time when Congress was hesitating decided the wavering and brought about the ratification of the declaration. It is planned to commemorate Witherspoon's speech and other picturesque incidents in the Presbyterian contributions to the history of the country in a series of episodes presented in pageantry at the dinner.

Among these will be the "Give Then Watts, Boys" incident in Revolutionary annals, depicting the deed of the Rev. James Caldwell, of New Jersey, one of the many Presbyterian fighting chaplains in the Continental Army, who in a battle in which wadding for the muskets ran low brought hymn books from his church to supply the deficit and distributed them to the soldiers with that cry.

Other Presbyterians whose services will be commemorated and to whom the proposed national Presbyterian church is to serve as a memorial include ten Presidents of the United States who belonged to or attended Presbyterian churches, at least six Vice Presidents, and a long list of Cabinet members and other statesmen.

The National Capital Presbyterian Commission, under the chairmanship of Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, selected April 13 as the date for the dinner and decided to invite a list of representative Presbyetrians prominent in official and social life at the Capital and in other cities to serve as sponsors for the dinner. In official Washington 3 members of the Cabinet, 9 senators and nearly 60 members of the House of Representatives are listed as Presbyterians.

King District Bill Hearing Date Fixed

Proposal to Boost Power of Commissioners to Be Viewed Tomorrow.

Proposals to broaden regulatory powers of the Commissioners, embodied in a bill introduced by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, will be taken up at a special meeting of the Senate District committee at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Agitation for relieving Congress of duties that could be effectively handled by the Commissioners was started this session by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, who charged the House is degenerating into a "board of aldermen" for the District.

Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride has prepared a tract on the bill, which he will present at tomorrow's meeting. Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District committee, is among those who favor extension of the Commission's regulatory powers.

Farewell Parties Given Adams School Students

Two farewell parties were given students of the John Quincy Adams School yesterday. Members of the school boy patrol, most of whom will be promoted to high school next term, were treated to a special performance at Loew's Columbia with their teacher, Miss Agnes M. Muntz.

A surprise party for pupils of the fourth grade was given the pupils who will soon be stepped up by their teacher, Miss Fannie R. Noack, and some of their mothers, including Mrs. William Malloy, Mrs. Joseph Rebentisch, Mrs. J. W. Broderick and Mrs. D. Rus, grade mother.

CONFEREES AGREE ON $225,000 SUM FOR BICENTENNIAL

Senate and House Members Reach Compromise on Deficiency Bill.

CONCESSIONS' PROFITS TO GO INTO TREASURY

Subcommittee Acts Favorably on Paying Damages for Torn-Up Tracks.

Senate and House conferees yesterday reached a compromise on the amount of funds necessary to carry the United States Bicentennial Commission through the bicentennial year—reaching agreement on $225,000.

This was just $25,000 more than allowed by the Senate in its first deficiency bill, and $25,000 less than was voted by the House, where Associate Director Sol Bloom put up a spirited fight.

Associate Director Bloom asked $427,000 of Congress, but the House appropriations committee cut $177,000 from the total at one stroke. The Senate reduced the amount $50,000 more.

Conferees Report Accepted.

The Senate yesterday accepted the conferees report, which was sent to the House, where Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns reported it.

Vice Chairman Simeon D. Fess, of the bicentennial commission, told the Senate Tuesday the reduced budget will make it impossible for the commission to satisfy demands made on it for pamphlets on the life of Washington. He said the supply now is exhausted.

A revamped bill for the incorporation of the District Bicentennial Commission will be offered to the House on next District Day in lieu of the first District measure, so swiftly voted down last Monday.

Bill Ordered Redrafted.

The House District committee yesterday ordered the bill redrafted to meet objections met on the floor. Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride was told to revise the measure so it might be voted on by the committee next Wednesday.

The committee agreed to limit the life of the District Bicentennial Commission, except for purposes of settling liabilities, to February 1, 1933. Any profits from concessions will be paid into the Federal Treasury to the credit of the District, and accounts will be audited by the Comptroller General. The bill, which already has passed the Senate, must go to conference if adopted in its revised form.

Utility Bill Favored.

A favorable report was made by the public utilities subcommittee on a bill to revoke the charter of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway, awarding it damages for tracks torn up. Representative Allard H. Gasque (Democrat), South Carolina, suggested absence of a quorum, and the bill was held over.

Chairman Mary T. Norton read a letter signed by Speaker Garner and House Leader Rainey, asking that all bills providing for potential appropriations be held down rigidly.

Civic Body Objects To Zoning Section

Rock Creek Citizens Are Aroused Over Proposed Leniency in Code.

Exception was taken last night to proposed zoning regulations, an addition to section 22, by the Rock Creek Civic Association, which met at the Francis Junior High School. The addition, as proposed, would enable the Zoning Commission to make an order permitting modifications or partial suspension of a regulation where exceptional circumstances or surroundings constituted a practical difficulty or unnecessary hardship.

Dr. Charles H. Marshall was directed by the association to appear before the Commissioners at a hearing on February 3 and present the objections to the wide latitude proposed for the commission which the association indicated. Frank D. McKinney, grand master of colored Masons, spoke on the Community Chest.

Officers elected were: George T. Beason, president; James T. Magruder, vice president; Edgar Jackson, secretary; L. H. Ferguson, financial secretary; H. U. Bell, corresponding secretary; Clarence Warren, treasurer; R. N. Carter, whip; the Rev. J. S. Carroll, chaplain. Delegates to Federation of Civic Associations: George T. Beason, E. H. Lawson, Morrissey A. Koonce, L. H. Ferguson, R. N. Carter.

An inquiring young mind almost caused the District to lose one of its finest junior high schools late yesterday afternoon. Firemen were forced to tear up about 48 square feet of the flooring of Powell Junior High in order to get at the seat of a smoldering fire in the general science laboratory.

While Principal L. T. Walter, of 5500 Thirty-ninth street northwest, was reticent in discussing the incident, firemen said the excitement started when a student, working after hours, knocked over a bottle of white phosphorus.

The phosphorus seeped between the planking of the floor and began to smolder. The student hurried down and turned in the fire alarm. Firemen managed to smother the incipient blaze after tearing up most of the flooring in the room. For safety's sake, however, they left one man on guard at the school overnight.
